(3) The Director of the Office of Management and Budget shall include a summary of reports submitted to the Director under paragraph (2) and actions taken by the Director to advance the purposes of this title in the annual report to the Congress on statistical programs prepared under section 3504(e)(2) of title 44, United States Code.

44 USC 3501 note.

SEC. 504. EFFECT ON OTHER LAWS.

(a) TITLE 44, UNITED STATES CODE.—This title, including amendments made by this title, does not diminish the authority under section 3510 of title 44, United States Code, of the Director of the Office of Management and Budget to direct, and of an agency to make, disclosures that are not inconsistent with any applicable law.

(b) TITLE 13 AND TITLE 44, UNITED STATES CODE.—This title, including amendments made by this title, does not diminish the authority of the Bureau of the Census to provide information in accordance with sections 8, 16, 301, and 401 of title 13, United States Code, and section 2108 of title 44, United States Code.

(c) TITLE 13, UNITED STATES CODE.—This title, including amendments made by this title, shall not be construed as authorizing the disclosure for nonstatistical purposes of demographic data or information collected by the Census Bureau pursuant to section 9 of title 13, United States Code.

(d) VARIOUS ENERGY STATUTES.—Data or information acquired by the Energy Information Administration under a pledge of confidentiality and designated by the Energy Information Administration to be used for exclusively statistical purposes shall not be disclosed in identifiable form for nonstatistical purposes under—

(1) section 12, 20, or 59 of the Federal Energy Administration Act of 1974 (15 U.S.C. 771, 779, 790h);

(2) section 11 of the Energy Supply and Environmental Coordination Act of 1974 (15 U.S.C. 796); or

(3) section 205 or 407 of the Department of the Energy Organization Act of 1977 (42 U.S.C. 7135, 7177).

(e) SECTION 201 OF CONGRESSIONAL BUDGET ACT OF 1974.—This title, including amendments made by this title, shall not be construed to limit any authorities of the Congressional Budget Office to work (consistent with laws governing the confidentiality of information the disclosure of which would be a violation of law) with databases of Designated Statistical Agencies (as defined in section 522), either separately or, for data that may be shared pursuant to section 524 of this title or other authority, jointly in order to improve the general utility of these databases for the statistical purpose of analyzing pension and health care financing issues.

(f) PREEMPTION OF STATE LAW.—Nothing in this title shall preempt applicable State law regarding the confidentiality of data collected by the States.

(g) STATUTES REGARDING FALSE STATEMENTS.—Notwithstanding section 512, information collected by an agency for exclusively statistical purposes under a pledge of confidentiality may be provided by the collecting agency to a law enforcement agency for the prosecution of submissions to the collecting agency of false statistical information under statutes that authorize criminal penalties (such as section 221 of title 13, United States Code) or civil penalties for the provision of false statistical information, unless such disclosure or use would otherwise be prohibited under Federal law.

(h) CONSTRUCTION.—Nothing in this title shall be construed as restricting or diminishing any confidentiality protections or penalties for unauthorized disclosure that otherwise apply to data or information collected for statistical purposes or nonstatistical purposes, including, but not limited to, section 6103 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 (26 U.S.C. 6103).

(i) AUTHORITY OF CONGRESS.—Nothing in this title shall be construed to affect the authority of the Congress, including its committees, members, or agents, to obtain data or information for a statistical purpose, including for oversight of an agency's statistical activities.

Subtitle A—Confidential Information Protection

SEC. 511. FINDINGS AND PURPOSES.

44 USC 3501 note.

(a) FINDINGS.—The Congress finds the following:

(1) Individuals, businesses, and other organizations have varying degrees of legal protection when providing information to the agencies for strictly statistical purposes.

(2) Pledges of confidentiality by agencies provide assurances to the public that information about individuals or organizations or provided by individuals or organizations for exclusively statistical purposes will be held in confidence and will not be used against such individuals or organizations in any agency action.

(3) Protecting the confidentiality interests of individuals or organizations who provide information under a pledge of confidentiality for Federal statistical programs serves both the interests of the public and the needs of society.

(4) Declining trust of the public in the protection of information provided under a pledge of confidentiality to the agencies adversely affects both the accuracy and completeness of statistical analyses.

(5) Ensuring that information provided under a pledge of confidentiality for statistical purposes receives protection is essential in continuing public cooperation in statistical programs.

(b) PURPOSES.—The purposes of this subtitle are the following:

(1) To ensure that information supplied by individuals or organizations to an agency for statistical purposes under a pledge of confidentiality is used exclusively for statistical purposes.

(2) To ensure that individuals or organizations who supply information under a pledge of confidentiality to agencies for statistical purposes will neither have that information disclosed in identifiable form to anyone not authorized by this title nor have that information used for any purpose other than a statistical purpose.

(3) To safeguard the confidentiality of individually identifiable information acquired under a pledge of confidentiality for statistical purposes by controlling access to, and uses made of, such information.

44 USC 3501 note.

SEC. 512. LIMITATIONS ON USE AND DISCLOSURE OF DATA AND INFORMATION.

(a) USE OF STATISTICAL DATA OR INFORMATION.—Data or information acquired by an agency under a pledge of confidentiality and for exclusively statistical purposes shall be used by officers, employees, or agents of the agency exclusively for statistical purposes.

(b) DISCLOSURE OF STATISTICAL DATA OR INFORMATION.—

(1) Data or information acquired by an agency under a pledge of confidentiality for exclusively statistical purposes shall not be disclosed by an agency in identifiable form, for any use other than an exclusively statistical purpose, except with the informed consent of the respondent.

(2) A disclosure pursuant to paragraph (1) is authorized only when the head of the agency approves such disclosure and the disclosure is not prohibited by any other law.

(3) This section does not restrict or diminish any confidentiality protections in law that otherwise apply to data or information acquired by an agency under a pledge of confidentiality for exclusively statistical purposes.

(c) RULE FOR USE OF DATA OR INFORMATION FOR NONSTATISTICAL PURPOSES.—A statistical agency or unit shall clearly distinguish any data or information it collects for nonstatistical purposes (as authorized by law) and provide notice to the public, before the data or information is collected, that the data or information could be used for nonstatistical purposes.

(d) DESIGNATION OF AGENTS.—A statistical agency or unit may designate agents, by contract or by entering into a special agreement containing the provisions required under section 502(2) for treatment as an agent under that section, who may perform exclusively statistical activities, subject to the limitations and penalties described in this title.

44 USC 3501 note.

SEC. 513. FINES AND PENALTIES.

Whoever, being an officer, employee, or agent of an agency acquiring information for exclusively statistical purposes, having taken and subscribed the oath of office, or having sworn to observe the limitations imposed by section 512, comes into possession of such information by reason of his or her being an officer, employee, or agent and, knowing that the disclosure of the specific information is prohibited under the provisions of this title, willfully discloses the information in any manner to a person or agency not entitled to receive it, shall be guilty of a class E felony and imprisoned for not more than 5 years, or fined not more than $250,000, or both.

Subtitle B—Statistical Efficiency

SEC. 521. FINDINGS AND PURPOSES.

44 USC 3501 note.

(a) FINDINGS.—The Congress finds the following:

(1) Federal statistics are an important source of information for public and private decision-makers such as policymakers, consumers, businesses, investors, and workers.

(2) Federal statistical agencies should continuously seek to improve their efficiency. Statutory constraints limit the ability of these agencies to share data and thus to achieve higher efficiency for Federal statistical programs.

(3) The quality of Federal statistics depends on the willingness of businesses to respond to statistical surveys. Reducing reporting burdens will increase response rates, and therefore lead to more accurate characterizations of the economy.

(4) Enhanced sharing of business data among the Bureau of the Census, the Bureau of Economic Analysis, and the Bureau of Labor Statistics for exclusively statistical purposes will improve their ability to track more accurately the large and rapidly changing nature of United States business. In particular, the statistical agencies will be able to better ensure that businesses are consistently classified in appropriate industries, resolve data anomalies, produce statistical samples that are consistently adjusted for the entry and exit of new businesses in a timely manner, and correct faulty reporting errors quickly and efficiently.

(5) The Congress enacted the International Investment and Trade in Services Act of 1990 that allowed the Bureau of the Census, the Bureau of Economic Analysis, and the Bureau of Labor Statistics to share data on foreign-owned companies. The Act not only expanded detailed industry coverage from 135 industries to over 800 industries with no increase in the data collected from respondents but also demonstrated how data sharing can result in the creation of valuable data products.

(6) With subtitle A of this title, the sharing of business data among the Bureau of the Census, the Bureau of Economic Analysis, and the Bureau of Labor Statistics continues to ensure the highest level of confidentiality for respondents to statistical surveys.

(b) PURPOSES.—The purposes of this subtitle are the following:

(1) To authorize the sharing of business data among the Bureau of the Census, the Bureau of Economic Analysis, and the Bureau of Labor Statistics for exclusively statistical purposes.

(2) To reduce the paperwork burdens imposed on businesses that provide requested information to the Federal Government.

(3) To improve the comparability and accuracy of Federal economic statistics by allowing the Bureau of the Census, the Bureau of Economic Analysis, and the Bureau of Labor Statistics to update sample frames, develop consistent classifications of establishments and companies into industries, improve coverage, and reconcile significant differences in data produced by the three agencies.

(4) To increase understanding of the United States economy, especially for key industry and regional statistics, to develop more accurate measures of the impact of technology on productivity growth, and to enhance the reliability of the Nation's most important economic indicators, such as the National Income and Product Accounts.

44 USC 3501 note.

SEC. 522. DESIGNATION OF STATISTICAL AGENCIES.

For purposes of this subtitle, the term "Designated Statistical Agency" means each of the following:

(1) The Bureau of the Census of the Department of Commerce.

(2) The Bureau of Economic Analysis of the Department of Commerce.

(3) The Bureau of Labor Statistics of the Department of Labor.

44 USC 3501 note.

SEC. 523. RESPONSIBILITIES OF DESIGNATED STATISTICAL AGENCIES.

The head of each of the Designated Statistical Agencies shall—

(1) identify opportunities to eliminate duplication and otherwise reduce reporting burden and cost imposed on the public in providing information for statistical purposes;

(2) enter into joint statistical projects to improve the quality and reduce the cost of statistical programs; and

(3) protect the confidentiality of individually identifiable information acquired for statistical purposes by adhering to safeguard principles, including—

(A) emphasizing to their officers, employees, and agents the importance of protecting the confidentiality of information in cases where the identity of individual respondents can reasonably be inferred by either direct or indirect means;

(B) training their officers, employees, and agents in their legal obligations to protect the confidentiality of individually identifiable information and in the procedures that must be followed to provide access to such information;

(C) implementing appropriate measures to assure the physical and electronic security of confidential data;

(D) establishing a system of records that identifies individuals accessing confidential data and the project for which the data were required; and

(E) being prepared to document their compliance with safeguard principles to other agencies authorized by law to monitor such compliance.

44 USC 3501 note.

SEC. 524. SHARING OF BUSINESS DATA AMONG DESIGNATED STATISTICAL AGENCIES.

(a) IN GENERAL.—A Designated Statistical Agency may provide business data in an identifiable form to another Designated Statistical Agency under the terms of a written agreement among the agencies sharing the business data that specifies—

(1) the business data to be shared;

(2) the statistical purposes for which the business data are to be used;

(3) the officers, employees, and agents authorized to examine the business data to be shared; and

(4) appropriate security procedures to safeguard the confidentiality of the business data.

(b) RESPONSIBILITIES OF AGENCIES UNDER OTHER LAWS.—The provision of business data by an agency to a Designated Statistical Agency under this subtitle shall in no way alter the responsibility of the agency providing the data under other statutes (including section 552 of title 5, United States Code (popularly known as the Freedom of Information Act), and section 552b of title 5, United States Code (popularly known as the Privacy Act of 1974)) with respect to the provision or withholding of such information by the agency providing the data.

(c) RESPONSIBILITIES OF OFFICERS, EMPLOYEES, AND AGENTS.—Examination of business data in identifiable form shall be limited to the officers, employees, and agents authorized to examine the individual reports in accordance with written agreements pursuant to this section. Officers, employees, and agents of a Designated Statistical Agency who receive data pursuant to this subtitle shall be subject to all provisions of law, including penalties, that relate—

(1) to the unlawful provision of the business data that would apply to the officers, employees, and agents of the agency that originally obtained the information; and

(2) to the unlawful disclosure of the business data that would apply to officers, employees, and agents of the agency that originally obtained the information.

(d) NOTICE.—Whenever a written agreement concerns data that respondents were required by law to report and the respondents were not informed that the data could be shared among the Designated Statistical Agencies, for exclusively statistical purposes, the terms of such agreement shall be described in a public notice issued by the agency that intends to provide the data. Such notice shall allow a minimum of 60 days for public comment.

Public information.

SEC. 525. LIMITATIONS ON USE OF BUSINESS DATA PROVIDED BY DESIGNATED STATISTICAL AGENCIES.

44 USC 3501 note.

(a) USE, GENERALLY.—Business data provided by a Designated Statistical Agency pursuant to this subtitle shall be used exclusively for statistical purposes.

(b) PUBLICATION.—Publication of business data acquired by a Designated Statistical Agency shall occur in a manner whereby the data furnished by any particular respondent are not in identifiable form.

SEC. 526. CONFORMING AMENDMENTS.

44 USC 3501 note.

(a) DEPARTMENT OF COMMERCE.—Section 1 of the Act of January 27, 1938 (15 U.S.C. 176a) is amended by striking "The" and inserting "Except as provided in the Confidential Information Protection and Statistical Efficiency Act of 2002, the".

(b) TITLE 13.—Chapter 10 of title 13, United States Code, is amended—

(1) by adding after section 401 the following:

"§ 402. Providing business data to Designated Statistical Agencies

"The Bureau of the Census may provide business data to the Bureau of Economic Analysis and the Bureau of Labor Statistics ('Designated Statistical Agencies') if such information is required for an authorized statistical purpose and the provision is the subject of a written agreement with that Designated Statistical Agency, or their successors, as defined in the Confidential Information Protection and Statistical Efficiency Act of 2002."; and

(2) in the table of sections for the chapter by adding after the item relating to section 401 the following:

"402. Providing business data to Designated Statistical Agencies.".

Executive Order 13505—Removing Barriers to Responsible Scientific Research Involving Human Stem Cells

March 9, 2009

By the authority vested in me as President by the Constitution and the laws of the United States of America, it is hereby ordered as follows:

Section 1. Policy. Research involving human embryonic stem cells and human non-embryonic stem cells has the potential to lead to better understanding and treatment of many disabling diseases and conditions. Advances over the past decade in this promising scientific field have been encouraging, leading to broad agreement in the scientific community that the research should be supported by Federal funds.

For the past 8 years, the authority of the Department of Health and Human Services, including the National Institutes of Health (NIH), to fund and conduct human embryonic stem cell research has been limited by Presidential actions. The purpose of this order is to remove these limitations on scientific inquiry, to expand NIH support for the exploration of human stem cell research, and in so doing to enhance the contribution of America's scientists to important new discoveries and new therapies for the benefit of humankind.

Sec. 2. Research. The Secretary of Health and Human Services (Secretary), through the Director of NIH, may support and conduct responsible, scientifically worthy human stem cell research, including human embryonic stem cell research, to the extent permitted by law.

Sec. 3. Guidance. Within 120 days from the date of this order, the Secretary, through the Director of NIH, shall review existing NIH guidance and other widely recognized guidelines on human stem cell research, including provisions establishing appropriate safeguards, and issue new NIH guidance on such research that is consistent with this order. The Secretary, through NIH, shall review and update such guidance periodically, as appropriate.

Sec. 4. General Provisions. (a) This order shall be implemented consistent with applicable law and subject to the availability of appropriations.

(b) Nothing in this order shall be construed to impair or otherwise affect:

(i) authority granted by law to an executive department, agency, or the head thereof; or

(ii) functions of the Director of the Office of Management and Budget relating to budgetary, administrative, or legislative proposals.

(c) This order is not intended to, and does not, create any right or benefit, substantive or procedural, enforceable at law or in equity, by any party against the United States, its departments, agencies, or entities, its officers, employees, or agents, or any other person.

Sec. 5. Revocations. (a) The Presidential statement of August 9, 2001, limiting Federal funding for research involving human embryonic stem cells, shall have no further effect as a statement of governmental policy.

(b) Executive Order 13435 of June 20, 2007, which supplements the August 9, 2001, statement on human embryonic stem cell research, is revoked.

How to complete your ethics Self-Assessment

This document is published by the European Commission, DG Research and Innovation. Neither the European Commission nor any person acting on their behalf is responsible for the use which might be made of the information contained herein or for any errors which, despite careful preparation and checking, may appear. This is an expert's ethics guidance document to raise awareness in the scientific community and does not constitute official EU guidance.

Research and Innovation

IMPORTANT NOTICE

This document aims to assist you in getting your proposal 'ethics-ready' for Horizon 2020 funding (i.e. to identify and deal correctly with any ethics issues that may arise from it). It thus provides help both for the 'ethics issues table' in Part A of your proposal and will help you both for completing that table and the ethics self-assessment in Part B of your proposal (see proposal templates on the Participant Portal).

This document is however no more than a 'how to' guide. It covers the majority of ethics issues that normally arise in research projects and gives advice on how to deal with classic cases. Cases that are not covered must therefore be dealt with outside this guide.

The ethics self-assessment will become part of your grant agreement (in Annex 1, as description of the action, ethics requirements, etc.) and may thus lead to binding obligations that may later on be checked during ethics checks, reviews and audits.

The time that you invest in this self-assessment is therefore not wasted. It will actually improve your research results and:

- your proposed research will be compliant with applicable international, EU and national law
- your proposal will be more rapidly processed during the Horizon 2020 proposal selection procedure
- the results of your research can be more easily published in internationally refereed journals
- you will contribute to the responsible conduct of research, ensuring that society needs and expectations are better taken into account.

Consider that ethics issues arise in many areas of research. Apart from the obvious, the medical field, research protocols in social sciences, ethnography, psychology, environmental studies, security research, etc. might involve the voluntary participation of research subjects and the collection of data that might be considered as personal. You must protect your volunteers and also protect yourself (and your researcher colleagues).

Start thinking about ethics while designing your research protocols. Do not wait until the last minute to seek advice or check what is required under national and European legislation.

Ethics also matter for scholarly publication. Major scientific journals in many areas will increasingly require ethics committee approval before publishing research articles. Thus, you should be prepared for ethics procedures even if your research is funded by sources other than Horizon 2020.

Your first source should always be at your institution. We invite you actively to seek advice from colleagues with expertise in the ethics of research: specialised ethics departments, relevant managers in your university/research organisation, hospital research ethics committees, ethics advisors in your company, data protection officers, etc. They will be able to provide you with the necessary information targeted at your specific needs and legal environment.

Consider involving/appointing an ethics adviser/advisory board. An ethics adviser can help you from the beginning of your project to deal with ethical issues and put in place the procedures to handle them appropriately. If your research includes several ethical concerns or involves several significant or complex ethical issues (such as participation of children from developing countries, NHPs, potential malevolent use or vulnerable populations) it is suggested to appoint an ethics advisor or ethics advisory board with several experts with varied expertise. This may also be set as an ethics requirement by the Commission/Agency during the selection procedure. For more information on ethics advisers/advisory boards (see section 6).

1. Human embryos and foetuses

This section refers to research involving human embryonic stem cells (hESC), human embryos or foetuses.

⚠ The following fields of research cannot be financed at all under Horizon 2020 (and therefore may not be part of any proposal):

- research activities aiming at human cloning for reproductive purposes
- research activity intended to modify the genetics of human beings that could make such changes heritable (with the exception of research relating to cancer treatment of the gonads, which may be financed)
- research activities intended to create human embryos solely for the purpose of research or for the purpose of stem cell procurement, including by means of somatic cell nuclear transfer.[1]

⚠ Research on human stem cells (both adult and embryonic) may be financed — depending both on the contents of the scientific proposal and the legal framework of the Member States involved. No funding will be granted for research activities that are prohibited in all the Member States. No activity will be funded in a Member State where such activity is forbidden.[2]

1.1 Ethics issues checklist

1.2 How to deal with the issues?

Your research must comply with:

- ethical principles
- applicable international, EU and national law (in particular, the Statement of the Commission related to research activities involving human embryonic stem cells[3]).

For research activities involving human embryonic stem cells (hESC): this implies specifically that you must make sure that:

- cells were not derived from embryos specially created for research or by somatic cell nuclear transfer
- the project only uses existing cultured cell lines
- cell lines were derived from supernumerary non-implanted embryos resulting from in vitro fertilisation
- informed consent has been obtained for the use of donated embryos for the derivation of the cell lines
- personal data and privacy of donors of embryos for the derivation of the cells are protected
- no financial inducements were provided for the donation of embryos used for derivation of the cell lines.

[3] See Article 19(1) of the Horizon 2020 Regulation (EU) No 1291/2013.

⚠ Compliance with these specific conditions must be confirmed in a statement to be provided to the Commission/Agency.

Moreover, under national law, research on human embryonic stem cells (hESC) is normally subject to strict licensing and control.[4]

For research on human embryos: you must obtain free and fully informed consent of the donors (see section 2).

1.3 What do you need to provide?

If your proposal raises one of the issues listed in the ethics issue checklist above, you must proceed to the ethics self-assessment in Part B of your proposal (i.e. section 5 of the 'Technical Annex').

Your proposal must include the information indicated in the ethics issues checklist and any of the documents that are already available. (⚠ For documents that are not yet available, provide an approximate timeline for their submission.)

2. Humans

This section refers to any research involving work with humans ('research or study participants'), regardless of its nature or topic.

Examples: collection of biological samples, personal data, medical interventions, interviews, observations, tracking or the secondary use of information provided for other purposes, e.g. other research projects, officially collected information, social media sites, etc.

For research involving processing of genetic information, see also section 4.

2.3 How to deal with the issues?

Your research must comply with:

- ethical principles
- applicable international, EU and national law.

This implies that you must ensure respect for people and for human dignity, fair distribution of research benefits and burden and protecting the values, rights and interests of the research participants.

Moreover, you must obtain:

- the necessary ethics approvals (if required)
- free and fully informed consent of the research participants.

Informed consent

Participation of persons must be entirely voluntary and you must obtain (and clearly document) their informed consent in advance.

⚠ No consent is required if national law provides for an exception (e.g. in the public interest).

Participants must be provided with an 'informed consent form' and detailed 'information sheets' that:

- are in a language and in terms fully understandable to them
- describe the aims, methods and implications of the research, the nature of the participation and any benefits, risks or discomfort that might be involved
- explicitly state that participation is voluntary and that anyone has the right to refuse to participate and to withdraw their participation, samples or data at any time — without any consequences
- indicate how biological samples and data will be collected, protected during the project and either destroyed or reused subsequently
- indicate what procedures will be implemented in the event of unexpected or incidental findings (in particular, if the participants have the right to know, or not to know, of any such findings).

You must ensure that the potential participant has fully understood the information and does not feel pressured or forced to give consent.

Consent must normally be given in writing (e.g. by signing the 'informed consent form' and 'information sheets').

If the consent cannot be given in writing, for example because of illiteracy, the non-written consent must be formally documented and independently witnessed.

Specific cases:

Research involving children (or other persons unable to give consent, e.g. certain elderly populations, persons judged as lacking mental capacity) — You must obtain informed consent from the legally authorised representative and ensure that they have sufficient information to enable them to provide this on behalf and in the best interests of the participants. Whenever possible, the assent of the participants should be obtained in addition to the consent of the parents or legal representatives. If necessary, re-consent must be asked by the participants at the age of maturity. Dissent should be respected.

In social sciences and humanities research, there may be situations where standard procedures for obtaining written informed consent are harmful or offensive to the participants (rather than providing them with protection). In such cases, explain how alternative consent will be gained (e.g. orally). If deception is to be used, retrospective informed consent should be obtained and participants must be debriefed. Deception requires strong justification and appropriate assessment of the impact and the risk incurred by both researchers and participants.

For medical and human research you must follow the procedures for informed consent that are described in the Declaration of Helsinki and the Oviedo Bioethics Convention (see below).

What do you need to provide?

Informed Consent Forms + Information Sheets (⚠ It is sufficient if you provide examples of the different types of Forms and Information Sheets you will use (one example per type)).

You must also ensure that your research methodologies do not result in discriminatory practices or unfair treatment. ⚠ As a general principle, benefits should be maximised and harm/risks minimised.

In addition, when conducting surveys, interviews or focus groups where personal information is gathered and stored, you must also pay attention to privacy, data protection, data management (see also section 4) and the health and safety of participants (see section 10).

Specific cases:

Research involving children (or other persons unable to give consent) should be carried out only if:

- studies with consenting adults would not be effective
- there is only a minimal risk and burden to the participants and
- the results of the research will benefit the individual or the group represented by the participant.

Social sciences and humanities research — Research in this field often involves working with human participants and particular methodological tools (e.g. surveys, questionnaires, interviews, standardised tests, direct observation, ethnography, recordings, experiments with volunteers, and whether these include physical interventions).

You must therefore clarify the ethical implications of the chosen methodologies.

Example:

You should describe the sampling methods or recruitment procedures and discuss whether they could result in discriminatory practices. If such practices are inevitable, as a consequence of the methodology, describe any action to be taken to mitigate them.

For your grant proposal, you should also provide an assessment of risks, stating explicitly what kinds of harm (psychological, social, legal, economic, environmental, etc.) might occur, the likelihood of subjects actually incurring such harm, and the procedures that you will take to minimise them.

Research entailing more than minimal risk involve typically:

- potentially vulnerable groups and people unable to give informed consent
- personal or sensitive topics, which might induce psychological stress, anxiety or humiliation

- deception
- risks to researcher safety or
- seeking respondents through the internet/social media (e.g. using identifiable visual images or where sensitive issues are discussed).

Particular attention must be paid to vulnerable categories of individuals such as children, patients, discriminated people, minorities, persons unable to give consent, people of dissenting opinion, immigrant or minority communities, sex workers, etc.

If your research involves children or other persons unable to make decisions for themselves, you must maintain an active relationship with their legal guardians and/or carers; you must not only seek their consent, but also allow them to monitor the research.

⚠ Ensure that data are kept securely and that publication (including publication on the internet) does not lead (either directly or indirectly) to a breach of agreed confidentiality and anonymity.

In rare cases, there may be a need to override agreements on confidentiality and anonymity (e.g. if maintaining confidentiality facilitates illegal behaviour such as drug dealing, child abuse, etc. that has come to light in the course of the research). In such circumstances, you must carefully consider disclosure to the appropriate authorities. Insofar as it does not undermine disclosure, you must inform the participants or their guardians of your intentions and the reasons for disclosure. You should also consider the technical aspects of how the data for your research will be collected and stored.

Data collection using electronic encoding tools (digital recorders or cameras) should be given special attention (see also section 4). You should also discuss these issues with your organisation's data protection officer.

Medical studies — Medical research is specifically addressed by the Declaration of Helsinki.

Your grant proposal must also comply with:

- the principles enshrined in the Oviedo Bioethics Convention and
- EU Regulation No 536/2014 of the European Parliament and of the Council on clinical trials on medicinal products for human use, and repealing Directive 2001/20/EC.

2.4 What do you need to provide?

If your proposal raises one of the issues listed in the ethics issue checklist above, you must proceed to the ethics self-assessment in Part B of your proposal (i.e. section 5 of the 'Technical Annex').

Your grant proposal must include the information indicated in the ethics issues checklist and any of the documents that are already available. (⚠ For documents that are not yet available, provide an approximate timeline for their submission.)

3. Human cells/tissues

This section refers to research using, producing or collecting human cells or tissues.

Such cells or tissues may:

- be obtained from commercial sources
- originate from another laboratory, institution or biobank
- be produced or collected by you during previous research activities or
- be produced or collected by you as part of this research project.

3.1 Ethics issues checklist

Details on the duration of storage and what you will do with the material at the end of the research. Confirm that informed consent has been obtained.	Informed Consent Forms + Information Sheets.

3.2 How to deal with the issues?

Your research must comply with:

- ethical principles
- applicable international, EU and national law (in particular, EU Directive 2004/23/EC).

  Under this Directive, the handling of cells and tissues is subject to specific rules (in particular, concerning donor selection/protection; accreditation/designation/authorisation/ licensing of tissue establishments and tissue and cell preparation processes; quality management of cells and tissues; procurement, processing, labelling, packaging, distribution, traceability, and imports and exports of cells and tissues from and to third countries).

The main obligations are to:

- keep track of the origin of the cells and tissues you use, produce or collect and to obtain:

- the necessary accreditation/designation/authorisation/licensing for using, producing or collecting the cells or tissues
- free and fully informed consent of the donors (see section 2).

Specific cases:

Cells or tissues from clinical practice (secondary use) — For human cells or tissues derived by you or others from clinical practice (e.g. waste material from surgery or other operations) provide evidence (e.g.

copies of examples of informed consent documentation) that the donors have given informed consent (see section 2) for the use of their waste cells or tissues (either specifically for the research or generally, for any secondary use).

If, for the purposes of your research, you intend to collect more additional material than would normally be collected during the standard clinical procedure (e.g. a larger than normal tissue sample or a sample that includes some additional adjacent material), you must ensure informed consent also about the collection of additional material. You must also explain the need for obtaining the additional material in your grant proposal and show that you obtained appropriate ethics approvals.

Secondary use for future research — If you will store the material for future use in other projects, you must confirm that you have obtained the donor's consent to such secondary use, state the legislation under which the material will be stored, and provide information on the duration of storage and what you will do with the material at the end of the research.

Biobanking — Biobanks raise significant ethical issues concerning informed consent and data privacy.

'Biobanks' are repositories for the storage of biological samples (usually human) and play a significant role in biomedical research. These 'libraries' provide researchers with access to large numbers of tissue samples, genetic material and associated data.

If your project has the aim or effect of setting up a biobank, you must ensure that there is strict compliance with appropriate European and national ethical standards (in particular, regarding data privacy; see section 4).

You must confirm that informed consent has been obtained and show that you have obtained all necessary ethics approvals (or that you are exempted under national law).

⚠ No samples/data may be placed in the biobank before all appropriate consents and ethics approvals have been obtained

You will need to provide a report on key aspects of the biobank's activities, including in particular:

- information on which donors will be excluded/included (e.g. competent adults, children and minors, adults unable to provide informed consent, individuals in an emergency setting, etc.)
- details on the material that will be 'banked', including:
  - personal (coded or fully identifiable) biosamples
  - personal information associated with a sample (e.g. name/code, gender, age, etc.)
  - personal data resulting from analysis of a sample (e.g. analysis of genetic material or a genome)
  - anonymised biosamples
  - anonymised data resulting from analysis of a sample (from which individuals could be identified) and
  - epidemiological (population level) data
- information on the standard procedures for:
  - accepting material into the biobank,
  - processes and standards on sample-quality assurance and ensuring accuracy of data and information
  - handling requests for release of samples/data from the biobank (including fair and just financial arrangements and benefit-sharing for third countries).

Genetic testing — For using or storing human cells or tissues for genetic testing, you must obtain informed consent (see section 2) of the donor on the genetic testing, and show that you obtained approval from the relevant ethics and data protection bodies; and any licence required under national legislation.

Transfer to/from third countries — If your research project involves the transfer of cells and tissues from/to third countries, you must comply with the specific provisions on import/export under Directive 2004/23/EC (see also section 6).

Moreover, since human cells and tissues constitute personal data, you must also comply with the rules on data transfer to third countries (see section 4).

3.3 What do you need to provide?

If your proposal raises one of the issues listed in the ethics issue checklist above, you must proceed to the ethics self-assessment in Part B of your proposal (i.e. section 5 of the 'Technical Annex').

Your grant proposal must include the information indicated in the ethics issues checklist and any of the documents that are already available. (⚠ For documents that are not yet available, provide an approximate timeline for their submission.)

4. Personal data

This section concerns research which involves collecting or processing of personal data, regardless of the method by which they are/were collected (e.g. through interviews, questionnaires, direct online retrieval etc.).

'Personal data' means any information, private or professional, which relates to an identified or identifiable natural person (for the full definition, see Article 2(a) of EU Directive 95/46/EC).

> Examples: name, address, identification number, e-mail, CV, bank account number, phone number, medical records.

There are various potential identifiers, including full name, pseudonyms, occupation, address or any combination of these.

⚠ Individuals are not considered 'identifiable', if identifying them requires excessive effort.

Completely anonymised data does not fall under the data privacy rules (as from the moment is has been completely anonymised).

'Processing of personal data' means any operation (or set of operations) which is performed on personal data, either manually or by automatic means. This includes:

- collection (digital audio recording, digital video caption, etc.)
- recording
- organisation and storage (cloud, LAN or WAN servers)
- adaptation or alteration (merging sets, appification, etc.)
- retrieval and consultation
- use
- disclosure by transmission, dissemination or otherwise making available (share, exchange, transfer)
- alignment or combination
- blocking, deleting or destruction.

> Examples: creating a mailing list or a list of participants; managing a database; accounting records on personnel costs; time-sheets; project planning with names.

⚠ Processing covers normally any action that uses data for research purposes (including if interviewees, human volunteers, patients, etc. are not actively included in the research).

Data may come from any type of research activity (ICT research, genetic sample collection, tissue storage, personal records (financial, criminal, education, etc.), lifestyle and health information, family histories, physical characteristics, gender and ethnic background, location tracking and domicile information, etc.).

4.1 Ethics issues checklist

Section 4: PROTECTION OF PERSONAL DATA	YES/NO		Page	Information to be provided	Documents to be provided
Does your research involve personal data collection and/or processing?	☐	☐		Details on your procedures for data collection, storage, protection, retention, transfer, destruction or re-use (including, collection methodology (digital recording, picture, etc.), methods of storage and exchange (LAN, cloud, etc.), data structure and preservation (encryption, anonymisation, etc.), data-merging or exchange plan, commercial exploitation of data sets, etc.). Details on your data safety procedures (protective measures to avoid unforeseen, usage or disclosure, including mosaic effect, i.e. obtaining identification by merging multiple sources). Confirm that informed consent has been obtained. Details on data transfers to third countries (type of data transferred and country to which it is transferred; for US/Canada: information if recipient is 'safe harbour recipient'). plus:	Copies of notifications/authorisations for the collection and/or processing of the personal data (if required). Informed Consent Forms + Information Sheets + Other consent documents (opt in processes, etc.) (if relevant). Copy of authorisation for data transfer to third country (if required) For US/Canada: print-out from safe harbour list plus:

If YES:	- Does it involve the collection or processing of sensitive personal data (e.g. health, sexual lifestyle, ethnicity, political opinion, religious or philosophical conviction)?	☐	☐			Copy of notification/authorisation for processing of sensitive data (if required)
	- Does it involve processing of genetic information?	☐	☐
	- Does it involve tracking or observation of participants (e.g. surveillance or localization data, and Wan data, such as IP address, MACs, cookies etc.)?	☐	☐		Details on methods used for tracking or observing participants.	Copy of notification/authorisation for tracking or observation (if required)
Does your research involve further processing of previously collected personal data ('secondary use') *(including use of pre-existing data sets or sources, merging existing data sets, sharing data with non-EU member states)?		☐	☐		Details on the database used or of the source of the data. Details on your procedures for data processing. Details on your data safety procedures (protective measures to avoid unforeseen, usage or disclosure, including mosaic effect, i.e. obtaining identification by merging multiple sources). Confirm that data is openly and publicly accessible or that consent for secondary use has been obtained (and details on how this consent was obtained (automatic opt in, etc.)). Confirm permissions by the owner/manager of the data sets.	Evidence of open public access (e.g. print screen from website). Informed Consent Forms + Information Sheets + other consent documents (opt in processes, etc.). Copies of permissions (if required).

4.2 How to deal with the issues?

Your research must comply with:

- ethical principles
- applicable international, EU and national law (in particular, EU Directive 95/46/EC).

  Under this Directive, personal data must be processed according to certain principles and conditions that aim to limit the impact on the persons concerned and ensure data quality and confidentiality. Certain categories of data are more 'sensitive' than others (e.g. health, sexual lifestyle, ethnicity, political opinion, religious or philosophical conviction) and these may only be processed according to specific rules.

  ⚠ The Directive is currently under revision. Any changes in the legislation will have an effect on your research, and must therefore be monitored.

You may collect and process data only if and insofar as it is really necessary for your research.

Collecting personal data (for example, on religion, sexual orientation, race, ethnicity, etc.) that is not essential to your research may moreover expose you to allegations of 'hidden objectives' or 'mission creep' — i.e. information being collected with permission for one purpose and being used or made available, including online, for another reason, without additional permission.

You must moreover obtain:

- the necessary notifications/authorisations for collecting and processing the data (including specific authorisations, if applicable)
- free and fully informed consent of the persons concerned ('data subjects') (see section 2).

Specific cases:

Secondary use — If you use secondary data in your research, it must originate from a public source or be authorised for use in your research (either specifically for your research or generally for any secondary use).

Recording of information — Recorded information (audio and/or visual) will need special consideration by your data controller, to ensure that privacy and personal identities are protected.

Sensitive data — If you collect or process sensitive data (e.g. health, sexual lifestyle, ethnicity, political opinion, religious or philosophical conviction), you may require a specific authorisation by the national data protection authority.

If you collect or process health data, you should refer to the processes recommended in the Ilves report on e-health.

Genetic information is currently not considered sensitive data, unless used in the context of health data.

Tracking or observing of participants may require a specific authorisation from the national data protection authority.

Data transfer within EU/EEA countries — Data transfers within the EU/EEA are not subject to specific requirements (i.e. specific authorisations or other restrictions). You only need to comply with the general requirements of Directive 95/46/EC.

Data transfer to third countries — Data transfers to third countries are normally subject to the following rules:

- for third countries on the Commission list of countries offering adequate protection: no additional requirements

  Currently (April 2014) this list covers: Andorra, Argentina, Australia, Canada (⚠ only private (commercial) sector, not public sector), Switzerland, the Faroe Islands, Guernsey, Israel, the Isle of Man, Jersey, New Zealand, Uruguay.

- for US: no additional requirements if recipient is 'safe harbour recipient' (see US Department of Commerce safe harbour list)

  'Safe Harbour' is a set of rules on privacy and data protection established by the US Department of Commerce, to which US organisations and companies can commit on a voluntary basis. If they do, they are entered in the 'safe harbour list'.

  ⚠ Following recent public debate, the safe harbour concept is under discussion and the European Parliament is considering its suspension. You must therefore monitor possible changes and take them into account for your research (for instance via the DG Justice data protection news room).

- for other third countries: you must make a data transfer agreement with the recipient and obtain a specific authorisation by the national data protection authority (of the Member State from which you are sending the data).

Electronic data

Regarding the processing of personal data and the protection of privacy in the electronic communications sector, as well as the retention of data generated or processed in connection with the provision of publicly available electronic communications services or of public communications networks (e.g. cloud, big data, open data, cookies etc.) your research must comply with the relevant legislation (in particular EU Directive 2002/58/EC and 2006/24/EC).

4.3 What do you need to provide?

If your proposal raises one of the issues listed in the ethics issue checklist above, you must proceed to the ethics self-assessment in Part B of your proposal (i.e. section 5 of the 'Technical Annex').

Your grant proposal must include the information indicated in the ethics issues checklist and any of the documents that are already available. (⚠ For documents that are not yet available, provide an approximate timeline for their submission.)

Examples:

If you are collecting personal information, interviewing, observing or tracking people, or recording data or audio/visual information, you need fully informed consent (see section 2) from your research subjects and provide a clear description of the procedures that you will use for data control and anonymisation.

5. Animals

This section refers to research involving animals.

5.1 Ethics issues checklist

Copies of training certificates/ personnel licences of the staff involved in animal experiments. Personal history file of cats, dogs plus:

	- Are they non-human primates (NHP) (e.g. monkeys, chimpanzees, gorillas, etc)?	☐	☐		Explanation why NHPs are the only suitable research subjects to achieve the scientific objectives. Details on the purpose of the animal testing. Details on provenance of the animals.	Personal history file of NHP
	- Are they genetically modified?	☐	☐		Details of the phenotype and any inherent suffering expected. Details on scientific justification for producing such animals. Details on measures you intend to apply to minimise suffering in the breeding, maintenance of the colony and use of the GM animals.	Copies of GMO authorisations.

Details on measures you intend to apply to minimise suffering in the breeding, maintenance of the colony and use of the GM animals.	Copies of authorisations for cloning (if required).
	- Are they an endangered species?	☐	☐		Details on why there is no alternative to the use of this species. Details on the purpose of the research.	Copies of authorisations for supply of endangered animal species (including CITES).

5.2 How to deal with the issues?

Your research must comply with:

- ethical principles
- applicable international, EU and national law (in particular, EU Directive 2010/63/EU).

  This Directive aims at limiting the use of animal testing for scientific purposes and provides for common standards for the welfare of animals that are used (including authorisations, restrictions for the use of certain kinds of animals, standards for procedures, minimum requirements for personnel, recording and traceability, care and accommodation).

  ⚠ Some EU Member States have stricter rules.

This means that you must favour alternatives to animal use and implement the principles of replacement, reduction and refinement (‘three Rs’).

‘Replacement’ means replacing animal use by an alternative method or testing strategy (without use of live animals).

Examples:

‘Higher' animals can be replaced with 'lower' animals: Microorganisms, plants, eggs, reptiles, amphibians, and invertebrates may be used in some studies to replace warm-blooded animals.

Live animals may be replaced with non-animal models, such as dummies for an introduction to dissection for teaching the structure of the animal or the human body, mechanical or computer models, audio-visual aids, or in vitro modelling.

‘Reduction’ means to reduce the number of animals used.

‘Refinement’ means to improve breeding, accommodation and care of animals and methods used, in order to minimise pain, suffering, distress or lasting harm to the animals.

Moreover, you must obtain:

- the necessary authorisations for the supply of animals and the animal experiments (and other specific authorisations, if applicable).

⚠ All relevant national authorisations must be in place before use of animals can commence.

Specific cases:

Non-human primates (NHPs) — Being so close to human beings, the use of non-human primates for experiments raises particular ethics concerns. Directive 2010/63/EU sets strict limits to their use: They may only be used for specific research purposes (of primary importance) and only if there is no alternative.[5] Moreover, only offspring of non-human primates which have been bred in captivity or which are sourced from self-sustaining colonies may be used.[6]

⚠ The use of great apes requires very exceptional justification and must be specifically authorised by the Commission/Agency.

[5] See Article 8 of Directive 2010/63/EU.
[6] See Article 10 of Directive 2010/63/EU.

Endangered species — Endangered species cannot be used, except for very important research purposes and where there is no alternative non-endangered species that will meet the scientific objective.[7]

In this case, you should follow agreed international practices (CITES).

5.3 What do you need to provide?

If your proposal raises one of the issues listed in the ethics issue checklist above, you must proceed to the ethics self-assessment in Part B of your proposal (i.e. section 5 of the 'Technical Annex').

Your grant proposal must include the information indicated in the ethics issues checklist and any of the documents that are already available. (⚠ For documents that are not yet available, provide an approximate timeline for their submission.)

6. Third countries

This section concerns research that involves third countries (i.e. non EU Member States).

This is the case where:

- (parts of) research activities are carried out in a third country
- participants or resources come from a third country
- material is imported/exported from/to a third country.

Being outside the reach of European laws and standards, such research can raise specific ethical issues (particularly in developing countries), in particular:

- exploitation of research participants
- exploitation of local resources
- risks for researchers and staff
- research that is prohibited in the EU.

⚠ Horizon 2020 funding cannot be granted for activities carried out outside the EU if they are prohibited in all Member States.[8]

If your research involves low and/or lower-middle income countries, are any benefit-sharing actions planned?	☐	☐		Details on benefit sharing measures. Details on responsiveness to local research needs. Details on procedures to facilitate effective capacity building.
Could the situation in the country put the individuals taking part in the research at risk?	☐	☐		Details on safety measures you intend to apply, including personnel training and insurance cover.

6.2 How to deal with the issues?

Specific cases:

Research carried out in a third country — For research activities carried out outside the EU, it is not sufficient that the activity is accepted and complies with the legal obligations of the third country; you must also:

- confirm that the research is compatible with EU and international law
- show that it could have been legally conducted in (at least) one of the EU Member States[9].

  This can be done by submitting the approval of a European ethics committee (e.g. the ethics committee of the institution hosting the researcher(s) that conduct the activity).

  ⚠ Getting such approval is mandatory when there is no competent structure in the third country. In this case, you must moreover implement other safeguards (e.g. appoint an independent ethics adviser from the third country or an ethics advisory board).

Ethics advisers/advisory boards

A suitably experienced ethics adviser can help you to deal with ethical issues and putting into place the procedures to handle these appropriately if your research includes several ethical concerns.

If your research involves several significant or complex ethical issues, you should appoint an ethics advisory board with several experts with varied expertise.

If you appoint an ethics adviser/advisory board, it is important that they are:

- external to the project and to the host institution
- totally independent and
- free from any conflict of interest.

Your university or institution (or members of your consortium) may have experience with an ethics adviser or members of an ethics advisory board and may be in a position to suggest potential candidates.

The ethics adviser or ethics advisory board should maintain an overview of the work throughout the whole course of your project and help you to think ahead about possible problems that might arise and how they can be addressed. Their experience will help you check for compliance with ethical standards within the relevant research fields. They will also be responsible for reporting to you and to the Commission, on a regular basis, on ethics concerns as they arise and the continuing probity of your studies.

If you appoint an ethics adviser or set up an ethics advisory board, you should work with them on a regular basis throughout your project. Their oversight role should be fully integrated into your research activities and they should work closely with you and your colleagues so they are fully aware of all the developments as your research progresses. Your ethics advisers/ethics advisory board should be an essential element in your project management structure.

What do you need to provide?

You must provide:

- the name and contact information for persons suggested
- the terms of reference for their involvement and the deliverables expected
- their declarations of no conflict of interest.

Resources from a third country — Any use of local resources (especially animal and/or human tissue samples, genetic material, live animals, human remains, materials of historical value, endangered fauna or flora samples) must show respect to cultural traditions and share benefits (i.e. also benefit local participants and their communities, involve local researchers – as equal partners – and respond also to local research needs).

This is particularly important for low income and lower-middle income countries (see Convention on Biological Diversity and Declaration of Helsinki).

For access to genetic resources, you must also comply with the Nagoya Protocol on Access and Benefit Sharing and EU Regulation (EU) No 511/2014 which implements this Protocol.

Import/export of material — If genetic resources are transferred across borders, the law of the provider country may provide for the need to obtain an authorisationfor the transfer. In addition, an agreement must be provided which describes the conditions for the export and the terms of utilisation and, if applicable, relevant benefit-sharing measures.

ⓘ For data transfers, see section 4.

Sending researchers to a third country — Third countries are not necessarily less safe than EU countries. Nevertheless, a risk assessment must be undertaken when sending researchers abroad and appropriate safety measures must be taken. These may include insurance cover or health and safety measures, such as no lone working, contact points via phone, counselling support, etc. (see also section 7).

6.3 What do you need to provide?

If your proposal raises one of the issues listed in the ethics issue checklist above, you must proceed to the ethics self-assessment in Part B of your proposal (i.e. section 5 of the 'Technical Annex').

Your grant proposal must include the information indicated in the ethics issues checklist and any of the documents that are already available. (⚠ For documents that are not yet available, provide an approximate timeline for their submission.)

7. Environment & Health and Safety

This section concerns research that may have a negative impact on:

- the environment or
- the health and safety of the researchers involved.

This may be due to any of the following:

- the experimental design of the research itself
- undesirable side-effects of the technologies used.

7.1 Environment

7.1.1 Ethics issues checklist

Section 7: ENVIRONMENT & HEALTH AND SAFETY	YES/NO		Page	Information to be provided	Documents to be provided
Does your research involve the use of elements that may cause harm to the environment, animals or plants? For research involving animal experiments, see section 5.	☐	☐		Risk-benefit analysis. Show how you apply the precautionary principle (if relevant). Details on safety measures you intend to apply. plus:	Safety classification of laboratory. Copy of GMO and other authorisations (if required) plus:
Does your research deal with endangered fauna and/or flora /protected areas?	☐	☐			Specific authorisations (if required).

7.1.2 How to deal with the issues?

Your research must comply with:

- ethical principles

– applicable international, EU and national law (in particular, the precautionary principle and the legislation on nature conservation and pollution control).

The precautionary principle requires that — where scientific evidence suggests that serious risks are plausible — you must prove that a new technology will not harm the environment.

The legislation on nature conservation and pollution control includes the Habitats Directive 92/43/EEC, the Wild Birds Directive 79/409/EEC, Regulation (EC) No 338/97 on protection of wild fauna, the GMO Directive 2009/41/EC and the Cartagena Protocol on Biosafety.

This means that you must assess potential risks to the environment and to avoid or minimise such risks.

Moreover, you must obtain:

– the necessary environmental authorisations (if applicable).

⚠ All relevant national authorisations must be in place before your research can commence.

7.1.3 What do you need to provide?

If your proposal raises one of the issues listed in the ethics issue checklist above, you must proceed to the ethics self-assessment in Part B of your proposal (i.e. section 5 of the 'Technical Annex').

Your grant proposal must include the information indicated in the ethics issues checklist and any of the documents that are already available. (⚠ For documents that are not yet available, provide an approximate timeline for their submission.)

7.2 Health and Safety

The health and safety of all human participants in research, either as subjects, as investigators or as unconcerned third parties, must be a priority in all research studies.

The kinds of risk to researcher safety will vary according to the nature of the discipline, the topic and the research site. Only the 'researcher in the field' will be fully able to assess safety concerns and/or their willingness to tolerate risks.

However, both research in familiar and unfamiliar settings can hold added safety concerns. Even in familiar settings, surprising, non-routine things can happen which pose safety risks.

Moreover, in certain types of research, the risk of harm to the researcher is caused by the topic of study or by the actions of the researchers themselves. Lack of caution or failure to obey standard procedures may lead to physical or psychological harm.

⚠ Improved safety practices may impose additional cost burdens which can be included as an element in the estimated budget for your proposal.

7.2.1 Ethics issues checklist

Section 7: ENVIRONMENT & HEALTH AND SAFETY	YES/ NO		Page	Information to be provided	Documents to be provided
Does your research involve the use of elements that may cause harm to humans, including research staff?	☐	☐		Details on health and safety procedures you intend to apply.	Safety classification of laboratory. plus:

For research involving human participants, see section 2.					plus:
If YES:	Does your research involve harmful biological agents (pathogenic organisms) or GMOs of Risk Class 2 or higher?	☐	☐		Risk-assessment	Copies of GMO and other authorisations (if required).
	Does your research involve harmful chemical and explosive agents?	☐	☐		Risk-assessment	Copies of authorisations for possession of toxic substances and for the handling and transfer of explosives (if required).
	Does your research involve harmful radioactive agents?	☐	☐		Risk-assessment	Copies of authorisations of use of radioactive material. Copy of authorisation of release of radioactive material into the environment.
	Does your research involve other harmful materials or equipment (e.g. high-powered laser systems)?	☐	☐		Risk-assessment	Copies of authorisations (if required).

7.2.2 How to deal with the issues?

Your research must comply with:

- ethical principles
- applicable international, EU and national law (in particular, the legislation on public-health control (e.g. regulating conduct in animal epidemics, food imports, consumer protection, etc.) and safety at work (e.g. Directive 2006/25/EC)).

This means that you must warn, advise and even remove researchers from dangerous situations.

Moreover you should establish and follow a set of safety checks and procedures (or a more in-depth risk assessment) for each project they conduct.

You also must obtain:

- the necessary health and safety authorisations (if applicable).

Specific cases:

Toxic chemicals and/or explosives — Staff should have adequate training in storing, handling and disposing of such substances. If new substances and/or formulations (e.g. nanomaterials) are developed, you must provide adequate risk assessments.

Radioactive material — Clear legislation exists in all EU countries on the storage, handling and disposal of radioactive materials.

> The release of radioactive material into the environment is anticipated, is only admitted if you can show that use of alternatives (e.g. non-radioactive stable isotopes, simulants etc.) is not possible.

Research 'in the field' — Establish and follow recognised procedures to help keep researchers and subjects safe. These should include:

- keeping careful notes of all research engagements
- ensuring projects are adequately staffed
- using mobile phones to keep in touch with the research base
- conducting full risk assessments of fieldwork sites
- formally notifying authorities of research being conducted in an area
- carrying authorised identification
- researcher preparation and training covering techniques for handling conflict, threats, abuse or compromising situations
- debriefing after field research with an assessment of fieldwork safety and
- reporting any health and safety incidents.

7.2.3 What do you need to provide?

If your proposal raises one of the issues listed in the ethics issue checklist above, you must proceed to the ethics self-assessment in Part B of your proposal (i.e. section 5 of the 'Technical Annex').

Your grant proposal must include the information indicated in the ethics issues checklist and any of the documents that are already available. (⚠ For documents that are not yet available, provide an approximate timeline for their submission.)

8. Dual use

This section concerns research that has the potential also for military applications.

⚠ Only research that has an exclusive focus on civil applications can be funded.[10]

However, this does not rule out the participation by military partners or the application of military technologies for civil uses, provided that the research itself is clearly focused on civil applications.

8.1 Ethics issues checklist

Section 8: DUAL USE		YES/NO		Page	Information to be provided	Documents to be provided
Does your research have the potential for military applications?		☐	☐
If YES:	Does your research have an exclusive civilian application focus?	☐	☐		Explanations on the exclusive civilian focus of the research. Justify inclusion of military partners or military technologies (i.e. explain how they relate to civilian applications, e.g. in the context of law enforcement activities).
	Will your research use or produce goods or information that will require export licenses in accordance with legislation on dual use items?	☐	☐		Details on what goods and information used and produced in your research will need export licences.	Copies of export licences.
	Does your research affect current standards in military ethics (e.g. global ban on weapons of mass destruction, issues of proportionality, discrimination of combatants and accountability in drone and autonomous robotics developments, incendiary or laser weapons)?	☐	☐		Details on how the research might affect current standards in military ethics. Details on measures you intend to apply to avoid negative implications on military ethics standards (including training of researchers).

8.2 How to deal with the issues?

Your research must comply with:

- ethical principles
- applicable international, EU and national law (in particular, Regulation (EC) No 428/2009).

  ⚠ Your research must follow national legislation for civil research and not rely on legal exceptions for military research.

Specific cases:

Cross-border transfers — For cross-border transfers of dual-use materials, technologies and information, you must observe EU export control Regulation (EC) No 428/2009. If you have any doubts, you should consult the relevant national export control authority to clarify whether transfer licences are needed.

Research that may affect military ethics standards — If your research may be concerned by international non-proliferation laws or international humanitarian laws on military ethics (e.g. pathogen-related research, development of autonomous robotics, drones and certain laser technologies, etc.) you must comply with the international legislation in this area (in particular, the Biological and Toxin Weapons Convention).

⚠ You may also want to appoint an independent ethics adviser/ethics board, with relevant ethics and security expertise, to carry out a risk-benefit analysis of the intended research and to suggest appropriate safeguards to cover security risks (during, and beyond, the lifetime of the project) and training for researchers.

8.3 What do you need to provide?

If your proposal raises one of the issues listed in the ethics issue checklist above, you must proceed to the ethics self-assessment in Part B of your proposal (i.e. section 5 of the 'Technical Annex').

Your grant proposal must include the information indicated in the ethics issues checklist and any of the documents that are already available. (⚠ For documents that are not yet available, provide an approximate timeline for their submission.)

9. Misuse

This section concerns research that could potentially be misused.

9.1 Ethics issues checklist

Section 9: MISUSE		YES/NO		Page	Information to be provided	Documents to be provided
Does your research have the potential for malevolent/criminal/terrorist abuse?		☐	☐		Risk-assessment. plus:
If YES:	Does your research involve information on/or the use of biological-, chemical-, nuclear/radiological-security sensitive materials and explosives, or means of their delivery? For research involving dual items, see section 8.	☐	☐		Details on the applicable legal requirements. Details on the measures you intend to take to prevent abuse (including training of personnel).	Copies of Authorisations (if required). Copies of personnel security clearances, (if applicable).
	Does your research involve the development of technologies or the creation of information that could have severe negative impacts on human rights standards (e.g. privacy, stigmatization, discrimination), if misapplied?	☐	☐		Details on how your research could affect human rights Details on the measures you intend to take to prevent abuse.	Copies of Ethics Approvals (if applicable).
	Does your research have other potential for terrorist or criminal abuse (e.g. infrastructural vulnerability studies, cyber-security related research)?	☐	☐		Details on the measures you intend to take to prevent abuse.	Copies of Ethics Approvals (if required). Copies of personnel security clearances, (if applicable).

9.2 How to deal with the issues?

You must make a risk-assessment and take appropriate measures to avoid abuse.

Moreover, you must comply with the numerous international, EU and national laws that address concerns relating to potential misuse of materials, technologies and information (see below).

Specific cases:

Biological, chemical, radiological and nuclear security sensitive materials and explosives (CBRNE) — Key elements to avoid abuses include appropriate measures to ensure adequate security for the facility used, personnel, transfer, and information. Including security expertise in your research (such as the appointment of an independent adviser) and appropriate training of all personnel, provides further possible safeguards.

In many cases, overlaps between safety and security measures will exist but gaps need to be identified and addressed. The most frequently encountered issue relates to research involving pathogens and the need to implement adequate biosecurity measures.

Research that could impact on human rights — Concerns in this field are primarily related to research on surveillance technologies, new data-gathering and data-merging technologies (e.g. in the context of big data). However, social or genetic research that could lead to discrimination or stigmatisation is also affected.

Risk mitigation measures may include:

- a human rights impact assessment
- involving human rights experts in your research
- training of personnel and/or technological safeguards and
- caution when publishing or otherwise disseminating results, (e.g. through privacy by design).

Research that has other potential for terrorist or criminal abuse — Although anything could ultimately be used for malevolent purposes, research in this category is that which provides terrorists or criminals with information or technologies that would have substantial direct impacts on the security of individuals, groups or states.

Examples: infrastructural vulnerability studies, cyber-security related research

In many cases, researchers outside the security domain are not familiar with security safeguards. In such situations, researchers should consult with experts familiar with security ethics and/or human rights. If security or human rights abuse concerns exist, you should arrange for:

- training on this issue and
- the appointment of an ethics adviser/ethics advisory board.

9.3 What do you need to provide?

If your proposal raises one of the issues listed in the ethics issue checklist above, you must proceed to the ethics self-assessment in Part B of your proposal (i.e. section 5 of the 'Technical Annex').

Your grant proposal must include the information indicated in the ethics issues checklist and any of the documents that are already available. (⚠ For documents that are not yet available, provide an approximate timeline for their submission.)

10. Other ethics issues

Ethics issues checklist

Section 10: OTHER ETHICS ISSUES	YES/ NO		Page	Information to be provided	Documents to be provided
Are there any other ethics issues that should be taken into consideration? Please specify:	☐	☐		Any relevant information.	Any relevant document.

Other ethics issues?

Since Horizon 2020 intends to support ground-breaking and innovative research, it may be that your research raises new ethical issues and concerns that are currently not covered by the Ethics Issue Table (e.g. new developments in the fields of neurobiology, man-machine interaction, developments in nanotechnology, genetic enhancement, the creation of androids and cyborgs, etc.). If you know of any such other ethically relevant issues that apply to your project, describe them in this section and explain how you intend to address them.

This allows you to alert the Commission in time and get appropriate assistance for addressing them. It also avoids the problems you would have if such issues were found out only later (in the context of an audit or investigation).

⚠ If, ethical issues arise unexpectedly during your research, contact the Commission/Agency immediately and provide detailed information on the issue and how you intend to handle it. We will ensure that you receive appropriate help and guidance.

Q.1. What is the EU Clinical Trials Register?

A. The EU Clinical Trials Register is part of EudraPharm. EudraPharm is the community database of authorised medicinal products. The website provides public access to information extracted from the EU clinical trials database, EudraCT.

The EU Clinical Trials Register contains information on clinical trials with investigator sites in the EEA. Clinical trials where the investigator sites are outside the EEA are only included if they are marketing authorisation holder-sponsored and involve the use in the paediatric population of a medicinal product covered by an EU marketing authorisation (Article 46 of Regulation (EC) No 1901/2006), or if they form part of an agreed PIP (Paediatric Investigation Plan). The register offers users the ability to search for information on any paediatric clinical trial, and any Phase II-IV adult clinical trial recorded in EudraCT.

In addition to the above trials, the register also provides summary information about any paediatric trials that were completed by 26 January 2007 in respect of products covered by an EU marketing authorisation (Article 45 of Regulation (EC) No 1901/2006). These trials are presented in a dedicated tab in the user interface.

Q.2. Why has the EU Clinical Trials Register been launched?

A. The EU Clinical Trials Register website provides the public with information held in the EU clinical trials database, EudraCT. EudraCT is used by national competent authorities to support supervision of clinical trials and was established as a confidential database, in accordance with article 11 of Directive 2001/20/EC. EU pharmaceutical legislation requires the European Medicines Agency (EMA), which maintains the EudraCT database on behalf of EU member states to provide information held in EudraCT to the public. This is described in article 57 of Regulation (EC) No 726/2004 and article 41 of the Paediatric Regulation (EC) No 1901/2006. Together, they established that data on clinical trials conducted in adults and in paediatric populations be made public. The EU Clinical Trials Register website puts these requirements into practice.

Q.3. What information can I find in the EU Clinical Trials Register?

A. The EU Clinical Trials Register website has:

- The description of any phase II-IV adult clinical trial where the investigator sites are in the European Union or the European Economic Area.
- The description of any paediatric clinical trial with investigator sites in the European Union.
- The description of any paediatric clinical trial that is marketing authorisation holder-sponsored and involves the use in the paediatric population of a medicinal product covered by an EU marketing authorisation (Article 46 of Regulation (EC) No 1901/2006), including those where the investigator sites are outside the European Union.

- The description of any trials which form part of an agreed paediatric investigation plan (PIP) including those where the investigator sites are outside the European Union.
- Summaries of results of the clinical trials mentioned above (if results have been posted by the sponsor or marketing authorisation holder).

- Summaries of results (with a reduced set of data fields) of paediatric trials that were completed by 26 January 2007 in respect of products covered by an EU marketing authorisation (Article 45 of Regulation (EC) No 1901/2006) [These trials are presented in a dedicated tab in the user interface.]

  The EU Clinical Trials Register website does not:

  - Provide information on non-interventional clinical trials of medicines (observational studies on authorised medicines).
  - Provide access to the authorisation document from the national medicine regulatory authority or the opinion document from the relevant ethics committee.
  - Provide information on clinical trials for surgical procedures, medical devices or psychotherapeutic procedures.
  - Manage the process for joining any clinical trial published on the website.
  - Provide navigation and web content in languages other than English.

    *Information on non-interventional post authorisation safety studies can be found on the electronic ENCePP register of studies which provides a publicly accessible resource for the registration of pharmacoepidemiological and pharmacovigilance studies.

    http://www.encepp.eu/encepp/studiesDatabase.jsp

Q.4. What information is available?

A. Information on the design of each clinical trial, its sponsor(s), the investigational medicinal product(s) and therapeutic area(s) involved and its trial status (authorised, ongoing, complete, etc.) is available. Users can search all available data using the free text search and the advanced search filters..

- Clinical trials in the register are those which have been authorised by the national medicine regulatory authority and have a positive opinion of the ethics committee for clinical trials in the Member State where they have been run. Additionally, clinical trials including the paediatric population that have received a negative ethics committee opinion are also made public.
- Phase 1 clinical trials in adults are not being made public unless they form part of an agreed Paediatric Investigation Plan (PIP). These criteria are those established by the guidelines published by the European Commission.

Q.5. How do I find the EU Clinical Trials Register?

A. The EU Clinical Trials Register is part of EudraPharm and can be accessed from the EudraPharm homepage

The homepage of the EU Clinical Trial Register is: http://www.clinicaltrialsregister.eu

Q.6. Who provides the information?

A. Protocol information on any clinical trial conducted in the EU Member States is provided, in electronic format, to the national medicine regulatory authorities by the trial sponsor as part of the sponsor's application for authorisation to conduct a trial. It is entered into the database by the national competent authority which adds the authorisation, the ethics committee opinion, and later completes the end-of-trial information.

The information on third-country clinical trials is supplied by the third country data providers (i.e. Paediatric-Investigation-Plan (PIP) addressees or Article 46 data providers) who enter the information directly to the system.

Result related information is entered by sponsors, marketing authorisation holders and PIP addressees directly to the system.

Q.7 Data displayed for some clinical trials is incomplete. How will data quality improve?

A. National competent authorities and the Agency are working to develop, where possible, a more complete data set for historical trials (May 2004-March 2011) entered in the EudraCT database. Furthermore, it aims to improve the quality of the new records through enhanced automated checking, quality control and through the increased use of standardised data.

Data quality and historical information:

Information on clinical trials entered into the database between May 2004 and March 2011 is referred to as historical data. It may be incomplete or contain inconsistencies. For instance, the end date of a trial may not have been entered, so the trial may appear to have a trial status of 'Ongoing' when in fact it has been completed. Member states implemented the Directive and started using EudraCT at different times between 2004 and 2006 and the links with the ethics committees needed to be established. The validation rules applying to the data have been upgraded and the EMA is working with national competent authorities to ensure key data on the status of existing trials is complete

Q.8 Where can I get more information about a specific trial?

A. In order to obtain additional information on a particular trial of interest address your request directly to the sponsor of the trial. To contact the sponsor, please refer to the contact point in the clinical trial record. Furthermore, a sponsor contact information list is accessible here and is also provided on the Clinical Trial Sponsors page of the EU Clinical Trials Register website to facilitate communication between stakeholders.

Please note that the sponsor contact information list is not exhaustive The Agency will add new contact information as it is provided by sponsors. Sponsors should send contact information to euctr@ema.europa.eu.

Note that the requirement to provide public contact information was only introduced in March 2011. As a consequence this information is not available for trial records uploaded prior to that date.

If you cannot find the sponsor contact details information in the clinical trial record or the list provided, look for information from your patient or professional association, your healthcare provider, or other sources.

Q.9 What if I want to join a trial?

A. If you believe that there is a trial that could be of interest to you, it is recommended that you discuss this with your healthcare professional, where possible.

To contact the sponsor for further information, please refer to the contact point in the clinical trial record or the Clinical Trials Sponsors page of the EU Clinical Trials Register.

Patients should not interpret the information provided in the register as a recommendation to use the medicine or to participate in the trial. Patients should consult their treating physician or the trial investigator to discuss appropriate treatment options.

Q.10 The clinical trial I am interested in is not listed on the EU Clinical Trials Register website? Why is that?

A. There can be different explanations for this:

- The clinical trial does not have a site in the EEA and it is not part of an agreed PIP (Paediatric Investigation Plan).
- The trial started before the implementation of the Clinical Trial Directive 2001/20/EC in 2004.
- The clinical trial is part of historical data not yet publicly available.
- The trial does not meet the rules for publication, e.g. it is a phase I clinical trial conducted in adults, or it is not a clinical trial of medicines but of a medical device, or other therapeutic procedure.

Q.11 Why do some protocol related data fields read 'Information not present in EudraCT'?

A: Possible reasons for this are:

- Historical records provide less information, due to less stringent requirements for data completion, or absence of some fields in earlier versions of EudraCT.
- The information has not been entered by the sponsor.
- Some fields may not be relevant for some clinical trial designs, or the medicines being tested.

Q.12 What is RSS?

A: RSS stands for Really Simple Syndication. RSS allows you to receive updates to content from websites which provide a web feed (called an 'RSS feed'). To do this you subscribe to the web feed. The web feed is then gathered in your browser's RSS reader for you to view at your convenience. Different browsers support web feeds in different ways; search your browser's help for information on its particular implementation.

The EU Clinical Trials Register provides customised RSS feeds for any search you might make regularly on the website.

For example, if you are interested in clinical trials concerning 'bowel cancer', you can tailor your search within the EU Clinical Trials Register search page and simply subscribe to the RSS feed for your search by clicking the RSS link: Subscribe to this Search

Once subscribed, you will be able to see when your search returns additional results via your RSS reader. (Note that this feature is not available in Internet Explorer 6.)

Q.13 When I select United Kingdom with the status 'Ongoing', why do the search results return clinical trials with the status for United Kingdom 'Completed'?A: Such a search returns a list of clinical trials for which the values 'GB' and 'Ongoing' are present. It should be noted that this does not mean that the status 'Ongoing' is necessarily associated with the country 'GB', but rather that it is associated with the clinical trial itself which may have multiple trial statuses across all participating countries.

Q.14 Why is for example the sum of returned trial records of a search for United Kingdom phase II ongoing trials commenced in 2011 and that of United Kingdom phase II completed trials commenced in 2011 not the same as the sum of returned trial records of United Kingdom phase II ongoing and completed trials commenced in 2011?

A: Both trial statuses of 'Completed' and 'Ongoing' may be present for a single clinical trial, because trials frequently take place in multiple countries. For example, a clinical trial taking place in the United Kingdom and France might, at some point in time, have a trial status of 'Completed' in France and 'Ongoing' in the United Kingdom.

Such clinical trials therefore belong to the intersection between the two sets of search results, since they fulfil search criteria (i.e. UK Phase II ongoing trials commenced in 2011 and UK Phase II completed trials commenced in 2011) as the following Venn diagram illustrates:

Simply adding up the numbers of set 1 (UK Phase II 'Ongoing' 2011 (313)) and set 2 (UK Phase II 'Completed' 2011 (48)) would result in double counting 30 clinical trials in the intersection, so these must be subtracted to reach an accurate total.

Q.15 What should I do if my question is not answered here?

A: If your question regarding the EU Clinical Trials Register is not answered here, or in the How to Search EU Clinical Trials Register guide, please send your question to euctr@ema.europa.eu.

COUNCIL DIRECTIVE 93/42/EEC

of 14 June 1993

concerning medical devices

THE COUNCIL OF THE EUROPEAN COMMUNITIES,

Having regard to the Treaty establishing the European Economic Community, and in particular Article 100a thereof,

Having regard to the proposal from the Commission ([1]),

In cooperation with the European Parliament ([2]),

Having regard to the opinion of the Economic and Social Committee ([3]),

Whereas measures should be adopted in the context of the internal market; whereas the internal market is an area without internal frontiers in which the free movement of goods, persons, services and capital is ensured;

Whereas the content and scope of the laws, regulations and administrative provisions in force in the Member States with regard to the safety, health protection and performance characteristics of medical devices are different; whereas the certification and inspection procedures for such devices differ from one Member State to another; whereas such disparities constitute barriers to trade within the Community;

Whereas the national provisions for the safety and health protection of patients, users and, where appropriate, other persons, with regard to the use of medical devices should be harmonized in order to guarantee the free movement of such devices within the internal market;

Whereas the harmonized provisions must be distinguished from the measures adopted by the Member States to manage the funding of public health and sickness insurance schemes relating directly or indirectly to such devices; whereas, therefore, the provisions do not affect the ability of the Member States to implement the abovementioned measures provided Community law is complied with;

Whereas medical devices should provide patients, users and third parties with a high level of protection and attain the performance levels attributed to them by the manufacturer; whereas, therefore, the maintenance or improvement of the level of protection attained in the Member States is one of the essential objectives of this Directive;

Whereas certain medical devices are intended to administer medicinal products within the meaning of Council Directive 65/65/EEC of 26 January 1965 on the approximation of provisions laid down by law, regulation or administrative action relating to proprietary medicinal products ([4]); whereas, in such cases, the placing on the market of the medical device as a general rule is governed by the present Directive and the placing on the market of the medicinal product is governed by Directive 65/65/EEC; whereas if, however, such a device is placed on the market in such a way that the device and the medicinal product form a single integral unit which is intended exclusively for use in the given combination and which is not reusable, that single-unit product shall be governed by Directive 65/65/EEC; whereas a distinction must be drawn between the abovementioned devices and medical devices incorporating, inter alia, substances which, if used separately, may be considered to be a medicinal substance within the meaning of Directive 65/65/EEC; whereas in such cases, if the substances incorporated in the medical devices are liable to act upon the body with action ancillary to that of the device, the placing of the devices on the market is governed by this Directive; whereas, in this context, the safety, quality and usefulness of the substances must be verified by analogy with the appropriate methods specified in Council Directive 75/318/EEC of 20 May 1975 on the approximation of the laws of the Member States relating to analytical, pharmaco-toxicological and clinical standards and protocols in respect of the testing of proprietary medicinal products ([1]);

Whereas the essential requirements and other requirements set out in the Annexes to this Directive, including any reference to 'minimizing' or 'reducing' risk must be interpreted and applied in such a way as to take account of technology and practice existing at the time of design and of technical and economical considerations compatible with a high level of protection of health and safety;

Whereas, in accordance with the principles set out in the Council resolution of 7 May 1985 concerning a new approach to technical harmonization and standardization ([2]), rules regarding the design and manufacture of medical devices must be confined to the provisions required to meet the essential requirements; whereas, because they are essential, such requirements should replace the corresponding national provisions; whereas the essential requirements should be applied with discretion to take account of the technological level existing at the time of design and of technical and economic considerations compatible with a high level of protection of health and safety;

Whereas Council Directive 90/385/EEC of 20 June 1990 on the approximation of the laws of the Member States relating to active implantable medical devices ([3]) is the first case of application of the new approach to the field of medical devices; whereas in the interest of uniform Community rules applicable to all medical devices, this Directive is based largely on the provisions of Directive 90/385/EEC; whereas for the same reasons Directive 90/385/EEC must be amended to insert the general provisions laid down in this Directive;

Whereas the electromagnetic compatibility aspects form an integral part of the safety of medical devices; whereas this Directive should contain specific rules on this subject with regard to Council Directive 89/336/EEC of 3 May 1989 on the approximation of the laws of the Member States relating to electromagnetic compatibility ([4]);

Whereas this Directive should include requirements regarding the design and manufacture of devices emitting ionizing radiation; whereas this Directive does not affect the authorization required by Council Directive 80/836/Euratom of 15 July 1980 amending the Directives laying down the basic safety standards for the health protection of the general public and workers against the dangers of ionizing radiation ([5]), nor application of Council Directive 84/466/Euratom of 3 September 1984 laying down basic measures for the radiation protection of persons undergoing medical examination or treatment ([6]); whereas Council Directive 89/391/EEC of 12 June 1989 on the introduction of measures to encourage improvements in the safety and health of workers at work ([7]) and the specific directives on the same subject should continue to apply;

Whereas, in order to demonstrate conformity with the essential requirements and to enable conformity to be verified, it is desirable to have harmonized European standards to protect against the risks associated with the design, manufacture and packaging of medical devices;

whereas such harmonized European standards are drawn up by private-law bodies and should retain their status as non-mandatory texts; whereas, to this end, the European Committee for Standardization (CEN) and the European Committee for Electrotechnical Standardization (Cenelec) are recognized as the competent bodies for the adoption of harmonized standards in accordance with the general guidelines on cooperation between the Commission and these two bodies signed on 13 November 1984;

Whereas, for the purpose of this Directive, a harmonized standard is a technical specification (European standard or harmonization document) adopted, on a mandate from the Commission, by either or both of these bodies in accordance with Council Directive 83/189/EEC of 28 March 1983 laying down a procedure for the provision of information in the field of technical standards and regulations ([1]), and pursuant to the abovementioned general guidelines; whereas with regard to possible amendment of the harmonized standards, the Commission should be assisted by the Committee set up pursuant to Directive 83/189/EEC; whereas the measures to be taken must be defined in line with procedure I, as laid down in Council Decision 87/373/EEC ([2]); whereas, for specific fields, what already exists in the form of European Pharmacopoeia monographs should be incorporated within the framework of this Directive; whereas, therefore, several European Pharmacopoeia monographs may be considered equal to the abovementioned harmonized standards;

Whereas, in Decision 90/683/EEC of 13 December 1990 concerning the modules for the various phases of the conformity assessment procedures which are intended to be used in the technical harmonization directives ([3]), the Council has laid down harmonized conformity assessment procedures; whereas the application of these modules to medical devices enables the responsibility of manufacturers and notified bodies to be determined during conformity assessment procedures on the basis of the type of devices concerned; whereas the details added to these modules are justified by the nature of the verification required for medical devices;

Whereas it is necessary, essentially for the purpose of the conformity assessment procedures, to group the devices into four product classes; whereas the classification rules are based on the vulnerability of the human body taking account of the potential risks associated with the technical design and manufacture of the devices; whereas the conformity assessment procedures for Class I devices can be carried out, as a general rule, under the sole responsibility of the manufacturers in view of the low level of vulnerability associated with these products; whereas, for Class IIa devices, the intervention of a notified body should be compulsory at the production stage; whereas, for devices falling within Classes IIb and III which constitute a high risk potential, inspection by a notified body is required with regard to the design and manufacture of the devices; whereas Class III is set aside for the most critical devices for which explicit prior authorization with regard to conformity is required for them to be placed on the market;

Whereas in cases where the conformity of the devices can be assessed under the responsibility of the manufacturer the competent authorities must be able, particularly in emergencies, to contact a person responsible for placing the device on the market and established in the Community, whether the manufacturer or another person established in the Community and designated by the manufacturer for the purpose;

Whereas medical devices should, as a general rule, bear the CE mark to indicate their conformity with the provisions of this Directive to enable them to move freely within the Community and to be put into service in accordance with their intended purpose;

Whereas, in the fight against AIDS and in the light of the conclusions of the Council adopted on 16 May 1989 regarding future activities on AIDS prevention and control at Community level ([1]), medical devices used for protection against the HIV virus must afford a high level of protection; whereas the design and manufacture of such products should be verified by a notified body;

Whereas the classification rules generally enable medical devices to be appropriately classified; whereas, in view of the diverse nature of the devices and technological progress in this field, steps must be taken to include amongst the implementing powers conferred on the Commission the decisions to be taken with regard to the proper classification or reclassification of the devices or, where appropriate, the adjustment of the classification rules themselves; whereas since these issues are closely connected with the protection of health, it is appropriate that these decisions should come under procedure IIIa, as provided for in Directive 87/373/EEC;

Whereas the confirmation of complicance with the essential requirements may mean that clinical investigations have to be carried out under the responsibility of the manufacturer; whereas, for the purpose of carrying out the clinical investigations, appropriate means have to be specified for the protection of public health and public order;

Whereas the protection of health and the associated controls may be made more effective by means of medical device vigilance systems which are integrated at Community level;

Whereas this Directive covers the medical devices referred to in Council Directive 76/764/EEC of 27 July 1976 on the approximation of the laws of the Member States on clinical mercury-in-glass, maximum reading thermometers ([2]); whereas the abovementioned Directive must therefore be repealed; whereas for the same reasons Council Directive 84/539/EEC on 17 September 1984 on the approximation of the laws of the Member States relating to electro-medical equipment used in human or veterinary medicine ([3]) must be amended,

HAS ADOPTED THIS DIRECTIVE:

Article 1

Definitions, scope

1. This Directive shall apply to medical devices and their accessories. For the purposes of this Directive, accessories shall be treated as medical devices in their own right. Both medical devices and accessories shall hereinafter be termed devices.

2. For the purposes of this Directive, the following definitions shall apply:

(a) ►M5 'medical device' means any instrument, apparatus, appliance, software, material or other article, whether used alone or in combination, including the software intended by its manufacturer to be used specifically for diagnostic and/or therapeutic purposes and necessary for its proper application, intended by the manufacturer to be used for human beings for the purpose of: ◄

— diagnosis, prevention, monitoring, treatment or alleviation of disease,

([3]) OJ No L 300, 19.11.1984, p. 179. Directive as amended by the Act of Accession of Spain and Portugal.

▼B

— diagnosis, monitoring, treatment, alleviation of or compensation for an injury or handicap, — investigation, replacement or modification of the anatomy or of a physiological process,

— control of conception,

and which does not achieve its principal intended action in or on the human body by pharmacological, immunological or metabolic means, but which may be assisted in its function by such means;

(b) 'accessory' means an article which whilst not being a device is intended specifically by its manufacturer to be used together with a device to enable it to be used in accordance with the use of the device intended by the manufacturer of the device;

▼M1

(c) 'in vitro diagnostic medical device' means any medical device which is a reagent, reagent product, calibrator, control material, kit, instrument, apparatus, equipment or system, whether used alone or in combination, intended by the manufacturer to be used in vitro for the examination of specimens, including blood and tissue donations, derived from the human body, solely or principally for the purpose of providing information:

— concerning a physiological or pathological state, or — concerning a congenital abnormality, or — to determine the safety and compatibility with potential recipients, or — to monitor therapeutic measures.

Specimen receptacles are considered to be in vitro diagnostic medical devices. 'Specimen receptacles' are those devices, whether vacuum-type or not, specifically intended by their manufacturers for the primary containment and preservation of specimens derived from the human body for the purpose of in vitro diagnostic examination.

Products for general laboratory use are not in vitro diagnostic medical devices unless such products, in view of their characteristics, are specifically intended by their manufacturer to be used for in vitro diagnostic examination;

▼B

(d) 'custom-made device' means any device specifically made in accordance with a duly qualified medical practitioner's written prescription which gives, under his responsibility, specific design characteristics and is intended for the sole use of a particular patient.

The abovementioned prescription may also be made out by any other person authorized by virtue of his professional qualifications to do so.

Mass-produced devices which need to be adapted to meet the specific requirements of the medical practitioner or any other professional user ►M5 shall not be ◄ considered to be custom-made devices;

(e) 'device intended for clinical investigation' means any device intended for use by a duly qualified medical practitioner when conducting investigations as referred to in Section 2.1 of Annex X in an adequate human clinical environment.

For the purpose of conducting clinical investigation, any other person who, by virtue of his professional qualifications, is authorized to carry out such investigation shall be accepted as equivalent to a duly qualified medical practitioner;

▼B

(f) ‘manufacturer’ means the natural or legal person with responsibility for the design, manufacture, packaging and labelling of a device before it is placed on the market under his own name, regardless of whether these operations are carried out by that person himself or on his behalf by a third party.

The obligations of this Directive to be met by manufacturers also apply to the natural or legal person who assembles, packages, processes, fully refurbishes and/or labels one or more ready-made products and/or assigns to them their intended purpose as a device with a view to their being placed on the market under his own name. This subparagraph does not apply to the person who, while not a manufacturer within the meaning of the first subparagraph, assembles or adapts devices already on the market to their intended purpose for an individual patient;

(g) ‘intended purpose’ means the use for which the device is intended according to the data supplied by the manufacturer on the labelling, in the instructions and/or in promotional materials;

(h) ‘placing on the market’ means the first making available in return for payment or free of charge of a device other than a device intended for clinical investigation, with a view to distribution and/or use on the Community market, regardless of whether it is new or fully refurbished;

▼M1

(i) ‘putting into service’ means the stage at which a device has been made available to the final user as being ready for use on the Community market for the first time for its intended purpose;

(j) ‘authorised representative’ means any natural or legal person established in the Community who, explicitly designated by the manufacturer, acts and may be addressed by authorities and bodies in the Community instead of the manufacturer with regard to the latter's obligations under this Directive;

▼M5

(k) ‘clinical data’ means the safety and/or performance information that is generated from the use of a device. Clinical data are sourced from:

— clinical investigation(s) of the device concerned; or — clinical investigation(s) or other studies reported in the scientific literature, of a similar device for which equivalence to the device in question can be demonstrated; or — published and/or unpublished reports on other clinical experience of either the device in question or a similar device for which equivalence to the device in question can be demonstrated;

(l) ‘device subcategory’ means a set of devices having common areas of intended use or common technology;

(m) ‘generic device group’ means a set of devices having the same or similar intended uses or commonality of technology allowing them to be classified in a generic manner not reflecting specific characteristics;

(n) ‘single use device’ means a device intended to be used once only for a single patient.

3. Where a device is intended to administer a medicinal product within the meaning of Article 1 of Directive 2001/83/EC [1], that device shall be governed by this Directive, without prejudice to the provisions of Directive 2001/83/EC with regard to the medicinal product.

If, however, such a device is placed on the market in such a way that the device and the medicinal product form a single integral product which is intended exclusively for use in the given combination and which is not reusable, that single product shall be governed by Directive 2001/83/EC. The relevant essential requirements of Annex I to this Directive shall apply as far as safety and performance-related device features are concerned.

▼B

4. Where a device incorporates, as an integral part, a substance which, if used separately, may be considered to be a medicinal product within the meaning of Article 1 of Directive ►M5 2001/83/EC ◄ and which is liable to act upon the body with action ancillary to that of the device, ►M5 that device shall ◄ be assessed and authorized in accordance with this Directive.

▼M2

4 a. Where a device incorporates, as an integral part, a substance which, if used separately, may be considered to be a medicinal product constituent or a medicinal product derived from human blood or human plasma within the meaning of Article 1 of Directive ►M5 2001/83/EC ◄ and which is liable to act upon the human body with action ancillary to that of the device, hereinafter referred to as a 'human blood derivative', ►M5 that device shall ◄ be assessed and authorised in accordance with this Directive.

▼B

5. ►M5 This Directive shall not apply to: ◄

(a) in vitro diagnostic devices;

(b) active implantable devices covered by Directive 90/385/EEC;

▼M5

(c) medicinal products covered by Directive 2001/83/EC. In deciding whether a product falls under that Directive or this Directive, particular account shall be taken of the principal mode of action of the product;

▼B

(d) cosmetic products covered by Directive 76/768/EEC ([1]);

▼M3

(e) human blood, blood products, plasma or blood cells of human origin or to devices which incorporate at the time of placing on the market such blood products, plasma or cells, with the exception of devices referred to in paragraph 4a;

▼M5

(f) transplants or tissues or cells of human origin nor to products incorporating or derived from tissues or cells of human origin, with the exception of devices referred to in paragraph 4a;

▼B

(g) transplants or tissues or cells of animal origin, unless a device is manufactured utilizing animal tissue which is rendered non-viable or non-viable products derived from animal tissue.

([1]) OJ No L 262, 27.9.1976, p. 169. Directive as last amended by Commission Directive 92/86/EEC (OJ No L 325, 11.11.1992, p. 18).

▼M5

6. Where a device is intended by the manufacturer to be used in accordance with both the provisions on personal protective equipment in Council Directive 89/686/EEC [1] and this Directive, the relevant basic health and safety requirements of Directive 89/686/EEC shall also be fulfilled.

7. This Directive is a specific Directive within the meaning of Article 1(4) of Directive 2004/108/EC of the European Parliament and of the Council [2].

8. This Directive shall not affect the application of Council Directive 96/29/Euratom of 13 May 1996 laying down basic safety standards for the protection of the health of workers and the general public against the dangers arising from ionising radiation [3], nor of Council Directive 97/43/Euratom of 30 June 1997 on health protection of individuals against the dangers of ionising radiation in relation to medical exposure [4].

▼M1

Article 2

Placing on the market and putting into service

Member States shall take all necessary steps to ensure that devices may be placed on the market and/or put into service only if they comply with the requirements laid down in this Directive when duly supplied and properly installed, maintained and used in accordance with their intended purpose.

▼B

Article 3

Essential requirements

The devices must meet the essential requirements set out in Annex I which apply to them, taking account of the intended purpose of the devices concerned.

▼M5

Where a relevant hazard exists, devices which are also machinery within the meaning of Article 2(a) of Directive 2006/42/EC of the European Parliament and of the Council of 17 May 2006 on machinery [5] shall also meet the essential health and safety requirements set out in Annex I to that Directive to the extent to which those essential health and safety requirements are more specific than the essential requirements set out in Annex I to this Directive.

▼B

Article 4

Free movement, devices intended for special purposes

1. Member States shall not create any obstacle to the placing on the market or the putting into service within their territory of devices bearing the CE marking provided for in Article 17 which indicate that they have been the subject of an assessment of their conformity in accordance with the provisions of Article 11.

(1) Council Directive 89/686/EEC of 21 December 1989 on the approximation of the laws of the Member States relating to personal protective equipment (OJ L 399, 30.12.1989, p. 18). Directive as last amended by Regulation (EC) No 1882/2003 of the European Parliament and of the Council (OJ L 284, 31.10.2003, p. 1).

2. Member States shall not create any obstacle to:

— devices intended for clinical investigation being made available to medical practitioners or authorized persons for that purpose if they meet the conditions laid down in Article 15 and in Annex VIII,

▼M5

— custom-made devices being placed on the market and put into service if they meet the conditions laid down in Article 11 in combination with Annex VIII; Class IIa, IIb and III devices shall be accompanied by the statement referred to in Annex VIII, which shall be available to the particular patient identified by name, an acronym or a numerical code.

▼B

These devices shall not bear the CE marking.

3. At trade fairs, exhibitions, demonstrations, etc. Member States shall not create any obstacle to the showing of devices which do not conform to this Directive, provided that a visible sign clearly indicates that such devices cannot be marketed or put into service until they have been made to comply.

The devices must be designed and manufactured in such a way that, when used under the conditions and for the purposes intended, they will not compromise the clinical condition or the safety of patients, or the safety and health of users or, where applicable, other persons, provided that any risks which may be associated with their intended use constitute acceptable risks when weighed against the benefits to the patient and are compatible with a high level of protection of health and safety.

This shall include:

— reducing, as far as possible, the risk of use error due to the ergonomic features of the device and the environment in which the device is intended to be used (design for patient safety), and

— consideration of the technical knowledge, experience, education and training and where applicable the medical and physical conditions of intended users (design for lay, professional, disabled or other users).

▼B

2. The solutions adopted by the manufacturer for the design and construction of the devices must conform to safety principles, taking account of the generally acknowledged state of the art.

In selecting the most appropriate solutions, the manufacturer must apply the following principles in the following order:

— eliminate or reduce risks as far as possible (inherently safe design and construction),

— where appropriate take adequate protection measures including alarms if necessary, in relation to risks that cannot be eliminated, — inform users of the residual risks due to any shortcomings of the protection measures adopted.

3. The devices must achieve the performances intended by the manufacturer and be designed, manufactured and packaged in such a way that they are suitable for one or more of the functions referred to in Article 1 (2) (a), as specified by the manufacturer.

4. The characteristics and performances referred to in Sections 1, 2 and 3 must not be adversely affected to such a degree that the clinical conditions and safety of the patients and, where applicable, of other persons are compromised during the lifetime of the device as indicated by the manufacturer, when the device is subjected to the stresses which can occur during normal conditions of use.

5. The devices must be designed, manufactured and packed in such a way that their characteristics and performances during their intended use will not be adversely affected during transport and storage taking account of the instructions and information provided by the manufacturer.

For the substances referred to in the first paragraph, the notified body shall, having verified the usefulness of the substance as part of the medical device and taking account of the intended purpose of the device, seek a scientific opinion from one of the competent authorities designated by the Member States or the European Medicines Agency (EMEA) acting particularly through its committee in accordance with Regulation (EC) No 726/2004 [1] on the quality and safety of the substance including the clinical benefit/risk profile of the incorporation of the substance into the device. When issuing its opinion, the competent authority or the EMEA shall take into account the manufacturing process and the data related to the usefulness of incorporation of the substance into the device as determined by the notified body.

Where a device incorporates, as an integral part, a human blood derivative, the notified body shall, having verified the usefulness of the substance as part of the medical device and taking into account the intended purpose of the device, seek a scientific opinion from the EMEA, acting particularly through its committee, on the quality and safety of the substance including the clinical benefit/risk profile of the incorporation of the human blood derivative into the device. When issuing its opinion, the EMEA shall take into account the manufacturing process and the data related to the usefulness of incorporation of the substance into the device as determined by the notified body.

Where changes are made to an ancillary substance incorporated in a device, in particular related to its manufacturing process, the notified body shall be informed of the changes and shall consult the relevant medicines competent authority (i.e. the one involved in the initial consultation), in order to confirm that the quality and safety of the ancillary substance are maintained. The competent authority shall take into account the data related to the usefulness of incorporation of the substance into the device as determined by the notified body, in

CLINICAL EVALUATION

1. General provisions

▼M5

1.1. As a general rule, confirmation of conformity with the requirements concerning the characteristics and performances referred to in Sections 1 and 3 of Annex I, under the normal conditions of use of the device, and the evaluation of the side-effects and of the acceptability of the benefit/risk ratio referred to in Section 6 of Annex I, must be based on clinical data. The evaluation of this data, hereinafter referred to as 'clinical evaluation', where appropriate taking account of any relevant harmonised standards, must follow a defined and methodologically sound procedure based on:

1.1.1. Either a critical evaluation of the relevant scientific literature currently available relating to the safety, performance, design characteristics and intended purpose of the device, where:

— there is demonstration of equivalence of the device to the device to which the data relates, and — the data adequately demonstrate compliance with the relevant essential requirements.

1.1.2. Or a critical evaluation of the results of all clinical investigations made.

1.1.3. Or a critical evaluation of the combined clinical data provided in 1.1.1 and 1.1.2.

1.1a In the case of implantable devices and devices in Class III clinical investigations shall be performed unless it is duly justified to rely on existing clinical data.

1.1b The clinical evaluation and its outcome shall be documented. This documentation shall be included and/or fully referenced in the technical documentation of the device.

1.1c The clinical evaluation and its documentation must be actively updated with data obtained from the post-market surveillance. Where post-market clinical follow-up as part of the post-market surveillance plan for the device is not deemed necessary, this must be duly justified and documented.

1.1d Where demonstration of conformity with essential requirements based on clinical data is not deemed appropriate, adequate justification for any such exclusion has to be given based on risk management output and under consideration of the specifics of the device/body interaction, the clinical performances intended and the claims of the manufacturer. Adequacy of demonstration of conformity with the essential requirements by performance evaluation, bench testing and pre-clinical evaluation alone has to be duly substantiated.

▼B

1.2. All the data must remain confidential, in accordance with the provisions of Article 20.

2. Clinical investigations

2.1. Objectives

The objectives of clinical investigation are:

— to verify that, under normal conditions of use, the performance of the devices conform to those referred to in Section 3 of Annex I, and — to determine any undesirable side-effects, under normal conditions of use, and assess whether they constitute risks when weighed against the intended performance of the device.

2.2. Ethical considerations

►M5 Clinical investigations must be carried out in accordance with the Helsinki Declaration adopted by the 18th World Medical Assembly in Helsinki, Finland, in 1964, as last amended by the World Medical Assembly. ◄ It is mandatory that all measures relating to the protection of human subjects are carried out in the spirit of the Helsinki Declaration. This includes every step in the clinical investigation from first consideration of the need and justification of the study to publication of the results.

2.3. Methods

2.3.1. Clinical investigations must be performed on the basis of an appropriate plan of investigation reflecting the latest scientific and technical knowledge and defined in such a way as to confirm or refute the manufacturer's claims for the device; these investigations must include an adequate number of observations to guarantee the scientific validity of the conclusions.

2.3.2. The procedures used to perform the investigations must be appropriate to the device under examination.

2.3.3. Clinical investigations must be performed in circumstances similar to the normal conditions of use of the device.

2.3.4. All the appropriate features, including those involving the safety and performances of the device, and its effect on patients must be examined.

▼M5

2.3.5. All serious adverse events must be fully recorded and immediately notified to all competent authorities of the Member States in which the clinical investigation is being performed.

▼B

2.3.6. The investigations must be performed under the responsibility of a medical practitioner or another authorized qualified person in an appropriate environment.

The medical practitioner or other authorized person must have access to the technical and clinical data regarding the device.

2.3.7. The written report, signed by the medical practitioner or other authorized person responsible, must contain a critical evaluation of all the data collected during the clinical investigation.

ANNEX XI

CRITERIA TO BE MET FOR THE DESIGNATION OF NOTIFIED BODIES

1. The notified body, its Director and the assessment and verification staff shall not be the designer, manufacturer, supplier, installer or user of the devices which they inspect, nor the authorized representative of any of these persons. They may not be directly involved in the design, construction, marketing or maintenance of the devices, nor represent the parties engaged in these activities. This in no way precludes the possibility of exchanges of technical information between the manufacturer and the body.

2. The notified body and its staff must carry out the assessment and verification operations with the highest degree of professional integrity and the requisite competence in the field of medical devices and must be free from all pressures and inducements, particularly financial, which might influence their judgment or the results of the inspection, especially from persons or groups of persons with an interest in the results of the verifications.

   Should the notified body subcontract specific tasks connected with the establishment and verification of the facts, it must first ensure that the subcontractor meets the provisions of the Directive and, in particular, of this Annex. The notified body shall keep at the disposal of the national authorities the relevant documents assessing the subcontractor's qualifications and the work carried out by the subcontractor under this Directive.

3. The notified body must be able to carry out all the tasks assigned to such bodies by one of Annexes II to VI and for which it has been notified, whether these tasks are carried out by the body itself or on its responsibility. In particular, it must have the necessary staff and possess the facilities needed to perform properly the technical and administrative tasks entailed in assessment and verification. ►M1 This presupposes the availability of sufficient scientific staff within the organisation who possess experience and knowledge sufficient to assess the medical functionality and performance of devices for which it has been notified, having regard to the requirements of this Directive and, in particular, those set out in Annex I. ◄ It must also have access to the equipment necessary for the verifications required.

4. The notified body must have:

   — sound vocational training covering all the assessment and verification operations for which the body has been designated,

   — satisfactory knowledge of the rules on the inspections which they carry out and adequate experience of such inspections,

   — the ability required to draw up the certificates, records and reports to demonstrate that the inspections have been carried out.

5. The impartiality of the notified body must be guaranteed. Their remuneration must not depend on the number of inspections carried out, nor on the results of the inspections.

6. The body must take out civil liability insurance, unless liability is assumed by the State under domestic legislation or the Member State itself carries out the inspections directly.

7. The staff of the notified body are bound to observe professional secrecy with regard to all information gained in the course of their duties (except vis-à-vis the competent administrative authorities of the State in which their activities are carried out) pursuant to this Directive or any provision of national law putting it into effect.

— If the marking is reduced or enlarged the proportions given in the above graduated drawing must be respected.

— The various components of the CE marking must have substantially the same vertical dimension, which may not be less than 5 mm.

This minimum dimension may be waived for small-scale devices.

Having regard to the Treaty establishing the European Community, and in particular Article 95 thereof,

Having regard to the proposal from the Commission,

Having regard to the opinion of the European Economic and Social Committee ([1]),

Acting in accordance with the procedure laid down in Article 251 of the Treaty ([2]),

Whereas:

(1) Council Directive 93/42/EEC ([3]) requires the Commission to submit a report to the Council, no later than five years from the date of implementation of that Directive, concerning: (i) information on incidents occurring following the placing of devices on the market, (ii) clinical investigation carried out in accordance with the procedure set out in Annex VIII to Directive 93/42/EEC, and (iii) design examination and EC type examination of medical devices that incorporate, as an integral part, a substance which, if used separately, may be considered to be a medicinal product as defined in Directive 2001/83/EC of the European Parliament and of the Council of 6 November 2001 on the Community code relating to medicinal products for human use ([4]) and which is liable to act upon the body with action ancillary to that of the device.

(2) The Commission brought forward the conclusions of that report in its Communication to the Council and the European Parliament on medical devices which, at the request of the Member States, was expanded to cover all aspects of the Community regulatory framework for medical devices.

(3) This Communication was welcomed by the Council in its Conclusions on medical devices of 2 December 2003 ([5]). It was also discussed by the European Parliament which on 3 June 2003 adopted a resolution on the health implications of Directive 93/42/EEC ([6]).

(4) Following from the conclusions drawn in that Communication it is necessary and appropriate to amend Council Directive 90/385/EEC ([7]), Directive 93/42/EEC and Directive 98/8/EC of the European Parliament and of the Council ([8]).

(5) To ensure consistency of interpretation and implementation between Directives 93/42/EEC and 90/385/EEC the legal framework related to issues such as authorised representative, the European databank, health protection measures, and the application of Directive 93/42/EEC as regards medical devices incorporating stable derivates of human blood or human plasma, as introduced by Directive 2000/70/EC ([9]), should be extended to Directive 90/385/EEC. The application of the provisions on medical devices incorporating stable derivates of human blood or human plasma includes application of Directive 2002/98/EC of the European Parliament and of the Council of 27 January 2003 setting standards of quality and safety for the collection, testing, processing, storage and distribution of human blood and blood components and amending Directive 2001/83/EC ([10]).

(6) It is necessary to clarify that software in its own right, when specifically intended by the manufacturer to be used for one or more of the medical purposes set out in the definition of a medical device, is a medical device. Software for general purposes when used in a healthcare setting is not a medical device.

(7) Particular care should be taken to ensure that the reprocessing of medical devices does not endanger patients' safety or health. It is therefore necessary to provide clarification on the definition of the term 'single use', as well as to make provision for uniform labelling and instructions for use. Moreover, the Commission should engage in further analysis in order to see if additional measures are appropriate to ensure a high level of protection for patients.

(8) In the light of technical innovation and the development of initiatives at the international level it is necessary to enhance the provisions on clinical evaluation, including clarification that clinical data is generally required for all devices regardless of classification and the possibility to centralise data on clinical investigations in the European databank.

(9) In order to provide clearer evidence of the compliance of custom-made device manufacturers, an explicit requirement for a post market production review system involving incident reporting to authorities should be introduced, as is already in place for other devices, and to enhance patient information, a requirement should be introduced that the 'Statement' under Annex VIII to Directive 93/42/EEC should be available to the patient and that it should contain the name of the manufacturer.

(10) In the light of technical progress in information technology and medical devices, a process should be provided to allow information supplied by the manufacturer to be available by other means.

(11) Manufacturers of Class I sterile and/or measuring medical devices should be given the option of using the full quality assurance conformity assessment module in order to provide them with more flexibility in the choice of compliance modules.

(12) In order to support market surveillance activities by Member States it is necessary and appropriate, in the case of implantable devices, to increase the time period for the retention of documents for administrative purposes to at least 15 years.

(13) For the appropriate and efficient functioning of Directive 93/42/EEC as regards regulatory advice on classification issues arising at national level, in particular on whether or not a product falls under the definition of a medical device, it is in the interest of national market surveillance and the health and safety of humans to establish a procedure for decisions on whether or not a product falls under the medical device definition.

(14) To ensure that, where a manufacturer does not have a registered place of business in the Community, authorities have a single individual person authorised by the manufacturer whom they can address in matters relating to the compliance of the devices with the Directives it is necessary to introduce an obligation for such manufacturers to designate an authorised representative for a device. This designation should be effective at least for all devices of the same model.

(15) To further ensure public health and safety it is necessary to provide for a more consistent application of the provisions on health protection measures. Particular care should be taken to ensure that, when in use, the products do not endanger patients' health or safety.

(16) In support of transparency in Community legislation, certain information related to medical devices and their conformity with Directive 93/42/EEC, in particular information on registration, on vigilance reports and on certificates, should be available to any interested party and the general public.

(17) To better coordinate the application and efficiency of national resources when applied to issues related to Directive 93/42/EEC, the Member States should cooperate with each other and at international level.

(18) As design for patient safety initiatives play an increasing role in public health policy, it is necessary to expressly set out the need to consider ergonomic design in the essential requirements. In addition the level of training and knowledge of the user, such as in the case of a lay user, should be further emphasised within the essential requirements. The manufacturer should place particular emphasis on the consequences of misuse of the product and its adverse effects on the human body.

(19) In the light of experience gained regarding activities of both the notified bodies and the authorities in the assessment of devices which require intervention of the appropriate authorities for medicines and human blood derivatives their duties and tasks should be clarified.

(20) Taking account of the growing importance of software in the field of medical devices, be it as stand alone or as software incorporated in a device, validation of software in accordance with the state of the art should be an essential requirement.

(21) In the light of the increased use of third Parties to carry out the design and manufacture of devices on behalf of the manufacturer, it is important that the manufacturer demonstrates that he applies adequate controls to the third party to continue to ensure the efficient operating of the quality system.

(22) The classification rules are based on the vulnerability of the human body taking account of the potential risks associated with the technical design and manufacture of the devices. Explicit prior authorisation with regard to conformity, including an assessment of the design documentation, is required for Class III devices to be placed on the market. In performing its duties under the quality assurance and verification conformity assessment modules for all other classes of devices, it is essential and necessary for a notified body, in order to be assured of the compliance of the manufacturer with Directive 93/42/EEC, to review the design documentation for the medical device. The depth and extent of this review should be commensurate with the classification of the device, the novelty of the intended treatment, the degree of intervention, the novelty of the technology or construction materials, and the complexity of the design and/or technology. This review can be achieved by taking a representative example of design documentation of one or more type(s) of devices from those being manufactured. Further review(s), and in particular the assessment of changes to the design that could affect conformity with the essential requirements, should be part of the surveillance activities of the notified body.

(23) It is necessary to remove the incoherence in the classification rules as a result of which invasive devices with respect to body orifices intended for connection to an active Class I medical device were not classified.

(24) The measures necessary for the implementation of Directive 90/385/EEC and Directive 93/42/EEC should be adopted in accordance with Council Decision 1999/468/EC of 28 June 1999 laying down the procedures for the exercise of implementing powers conferred on the Commission ([1]).

(25) In particular, power should be conferred on the Commission to adapt classification rules for medical devices, to adapt the means by which the information needed to use medical devices safely and properly may be set out, to determine conditions for making certain information publicly available, to adapt the provisions on clinical investigations set out in certain Annexes, to adopt particular requirements for placing certain medical devices on the market or putting them into service, and to take decisions to withdraw such devices from the market for reasons of protection of health or safety. Since those measures are of general scope and are designed to amend or supplement Directive 90/385/EEC and Directive 93/42/EEC by the modification or addition of non-essential elements, they must be adopted in accordance with the regulatory procedure with scrutiny provided for in Article 5a of Decision 1999/468/EC.

(26) When, on imperative grounds of urgency, the normal time limits for the regulatory procedure with scrutiny cannot be complied with, the Commission should be able to use the urgency procedure provided for in Article 5a(6) of Decision 1999/468/EC for taking decisions on withdrawal of certain medical devices from the market and for the adoption of particular requirements for placing such devices on the market or putting them into service for reasons of protection of health or safety.

(27) The Commission should give a mandate to CEN and/or Cenelec to specify technical requirements and a suitable specific label for phthalate-containing devices within 12 months after entry into force of this Directive.

(28) Many Member States have established recommendations with the aim of reducing or limiting the use of medical devices containing critical phthalates on children, pregnant and nursing women and other patients at risk. To enable medical professionals to avoid such risks, devices which possibly release phthalates to the body of the patient should be labelled accordingly.

(29) In accordance with the essential requirements on the design and manufacture of medical devices, manufacturers should avoid the use of substances that may possibly compromise the health of patients, in particular of substances which are carcinogenic, mutagenic or toxic to reproduction, and should, as appropriate, strive to develop alternative substances or products with a lower risk potential.

(30) It should be clarified that alongside Directives 90/385/EEC and 93/42/EEC, in vitro diagnostic medical devices, which are the subject of Directive 98/79/EC of the European Parliament and of the Council of 27 October 1998 on in vitro diagnostic medical devices ([2]), should also be excluded from the scope of Directive 98/8/EC.

(31) In accordance with point 34 of the Interinstitutional agreement on better law-making ([3]), Member States are encouraged to draw up, for themselves and in the interests of the Community, their own tables illustrating, as far as possible, the correlation between this Directive and the transposition measures, and to make them public.

(32) Directives 90/385/EEC, 93/42/EEC and 98/8/EC should therefore be amended accordingly,

HAVE ADOPTED THIS DIRECTIVE:

11. the following Articles shall be inserted:

'Article 10a

Any manufacturer who, under his own name, places devices on the market in accordance with the procedure referred to in Article 9(2) shall inform the competent authorities of the Member State in which he has his registered place of business of the address of the registered place of business and the description of the devices concerned.

Member States may request to be informed of all data allowing for the devices to be identified together with the label and the instructions for use when the devices are put into service within their territory.

2. Where a manufacturer who places a device on the market under his own name does not have a registered place of business in a Member State, he shall designate a single authorised representative in the European Union.

For devices referred to in the first subparagraph of paragraph 1 the authorised representative shall inform the competent authority of the Member State in which he has his registered place of business of all details as referred to in paragraph 1.

3. The Member States shall on request inform the other Member States and the Commission of the details referred to in the first subparagraph of paragraph 1 given by the manufacturer or authorised representative.

Article 10b

(b) data obtained in accordance with the vigilance procedure as defined in Article 8;

(c) data relating to clinical investigations referred to in Article 10.

2. Data shall be forwarded in a standardised format.

3. The measures necessary for the implementation of paragraphs 1 and 2 of this Article, in particular paragraph 1 (c), shall be adopted in accordance with the regulatory procedure referred to in Article 6(3).

Article 10c

Where a Member State considers in relation to a given product or group of products that, in order to ensure protection of health and safety and/or to ensure that public health requirements are observed, such products should be withdrawn from the market, or their placing on the market and putting into service should be prohibited, restricted or subjected to particular requirements, it may take any necessary and justified transitional measures.

The Member State shall then inform the Commission and all the other Member States of the transitional measures, giving the reasons for its decision.

The Commission shall, whenever possible, consult the interested Parties and the Member States. The Commission shall adopt its opinion, indicating whether the national measures are justified or not. The Commission shall inform all the Member States and the consulted interested Parties.

When appropriate, the necessary measures designed to amend non-essential elements of this Directive, by supplementing it, relating to withdrawal from the market, prohibition of placing on the market and putting into service of a certain product or group of products or to restrictions or introduction of particular requirements therefor, shall be adopted in accordance with the regulatory procedure with scrutiny referred to in Article 6(4). On imperative grounds of urgency, the Commission may use the urgency procedure referred to in Article 6(5).';

12. Article 11 shall be amended as follows:

(a) in paragraph 2, the following subparagraph shall be added: 'When appropriate in the light of technical progress, the detailed measures necessary to ensure a consistent application of the criteria set out in Annex 8 to this Directive for the designation of bodies by the Member States shall be adopted in accordance with the regulatory procedure referred to in Article 6(3).';

(b) in paragraph 4, the words 'agent established in the Community' shall be replaced by the words 'authorised representative';

(c) the following paragraphs shall be added:

6. Where a notified body finds that pertinent requirements of this Directive have not been met or are no longer met by the manufacturer or that a certificate should not have been issued, it shall, taking account of the principle of proportionality, suspend or withdraw the certificate issued or place any restrictions on it unless compliance with such requirements is ensured by the implementation of appropriate corrective measures by the manufacturer.

In the case of suspension or withdrawal of the certificate or of any restriction placed on it or in cases where an intervention of the competent authority may become necessary, the notified body shall inform its competent authority thereof.

STATEMENTS BY THE COMMISSION

Re Article 6

For the 7th Framework Programme, the European Commission proposes to continue with the same ethical framework for deciding on the EU funding of human embryonic stem cell research as in the 6th Framework Programme.

The European Commission proposes the continuation of this ethical framework because it has developed, based on experience, a responsible approach for an area of science which holds much promise and that has proven to work satisfactorily in the context of a research programme in which researchers participate from many countries with very diverse regulatory situations.

(1) The decision on the 7th Framework Programme explicitly excludes three fields of research from Community funding:

— research activities aiming at human cloning for reproductive purposes;

— research activities intended to modify the genetic heritage of human beings which could make such changes heritable;

— research activities intended to create human embryos solely for the purpose of research or for the purpose of stem cell procurement, including by means of somatic cell nuclear transfer.

(2) No activity will be funded that is forbidden in all Member States. No activity will be funded in a Member State where such activity is forbidden.

(3) The decision on FP7 and the provisions for the ethical framework governing the Community funding of human embryonic stem cell research entail in no way a value judgement on the regulatory or ethical framework governing such research in Member States.

(4) In calling for proposals, the European Commission does not explicitly solicit the use of human embryonic stem cells. The use of human stem cells, be they adult or embryonic, if any, depends on the judgement of the scientists in view of the objectives they want to achieve. In practice, by far the largest part of Community funds for stem cell research is devoted to the use of adult stem cells. There is no reason why this would substantially change in FP7.

(5) Each project proposing to use human embryonic stem cells must successfully pass a scientific evaluation during which the necessity of using such stem cells to achieve the scientific objectives is assessed by independent scientific experts.

(6) Proposals which successfully pass the scientific evaluation are then subject to a stringent ethical review organised by the European Commission. In this ethical review, account is taken of principles reflected in the EU Charter of Fundamental Rights and relevant international conventions such as the Convention of the Council of Europe on Human Rights and Biomedicine signed in Oviedo on 4 April 1997 and its additional protocols and the Universal Declaration on the Human Genome and the Human Rights adopted by UNESCO. The ethical review also serves to check that the proposals respect the rules of the countries where the research will be carried out.

(7) In particular cases, an ethical review may be carried out during the lifetime of the project.

(8) Each project proposing to use human embryonic stem cells must seek the approval of the relevant national or local ethics committee prior to the start of the project. All national rules and procedures must be respected, including on such issues as parental consent, absence of financial inducement, etc. Checks will be made on whether the project includes references to licensing and control measures to be taken by the competent authorities of the Member State where the research will be carried out.

(9) A proposal that successfully passes the scientific evaluation, the national or local ethical reviews and the European ethical review will be presented for approval, on a case by case basis, to the Member States, meeting as a Regulatory Committee. No project involving the use of human embryonic stem cells will be funded that does not obtain approval from the Member States.

(10) The European Commission will continue to work to make the results from Community funded stem cell research widely accessible to all researchers, for the ultimate benefit of patients in all countries.

(11) The European Commission will support actions and initiatives that contribute to a coordination and rationalisation of HESC research within a responsible ethical approach. In particular, the Commission will support a European registry of human embryonic stem cell lines. Support for such a registry will allow a monitoring of existing human embryonic stem cells in Europe, will contribute to maximise their use by scientists and may help to avoid unnecessary derivations of new stem cell lines.

(12) The European Commission will continue with the current practice and will not submit to the Regulatory Committee proposals for projects which include research activities which destroy human embryos, including for the procurement of stem cells. The exclusion of funding of this step of research will not prevent Community funding of subsequent steps involving human embryonic stem cells.

Re the Energy theme

The ten themes of the Cooperation Programme include research needed to underpin the formulation, implementation and assessment of Community policies to which the Commission attaches a central role. It appreciates the importance that the European Parliament attaches to energy policy in general and to the promotion of energy efficiency and renewable energy sources in particular. In order to allow the Parliament to follow the implementation of the Programme, the Commission intends to continue the policy of transparency and provision of information. Appropriate information on projects funded by the FP will be fully available to the public through the internet. Particular attention will be given to ensuring, at least every two years, a comprehensive presentation of projects related to rational and efficient use of energy and the role of renewable energy sources.

Re Ideas

In the context of the progress report referred to in Article 7(2) and preceding the interim evaluation, the Commission will present to the European Parliament and the Council by mid-2008 a Communication on the methodology and terms of reference to be used for the review to be carried out by independent experts concerning the ERC's structures and mechanisms. If necessary the Commission will present a proposal for the adaptation of the Framework Programme.

COUNCIL OF EUROPE

CONSEIL DE L'EUROPE

DH-BIO/INF (2015) 13
FINAL

COMMITTEE ON BIOETHICS
(DH-BIO)

8th meeting
1-4 December 2015
Strasbourg

Statement on genome editing technologies

adopted by the DH-BIO

- The development of new genome editing technologies, such as CRISPR-Cas9, has given rise to important reaction in particular within the scientific community. Gene modification methods are not new and have been used for several decades playing an essential role in biomedical research. The new genome editing technologies have made possible simple and precise modifications in a wide variety of species.

- There is strong support for the better understanding of the causes of diseases and for future treatment and these technologies have considerable potential for research in this field and to improve human health. However, the application of genome editing technologies to human gametes or embryos raises many ethical, social and safety issues, particularly from any modification of the human genome which could be passed on to future generations.

- These developments have led eminent experts and institutions within and outside the biomedical field worldwide to call for an in-depth analysis of potential risks of genome editing and for international and regional debate on its implications for the human being.

- In this context, the Committee on Bioethics (DH-BIO), representing 47 European states, wishes to recall the work carried out at the level of the Council of Europe on developments in the biomedical field and its implications for human being, and to underline the relevance of the framework provided by the Convention on Human Rights and Biomedicine (ETS N° 164, 1997), hereinafter referred to as "the Oviedo Convention" – the only international legally binding instrument addressing human rights in the biomedical field.

- The Convention represents the outcome of an in-depth discussion at European level, on developments in the biomedical field, in particular in the field of genetics. This work was guided by the acknowledgement of the positive perspectives of genetic modification with the development of knowledge of the human genome; but also by the greater possibility to intervene on and control genetic characteristics of human beings, raising concern about possible misuse and abuses, in particular the intentional modification of human genome so as to produce individuals or groups endowed with particular characteristics and required qualities.

- Article 13[1] of the Oviedo Convention addresses these concerns about genetic enhancement or germline genetic engineering by limiting the purposes of any intervention on the human genome, including in the field of research, to prevention, diagnosis or therapy. Furthermore, it prohibits any intervention with the aim of introducing a modification in the genome of any descendants.

- These expectations and concerns remain both very relevant today with regard to those new genome editing technologies.

The Committee on Bioethics (DH-BIO):

- is convinced that the Oviedo Convention provides principles that could be used as reference for the debate called for at international level on the fundamental questions raised by these recent technological developments; and recalls that the need for such debates was foreseen by the Convention in its Article 28[2];

- agrees, as part of its mandate, to examine the ethical and legal challenges raised by these emerging genome editing technologies, in the light of the principles laid down in the Oviedo Convention.

[1] Article 13 - Interventions on the human genome

An intervention seeking to modify the human genome may only be undertaken for preventive, diagnostic or therapeutic purposes and only if its aim is not to introduce any modification in the genome of any descendants.

[2] Article 28 – Public debate

Parties to this Convention shall see to it that the fundamental questions raised by the developments in biology and medicine are the subject of appropriate public discussion in the light, in particular, of relevant medical, social, economic, ethical and legal implications, and that their possible application is made the subject of appropriate consultation.

([3]) Position of the European Parliament of 12 March 2014 (not yet published in the Official Journal) and position of the Council at first reading of 8 April 2016 (not yet published in the Official Journal). Position of the European Parliament of 14 April 2016.
([4]) Directive 95/46/EC of the European Parliament and of the Council of 24 October 1995 on the protection of individuals with regard to the processing of personal data and on the free movement of such data (OJ L 281, 23.11.1995, p. 31).

(4) The processing of personal data should be designed to serve mankind. The right to the protection of personal data is not an absolute right; it must be considered in relation to its function in society and be balanced against other fundamental rights, in accordance with the principle of proportionality. This Regulation respects all fundamental rights and observes the freedoms and principles recognised in the Charter as enshrined in the Treaties, in particular the respect for private and family life, home and communications, the protection of personal data, freedom of thought, conscience and religion, freedom of expression and information, freedom to conduct a business, the right to an effective remedy and to a fair trial, and cultural, religious and linguistic diversity.

(5) The economic and social integration resulting from the functioning of the internal market has led to a substantial increase in cross-border flows of personal data. The exchange of personal data between public and private actors, including natural persons, associations and undertakings across the Union has increased. National authorities in the Member States are being called upon by Union law to cooperate and exchange personal data so as to be able to perform their duties or carry out tasks on behalf of an authority in another Member State.

(6) Rapid technological developments and globalisation have brought new challenges for the protection of personal data. The scale of the collection and sharing of personal data has increased significantly. Technology allows both private companies and public authorities to make use of personal data on an unprecedented scale in order to pursue their activities. Natural persons increasingly make personal information available publicly and globally. Technology has transformed both the economy and social life, and should further facilitate the free flow of personal data within the Union and the transfer to third countries and international organisations, while ensuring a high level of the protection of personal data.

(7) Those developments require a strong and more coherent data protection framework in the Union, backed by strong enforcement, given the importance of creating the trust that will allow the digital economy to develop across the internal market. Natural persons should have control of their own personal data. Legal and practical certainty for natural persons, economic operators and public authorities should be enhanced.

(8) Where this Regulation provides for specifications or restrictions of its rules by Member State law, Member States may, as far as necessary for coherence and for making the national provisions comprehensible to the persons to whom they apply, incorporate elements of this Regulation into their national law.

(9) The objectives and principles of Directive 95/46/EC remain sound, but it has not prevented fragmentation in the implementation of data protection across the Union, legal uncertainty or a widespread public perception that there are significant risks to the protection of natural persons, in particular with regard to online activity. Differences in the level of protection of the rights and freedoms of natural persons, in particular the right to the protection of personal data, with regard to the processing of personal data in the Member States may prevent the free flow of personal data throughout the Union. Those differences may therefore constitute an obstacle to the pursuit of economic activities at the level of the Union, distort competition and impede authorities in the discharge of their responsibilities under Union law. Such a difference in levels of protection is due to the existence of differences in the implementation and application of Directive 95/46/EC.

(10) In order to ensure a consistent and high level of protection of natural persons and to remove the obstacles to flows of personal data within the Union, the level of protection of the rights and freedoms of natural persons with regard to the processing of such data should be equivalent in all Member States. Consistent and homogenous application of the rules for the protection of the fundamental rights and freedoms of natural persons with regard to the processing of personal data should be ensured throughout the Union. Regarding the processing of personal data for compliance with a legal obligation, for the performance of a task carried out in the public interest or in the exercise of official authority vested in the controller, Member States should be allowed to maintain or introduce national provisions to further specify the application of the rules of this Regulation. In conjunction with the general and horizontal law on data protection implementing Directive 95/46/EC, Member States have several sector-specific laws in areas that need more specific provisions. This Regulation also provides a margin of manoeuvre for Member States to specify its rules, including for the processing of special categories of personal data ('sensitive data'). To that extent, this Regulation does not exclude Member State law that sets out the circumstances for specific processing situations, including determining more precisely the conditions under which the processing of personal data is lawful.

(11) Effective protection of personal data throughout the Union requires the strengthening and setting out in detail of the rights of data subjects and the obligations of those who process and determine the processing of personal data, as well as equivalent powers for monitoring and ensuring compliance with the rules for the protection of personal data and equivalent sanctions for infringements in the Member States.

(12) Article 16(2) TFEU mandates the European Parliament and the Council to lay down the rules relating to the protection of natural persons with regard to the processing of personal data and the rules relating to the free movement of personal data.

(13) In order to ensure a consistent level of protection for natural persons throughout the Union and to prevent divergences hampering the free movement of personal data within the internal market, a Regulation is necessary to provide legal certainty and transparency for economic operators, including micro, small and medium-sized enterprises, and to provide natural persons in all Member States with the same level of legally enforceable rights and obligations and responsibilities for controllers and processors, to ensure consistent monitoring of the processing of personal data, and equivalent sanctions in all Member States as well as effective cooperation between the supervisory authorities of different Member States. The proper functioning of the internal market requires that the free movement of personal data within the Union is not restricted or prohibited for reasons connected with the protection of natural persons with regard to the processing of personal data. To take account of the specific situation of micro, small and medium-sized enterprises, this Regulation includes a derogation for organisations with fewer than 250 employees with regard to record-keeping. In addition, the Union institutions and bodies, and Member States and their supervisory authorities, are encouraged to take account of the specific needs of micro, small and medium-sized enterprises in the application of this Regulation. The notion of micro, small and medium-sized enterprises should draw from Article 2 of the Annex to Commission Recommendation 2003/361/EC ([1]).

(14) The protection afforded by this Regulation should apply to natural persons, whatever their nationality or place of residence, in relation to the processing of their personal data. This Regulation does not cover the processing of personal data which concerns legal persons and in particular undertakings established as legal persons, including the name and the form of the legal person and the contact details of the legal person.

(15) In order to prevent creating a serious risk of circumvention, the protection of natural persons should be technologically neutral and should not depend on the techniques used. The protection of natural persons should apply to the processing of personal data by automated means, as well as to manual processing, if the personal data are contained or are intended to be contained in a filing system. Files or sets of files, as well as their cover pages, which are not structured according to specific criteria should not fall within the scope of this Regulation.

(16) This Regulation does not apply to issues of protection of fundamental rights and freedoms or the free flow of personal data related to activities which fall outside the scope of Union law, such as activities concerning national security. This Regulation does not apply to the processing of personal data by the Member States when carrying out activities in relation to the common foreign and security policy of the Union.

(17) Regulation (EC) No 45/2001 of the European Parliament and of the Council ([2]) applies to the processing of personal data by the Union institutions, bodies, offices and agencies. Regulation (EC) No 45/2001 and other Union legal acts applicable to such processing of personal data should be adapted to the principles and rules established in this Regulation and applied in the light of this Regulation. In order to provide a strong and coherent data protection framework in the Union, the necessary adaptations of Regulation (EC) No 45/2001 should follow after the adoption of this Regulation, in order to allow application at the same time as this Regulation.

(18) This Regulation does not apply to the processing of personal data by a natural person in the course of a purely personal or household activity and thus with no connection to a professional or commercial activity. Personal or household activities could include correspondence and the holding of addresses, or social networking and online activity undertaken within the context of such activities. However, this Regulation applies to controllers or processors which provide the means for processing personal data for such personal or household activities.

(19) The protection of natural persons with regard to the processing of personal data by competent authorities for the purposes of the prevention, investigation, detection or prosecution of criminal offences or the execution of criminal penalties, including the safeguarding against and the prevention of threats to public security and the free movement of such data, is the subject of a specific Union legal act. This Regulation should not, therefore, apply to processing activities for those purposes. However, personal data processed by public authorities under this Regulation should, when used for those purposes, be governed by a more specific Union legal act, namely Directive (EU) 2016/680 of the European Parliament and of the Council ([1]). Member States may entrust competent authorities within the meaning of Directive (EU) 2016/680 with tasks which are not necessarily carried out for the purposes of the prevention, investigation, detection or prosecution of criminal offences or the execution of criminal penalties, including the safeguarding against and prevention of threats to public security, so that the processing of personal data for those other purposes, in so far as it is within the scope of Union law, falls within the scope of this Regulation.

With regard to the processing of personal data by those competent authorities for purposes falling within scope of this Regulation, Member States should be able to maintain or introduce more specific provisions to adapt the application of the rules of this Regulation. Such provisions may determine more precisely specific requirements for the processing of personal data by those competent authorities for those other purposes, taking into account the constitutional, organisational and administrative structure of the respective Member State. When the processing of personal data by private bodies falls within the scope of this Regulation, this Regulation should provide for the possibility for Member States under specific conditions to restrict by law certain obligations and rights when such a restriction constitutes a necessary and proportionate measure in a democratic society to safeguard specific important interests including public security and the prevention, investigation, detection or prosecution of criminal offences or the execution of criminal penalties, including the safeguarding against and the prevention of threats to public security. This is relevant for instance in the framework of anti-money laundering or the activities of forensic laboratories.

(20) While this Regulation applies, inter alia, to the activities of courts and other judicial authorities, Union or Member State law could specify the processing operations and processing procedures in relation to the processing of personal data by courts and other judicial authorities. The competence of the supervisory authorities should not cover the processing of personal data when courts are acting in their judicial capacity, in order to safeguard the independence of the judiciary in the performance of its judicial tasks, including decision-making. It should be possible to entrust supervision of such data processing operations to specific bodies within the judicial system of the Member State, which should, in particular ensure compliance with the rules of this Regulation, enhance awareness among members of the judiciary of their obligations under this Regulation and handle complaints in relation to such data processing operations.

(21) This Regulation is without prejudice to the application of Directive 2000/31/EC of the European Parliament and of the Council ([2]), in particular of the liability rules of intermediary service providers in Articles 12 to 15 of that Directive. That Directive seeks to contribute to the proper functioning of the internal market by ensuring the free movement of information society services between Member States.

(22) Any processing of personal data in the context of the activities of an establishment of a controller or a processor in the Union should be carried out in accordance with this Regulation, regardless of whether the processing itself takes place within the Union. Establishment implies the effective and real exercise of activity through stable arrangements. The legal form of such arrangements, whether through a branch or a subsidiary with a legal personality, is not the determining factor in that respect.

(23) In order to ensure that natural persons are not deprived of the protection to which they are entitled under this Regulation, the processing of personal data of data subjects who are in the Union by a controller or a processor not established in the Union should be subject to this Regulation where the processing activities are related to offering goods or services to such data subjects irrespective of whether connected to a payment. In order to determine whether such a controller or processor is offering goods or services to data subjects who are in the Union, it should be ascertained whether it is apparent that the controller or processor envisages offering services to data subjects in one or more Member States in the Union. Whereas the mere accessibility of the controller's, processor's or an intermediary's website in the Union, of an email address or of other contact details, or the use of a language generally used in the third country where the controller is established, is insufficient to ascertain such intention, factors such as the use of a language or a currency generally used in one or more Member States with the possibility of ordering goods and services in that other language, or the mentioning of customers or users who are in the Union, may make it apparent that the controller envisages offering goods or services to data subjects in the Union.

(24) The processing of personal data of data subjects who are in the Union by a controller or processor not established in the Union should also be subject to this Regulation when it is related to the monitoring of the behaviour of such data subjects in so far as their behaviour takes place within the Union. In order to determine whether a processing activity can be considered to monitor the behaviour of data subjects, it should be ascertained whether natural persons are tracked on the internet including potential subsequent use of personal data processing techniques which consist of profiling a natural person, particularly in order to take decisions concerning her or him or for analysing or predicting her or his personal preferences, behaviours and attitudes.

(25) Where Member State law applies by virtue of public international law, this Regulation should also apply to a controller not established in the Union, such as in a Member State's diplomatic mission or consular post.

(26) The principles of data protection should apply to any information concerning an identified or identifiable natural person. Personal data which have undergone pseudonymisation, which could be attributed to a natural person by the use of additional information should be considered to be information on an identifiable natural person. To determine whether a natural person is identifiable, account should be taken of all the means reasonably likely to be used, such as singling out, either by the controller or by another person to identify the natural person directly or indirectly. To ascertain whether means are reasonably likely to be used to identify the natural person, account should be taken of all objective factors, such as the costs of and the amount of time required for identification, taking into consideration the available technology at the time of the processing and technological developments. The principles of data protection should therefore not apply to anonymous information, namely information which does not relate to an identified or identifiable natural person or to personal data rendered anonymous in such a manner that the data subject is not or no longer identifiable. This Regulation does not therefore concern the processing of such anonymous information, including for statistical or research purposes.

(27) This Regulation does not apply to the personal data of deceased persons. Member States may provide for rules regarding the processing of personal data of deceased persons.

(28) The application of pseudonymisation to personal data can reduce the risks to the data subjects concerned and help controllers and processors to meet their data-protection obligations. The explicit introduction of 'pseudonymisation' in this Regulation is not intended to preclude any other measures of data protection.

(29) In order to create incentives to apply pseudonymisation when processing personal data, measures of pseudonymisation should, whilst allowing general analysis, be possible within the same controller when that controller has taken technical and organisational measures necessary to ensure, for the processing concerned, that this Regulation is implemented, and that additional information for attributing the personal data to a specific data subject is kept separately. The controller processing the personal data should indicate the authorised persons within the same controller.

(30) Natural persons may be associated with online identifiers provided by their devices, applications, tools and protocols, such as internet protocol addresses, cookie identifiers or other identifiers such as radio frequency identification tags. This may leave traces which, in particular when combined with unique identifiers and other information received by the servers, may be used to create profiles of the natural persons and identify them.

(31) Public authorities to which personal data are disclosed in accordance with a legal obligation for the exercise of their official mission, such as tax and customs authorities, financial investigation units, independent administrative authorities, or financial market authorities responsible for the regulation and supervision of securities markets should not be regarded as recipients if they receive personal data which are necessary to carry out a particular inquiry in the general interest, in accordance with Union or Member State law. The requests for disclosure sent by the public authorities should always be in writing, reasoned and occasional and should not concern the entirety of a filing system or lead to the interconnection of filing systems. The processing of personal data by those public authorities should comply with the applicable data-protection rules according to the purposes of the processing.

(32) Consent should be given by a clear affirmative act establishing a freely given, specific, informed and unambiguous indication of the data subject's agreement to the processing of personal data relating to him or her, such as by a written statement, including by electronic means, or an oral statement. This could include ticking a box when visiting an internet website, choosing technical settings for information society services or another statement or conduct which clearly indicates in this context the data subject's acceptance of the proposed processing of his or her personal data. Silence, pre-ticked boxes or inactivity should not therefore constitute consent. Consent should cover all processing activities carried out for the same purpose or purposes. When the processing has multiple purposes, consent should be given for all of them. If the data subject's consent is to be given following a request by electronic means, the request must be clear, concise and not unnecessarily disruptive to the use of the service for which it is provided.

(33) It is often not possible to fully identify the purpose of personal data processing for scientific research purposes at the time of data collection. Therefore, data subjects should be allowed to give their consent to certain areas of scientific research when in keeping with recognised ethical standards for scientific research. Data subjects should have the opportunity to give their consent only to certain areas of research or parts of research projects to the extent allowed by the intended purpose.

(34) Genetic data should be defined as personal data relating to the inherited or acquired genetic characteristics of a natural person which result from the analysis of a biological sample from the natural person in question, in particular chromosomal, deoxyribonucleic acid (DNA) or ribonucleic acid (RNA) analysis, or from the analysis of another element enabling equivalent information to be obtained.

(35) Personal data concerning health should include all data pertaining to the health status of a data subject which reveal information relating to the past, current or future physical or mental health status of the data subject. This includes information about the natural person collected in the course of the registration for, or the provision of, health care services as referred to in Directive 2011/24/EU of the European Parliament and of the Council ([1]) to that natural person; a number, symbol or particular assigned to a natural person to uniquely identify the natural person for health purposes; information derived from the testing or examination of a body part or bodily substance, including from genetic data and biological samples; and any information on, for example, a disease, disability, disease risk, medical history, clinical treatment or the physiological or biomedical state of the data subject independent of its source, for example from a physician or other health professional, a hospital, a medical device or an in vitro diagnostic test.

(36) The main establishment of a controller in the Union should be the place of its central administration in the Union, unless the decisions on the purposes and means of the processing of personal data are taken in another establishment of the controller in the Union, in which case that other establishment should be considered to be the main establishment. The main establishment of a controller in the Union should be determined according to objective criteria and should imply the effective and real exercise of management activities determining the main decisions as to the purposes and means of processing through stable arrangements. That criterion should not depend on whether the processing of personal data is carried out at that location. The presence and use of technical means and technologies for processing personal data or processing activities do not, in themselves, constitute a main establishment and are therefore not determining criteria for a main establishment. The main establishment of the processor should be the place of its central administration in the Union or, if it has no central administration in the Union, the place where the main processing activities take place in the Union. In cases involving both the controller and the processor, the competent lead supervisory authority should remain the supervisory authority of the Member State where the controller has its main establishment, but the supervisory authority of the processor should be considered to be a supervisory authority concerned and that supervisory authority should participate in the cooperation procedure provided for by this Regulation. In any case, the supervisory authorities of the Member State or Member States where the processor has one or more establishments should not be considered to be supervisory authorities concerned where the draft decision concerns only the controller. Where the processing is carried out by a group of undertakings, the main establishment of the controlling undertaking should be considered to be the main establishment of the group of undertakings, except where the purposes and means of processing are determined by another undertaking.

(37) A group of undertakings should cover a controlling undertaking and its controlled undertakings, whereby the controlling undertaking should be the undertaking which can exert a dominant influence over the other undertakings by virtue, for example, of ownership, financial participation or the rules which govern it or the power to have personal data protection rules implemented. An undertaking which controls the processing of personal data in undertakings affiliated to it should be regarded, together with those undertakings, as a group of undertakings.

(38) Children merit specific protection with regard to their personal data, as they may be less aware of the risks, consequences and safeguards concerned and their rights in relation to the processing of personal data. Such specific protection should, in particular, apply to the use of personal data of children for the purposes of marketing or creating personality or user profiles and the collection of personal data with regard to children when using services offered directly to a child. The consent of the holder of parental responsibility should not be necessary in the context of preventive or counselling services offered directly to a child.

(39) Any processing of personal data should be lawful and fair. It should be transparent to natural persons that personal data concerning them are collected, used, consulted or otherwise processed and to what extent the personal data are or will be processed. The principle of transparency requires that any information and communication relating to the processing of those personal data be easily accessible and easy to understand, and that clear and plain language be used. That principle concerns, in particular, information to the data subjects on the identity of the controller and the purposes of the processing and further information to ensure fair and transparent processing in respect of the natural persons concerned and their right to obtain confirmation and communication of personal data concerning them which are being processed. Natural persons should be made aware of risks, rules, safeguards and rights in relation to the processing of personal data and how to exercise their rights in relation to such processing. In particular, the specific purposes for which personal data are processed should be explicit and legitimate and determined at the time of the collection of the personal data. The personal data should be adequate, relevant and limited to what is necessary for the purposes for which they are processed. This requires, in particular, ensuring that the period for which the personal data are stored is limited to a strict minimum. Personal data should be processed only if the purpose of the processing could not reasonably be fulfilled by other means. In order to ensure that the personal data are not kept longer than necessary, time limits should be established by the controller for erasure or for a periodic review. Every reasonable step should be taken to ensure that personal data which are inaccurate are rectified or deleted. Personal data should be processed in a manner that ensures appropriate security and confidentiality of the personal data, including for preventing unauthorised access to or use of personal data and the equipment used for the processing.

(40) In order for processing to be lawful, personal data should be processed on the basis of the consent of the data subject concerned or some other legitimate basis, laid down by law, either in this Regulation or in other Union or

Member State law as referred to in this Regulation, including the necessity for compliance with the legal obligation to which the controller is subject or the necessity for the performance of a contract to which the data subject is party or in order to take steps at the request of the data subject prior to entering into a contract.

(41) Where this Regulation refers to a legal basis or a legislative measure, this does not necessarily require a legislative act adopted by a parliament, without prejudice to requirements pursuant to the constitutional order of the Member State concerned. However, such a legal basis or legislative measure should be clear and precise and its application should be foreseeable to persons subject to it, in accordance with the case-law of the Court of Justice of the European Union (the 'Court of Justice') and the European Court of Human Rights.

(42) Where processing is based on the data subject's consent, the controller should be able to demonstrate that the data subject has given consent to the processing operation. In particular in the context of a written declaration on another matter, safeguards should ensure that the data subject is aware of the fact that and the extent to which consent is given. In accordance with Council Directive 93/13/EEC ([1]) a declaration of consent pre-formulated by the controller should be provided in an intelligible and easily accessible form, using clear and plain language and it should not contain unfair terms. For consent to be informed, the data subject should be aware at least of the identity of the controller and the purposes of the processing for which the personal data are intended. Consent should not be regarded as freely given if the data subject has no genuine or free choice or is unable to refuse or withdraw consent without detriment.

(43) In order to ensure that consent is freely given, consent should not provide a valid legal ground for the processing of personal data in a specific case where there is a clear imbalance between the data subject and the controller, in particular where the controller is a public authority and it is therefore unlikely that consent was freely given in all the circumstances of that specific situation. Consent is presumed not to be freely given if it does not allow separate consent to be given to different personal data processing operations despite it being appropriate in the individual case, or if the performance of a contract, including the provision of a service, is dependent on the consent despite such consent not being necessary for such performance.

(44) Processing should be lawful where it is necessary in the context of a contract or the intention to enter into a contract.

(45) Where processing is carried out in accordance with a legal obligation to which the controller is subject or where processing is necessary for the performance of a task carried out in the public interest or in the exercise of official authority, the processing should have a basis in Union or Member State law. This Regulation does not require a specific law for each individual processing. A law as a basis for several processing operations based on a legal obligation to which the controller is subject or where processing is necessary for the performance of a task carried out in the public interest or in the exercise of an official authority may be sufficient. It should also be for Union or Member State law to determine the purpose of processing. Furthermore, that law could specify the general conditions of this Regulation governing the lawfulness of personal data processing, establish specifications for determining the controller, the type of personal data which are subject to the processing, the data subjects concerned, the entities to which the personal data may be disclosed, the purpose limitations, the storage period and other measures to ensure lawful and fair processing. It should also be for Union or Member State law to determine whether the controller performing a task carried out in the public interest or in the exercise of official authority should be a public authority or another natural or legal person governed by public law, or, where it is in the public interest to do so, including for health purposes such as public health and social protection and the management of health care services, by private law, such as a professional association.

(46) The processing of personal data should also be regarded to be lawful where it is necessary to protect an interest which is essential for the life of the data subject or that of another natural person. Processing of personal data based on the vital interest of another natural person should in principle take place only where the processing cannot be manifestly based on another legal basis. Some types of processing may serve both important grounds of public interest and the vital interests of the data subject as for instance when processing is necessary for humanitarian purposes, including for monitoring epidemics and their spread or in situations of humanitarian emergencies, in particular in situations of natural and man-made disasters.

(47) The legitimate interests of a controller, including those of a controller to which the personal data may be disclosed, or of a third party, may provide a legal basis for processing, provided that the interests or the fundamental rights and freedoms of the data subject are not overriding, taking into consideration the reasonable expectations of data subjects based on their relationship with the controller. Such legitimate interest could exist for example where there is a relevant and appropriate relationship between the data subject and the controller in situations such as where the data subject is a client or in the service of the controller. At any rate the existence of a legitimate interest would need careful assessment including whether a data subject can reasonably expect at the time and in the context of the collection of the personal data that processing for that purpose may take place. The interests and fundamental rights of the data subject could in particular override the interest of the data controller where personal data are processed in circumstances where data subjects do not reasonably expect further processing. Given that it is for the legislator to provide by law for the legal basis for public authorities to process personal data, that legal basis should not apply to the processing by public authorities in the performance of their tasks. The processing of personal data strictly necessary for the purposes of preventing fraud also constitutes a legitimate interest of the data controller concerned. The processing of personal data for direct marketing purposes may be regarded as carried out for a legitimate interest.

(48) Controllers that are part of a group of undertakings or institutions affiliated to a central body may have a legitimate interest in transmitting personal data within the group of undertakings for internal administrative purposes, including the processing of clients' or employees' personal data. The general principles for the transfer of personal data, within a group of undertakings, to an undertaking located in a third country remain unaffected.

(49) The processing of personal data to the extent strictly necessary and proportionate for the purposes of ensuring network and information security, i.e. the ability of a network or an information system to resist, at a given level of confidence, accidental events or unlawful or malicious actions that compromise the availability, authenticity, integrity and confidentiality of stored or transmitted personal data, and the security of the related services offered by, or accessible via, those networks and systems, by public authorities, by computer emergency response teams (CERTs), computer security incident response teams (CSIRTs), by providers of electronic communications networks and services and by providers of security technologies and services, constitutes a legitimate interest of the data controller concerned. This could, for example, include preventing unauthorised access to electronic communications networks and malicious code distribution and stopping 'denial of service' attacks and damage to computer and electronic communication systems.

(50) The processing of personal data for purposes other than those for which the personal data were initially collected should be allowed only where the processing is compatible with the purposes for which the personal data were initially collected. In such a case, no legal basis separate from that which allowed the collection of the personal data is required. If the processing is necessary for the performance of a task carried out in the public interest or in the exercise of official authority vested in the controller, Union or Member State law may determine and specify the tasks and purposes for which the further processing should be regarded as compatible and lawful. Further processing for archiving purposes in the public interest, scientific or historical research purposes or statistical purposes should be considered to be compatible lawful processing operations. The legal basis provided by Union or Member State law for the processing of personal data may also provide a legal basis for further processing. In order to ascertain whether a purpose of further processing is compatible with the purpose for which the personal data are initially collected, the controller, after having met all the requirements for the lawfulness of the original processing, should take into account, inter alia: any link between those purposes and the purposes of the intended further processing; the context in which the personal data have been collected, in particular the reasonable expectations of data subjects based on their relationship with the controller as to their further use; the nature of the personal data; the consequences of the intended further processing for data subjects; and the existence of appropriate safeguards in both the original and intended further processing operations.

Where the data subject has given consent or the processing is based on Union or Member State law which constitutes a necessary and proportionate measure in a democratic society to safeguard, in particular, important objectives of general public interest, the controller should be allowed to further process the personal data irrespective of the compatibility of the purposes. In any case, the application of the principles set out in this Regulation and in particular the information of the data subject on those other purposes and on his or her rights including the right to object, should be ensured. Indicating possible criminal acts or threats to public security by the controller and transmitting the relevant personal data in individual cases or in several cases relating to the same criminal act or threats to public security to a competent authority should be regarded as being in the legitimate interest pursued by the controller. However, such transmission in the legitimate interest of the controller or further processing of personal data should be prohibited if the processing is not compatible with a legal, professional or other binding obligation of secrecy.

(51) Personal data which are, by their nature, particularly sensitive in relation to fundamental rights and freedoms merit specific protection as the context of their processing could create significant risks to the fundamental rights and freedoms. Those personal data should include personal data revealing racial or ethnic origin, whereby the use of the term 'racial origin' in this Regulation does not imply an acceptance by the Union of theories which attempt to determine the existence of separate human races. The processing of photographs should not systematically be considered to be processing of special categories of personal data as they are covered by the definition of biometric data only when processed through a specific technical means allowing the unique identification or authentication of a natural person. Such personal data should not be processed, unless processing is allowed in specific cases set out in this Regulation, taking into account that Member States law may lay down specific provisions on data protection in order to adapt the application of the rules of this Regulation for compliance with a legal obligation or for the performance of a task carried out in the public interest or in the exercise of official authority vested in the controller. In addition to the specific requirements for such processing, the general principles and other rules of this Regulation should apply, in particular as regards the conditions for lawful processing. Derogations from the general prohibition for processing such special categories of personal data should be explicitly provided, inter alia, where the data subject gives his or her explicit consent or in respect of specific needs in particular where the processing is carried out in the course of legitimate activities by certain associations or foundations the purpose of which is to permit the exercise of fundamental freedoms.

(52) Derogating from the prohibition on processing special categories of personal data should also be allowed when provided for in Union or Member State law and subject to suitable safeguards, so as to protect personal data and other fundamental rights, where it is in the public interest to do so, in particular processing personal data in the field of employment law, social protection law including pensions and for health security, monitoring and alert purposes, the prevention or control of communicable diseases and other serious threats to health. Such a derogation may be made for health purposes, including public health and the management of health-care services, especially in order to ensure the quality and cost-effectiveness of the procedures used for settling claims for benefits and services in the health insurance system, or for archiving purposes in the public interest, scientific or historical research purposes or statistical purposes. A derogation should also allow the processing of such personal data where necessary for the establishment, exercise or defence of legal claims, whether in court proceedings or in an administrative or out-of-court procedure.

(53) Special categories of personal data which merit higher protection should be processed for health-related purposes only where necessary to achieve those purposes for the benefit of natural persons and society as a whole, in particular in the context of the management of health or social care services and systems, including processing by the management and central national health authorities of such data for the purpose of quality control, management information and the general national and local supervision of the health or social care system, and ensuring continuity of health or social care and cross-border healthcare or health security, monitoring and alert purposes, or for archiving purposes in the public interest, scientific or historical research purposes or statistical purposes, based on Union or Member State law which has to meet an objective of public interest, as well as for studies conducted in the public interest in the area of public health. Therefore, this Regulation should provide for harmonised conditions for the processing of special categories of personal data concerning health, in respect of specific needs, in particular where the processing of such data is carried out for certain health-related purposes by persons subject to a legal obligation of professional secrecy. Union or Member State law should provide for specific and suitable measures so as to protect the fundamental rights and the personal data of natural persons. Member States should be allowed to maintain or introduce further conditions, including limitations, with regard to the processing of genetic data, biometric data or data concerning health. However, this should not hamper the free flow of personal data within the Union when those conditions apply to cross-border processing of such data.

(54) The processing of special categories of personal data may be necessary for reasons of public interest in the areas of public health without consent of the data subject. Such processing should be subject to suitable and specific measures so as to protect the rights and freedoms of natural persons. In that context, 'public health' should be interpreted as defined in Regulation (EC) No 1338/2008 of the European Parliament and of the Council ([1]), namely all elements related to health, namely health status, including morbidity and disability, the determinants having an effect on that health status, health care needs, resources allocated to health care, the provision of, and universal access to, health care as well as health care expenditure and financing, and the causes of mortality. Such processing of data concerning health for reasons of public interest should not result in personal data being processed for other purposes by third parties such as employers or insurance and banking companies.

(55) Moreover, the processing of personal data by official authorities for the purpose of achieving the aims, laid down by constitutional law or by international public law, of officially recognised religious associations, is carried out on grounds of public interest.

(56) Where in the course of electoral activities, the operation of the democratic system in a Member State requires that political parties compile personal data on people's political opinions, the processing of such data may be permitted for reasons of public interest, provided that appropriate safeguards are established.

(57) If the personal data processed by a controller do not permit the controller to identify a natural person, the data controller should not be obliged to acquire additional information in order to identify the data subject for the sole purpose of complying with any provision of this Regulation. However, the controller should not refuse to take additional information provided by the data subject in order to support the exercise of his or her rights. Identification should include the digital identification of a data subject, for example through authentication mechanism such as the same credentials, used by the data subject to log-in to the on-line service offered by the data controller.

(58) The principle of transparency requires that any information addressed to the public or to the data subject be concise, easily accessible and easy to understand, and that clear and plain language and, additionally, where appropriate, visualisation be used. Such information could be provided in electronic form, for example, when addressed to the public, through a website. This is of particular relevance in situations where the proliferation of actors and the technological complexity of practice make it difficult for the data subject to know and understand whether, by whom and for what purpose personal data relating to him or her are being collected, such as in the case of online advertising. Given that children merit specific protection, any information and communication, where processing is addressed to a child, should be in such a clear and plain language that the child can easily understand.

(59) Modalities should be provided for facilitating the exercise of the data subject's rights under this Regulation, including mechanisms to request and, if applicable, obtain, free of charge, in particular, access to and rectification or erasure of personal data and the exercise of the right to object. The controller should also provide means for requests to be made electronically, especially where personal data are processed by electronic means. The controller should be obliged to respond to requests from the data subject without undue delay and at the latest within one month and to give reasons where the controller does not intend to comply with any such requests.

([1]) Regulation (EC) No 1338/2008 of the European Parliament and of the Council of 16 December 2008 on Community statistics on public health and health and safety at work (OJ L 354, 31.12.2008, p. 70).

(60) The principles of fair and transparent processing require that the data subject be informed of the existence of the processing operation and its purposes. The controller should provide the data subject with any further information necessary to ensure fair and transparent processing taking into account the specific circumstances and context in which the personal data are processed. Furthermore, the data subject should be informed of the existence of profiling and the consequences of such profiling. Where the personal data are collected from the data subject, the data subject should also be informed whether he or she is obliged to provide the personal data and of the consequences, where he or she does not provide such data. That information may be provided in combination with standardised icons in order to give in an easily visible, intelligible and clearly legible manner, a meaningful overview of the intended processing. Where the icons are presented electronically, they should be machine-readable.

(61) The information in relation to the processing of personal data relating to the data subject should be given to him or her at the time of collection from the data subject, or, where the personal data are obtained from another source, within a reasonable period, depending on the circumstances of the case. Where personal data can be legitimately disclosed to another recipient, the data subject should be informed when the personal data are first disclosed to the recipient. Where the controller intends to process the personal data for a purpose other than that for which they were collected, the controller should provide the data subject prior to that further processing with information on that other purpose and other necessary information. Where the origin of the personal data cannot be provided to the data subject because various sources have been used, general information should be provided.

(62) However, it is not necessary to impose the obligation to provide information where the data subject already possesses the information, where the recording or disclosure of the personal data is expressly laid down by law or where the provision of information to the data subject proves to be impossible or would involve a disproportionate effort. The latter could in particular be the case where processing is carried out for archiving purposes in the public interest, scientific or historical research purposes or statistical purposes. In that regard, the number of data subjects, the age of the data and any appropriate safeguards adopted should be taken into consideration.

(63) A data subject should have the right of access to personal data which have been collected concerning him or her, and to exercise that right easily and at reasonable intervals, in order to be aware of, and verify, the lawfulness of the processing. This includes the right for data subjects to have access to data concerning their health, for example the data in their medical records containing information such as diagnoses, examination results, assessments by treating physicians and any treatment or interventions provided. Every data subject should therefore have the right to know and obtain communication in particular with regard to the purposes for which the personal data are processed, where possible the period for which the personal data are processed, the recipients of the personal data, the logic involved in any automatic personal data processing and, at least when based on profiling, the consequences of such processing. Where possible, the controller should be able to provide remote access to a secure system which would provide the data subject with direct access to his or her personal data. That right should not adversely affect the rights or freedoms of others, including trade secrets or intellectual property and in particular the copyright protecting the software. However, the result of those considerations should not be a refusal to provide all information to the data subject. Where the controller processes a large quantity of information concerning the data subject, the controller should be able to request that, before the information is delivered, the data subject specify the information or processing activities to which the request relates.

(64) The controller should use all reasonable measures to verify the identity of a data subject who requests access, in particular in the context of online services and online identifiers. A controller should not retain personal data for the sole purpose of being able to react to potential requests.

(65) A data subject should have the right to have personal data concerning him or her rectified and a 'right to be forgotten' where the retention of such data infringes this Regulation or Union or Member State law to which the controller is subject. In particular, a data subject should have the right to have his or her personal data erased and no longer processed where the personal data are no longer necessary in relation to the purposes for which they are collected or otherwise processed, where a data subject has withdrawn his or her consent or objects to the processing of personal data concerning him or her, or where the processing of his or her personal data does not otherwise comply with this Regulation. That right is relevant in particular where the data subject has given his or her consent as a child and is not fully aware of the risks involved by the processing, and later wants to remove such personal data, especially on the internet. The data subject should be able to exercise that right notwithstanding the fact that he or she is no longer a child. However, the further retention of the personal data should be lawful where it is necessary, for exercising the right of freedom of expression and information, for compliance with a legal obligation, for the performance of a task carried out in the public interest or in the exercise of official authority vested in the controller, on the grounds of public interest in the area of public health, for archiving purposes in the public interest, scientific or historical research purposes or statistical purposes, or for the establishment, exercise or defence of legal claims.

(66) To strengthen the right to be forgotten in the online environment, the right to erasure should also be extended in such a way that a controller who has made the personal data public should be obliged to inform the controllers which are processing such personal data to erase any links to, or copies or replications of those personal data. In doing so, that controller should take reasonable steps, taking into account available technology and the means available to the controller, including technical measures, to inform the controllers which are processing the personal data of the data subject's request.

(67) Methods by which to restrict the processing of personal data could include, inter alia, temporarily moving the selected data to another processing system, making the selected personal data unavailable to users, or temporarily removing published data from a website. In automated filing systems, the restriction of processing should in principle be ensured by technical means in such a manner that the personal data are not subject to further processing operations and cannot be changed. The fact that the processing of personal data is restricted should be clearly indicated in the system.

(68) To further strengthen the control over his or her own data, where the processing of personal data is carried out by automated means, the data subject should also be allowed to receive personal data concerning him or her which he or she has provided to a controller in a structured, commonly used, machine-readable and interoperable format, and to transmit it to another controller. Data controllers should be encouraged to develop interoperable formats that enable data portability. That right should apply where the data subject provided the personal data on the basis of his or her consent or the processing is necessary for the performance of a contract. It should not apply where processing is based on a legal ground other than consent or contract. By its very nature, that right should not be exercised against controllers processing personal data in the exercise of their public duties. It should therefore not apply where the processing of the personal data is necessary for compliance with a legal obligation to which the controller is subject or for the performance of a task carried out in the public interest or in the exercise of an official authority vested in the controller. The data subject's right to transmit or receive personal data concerning him or her should not create an obligation for the controllers to adopt or maintain processing systems which are technically compatible. Where, in a certain set of personal data, more than one data subject is concerned, the right to receive the personal data should be without prejudice to the rights and freedoms of other data subjects in accordance with this Regulation. Furthermore, that right should not prejudice the right of the data subject to obtain the erasure of personal data and the limitations of that right as set out in this Regulation and should, in particular, not imply the erasure of personal data concerning the data subject which have been provided by him or her for the performance of a contract to the extent that and for as long as the personal data are necessary for the performance of that contract. Where technically feasible, the data subject should have the right to have the personal data transmitted directly from one controller to another.

(69) Where personal data might lawfully be processed because processing is necessary for the performance of a task carried out in the public interest or in the exercise of official authority vested in the controller, or on grounds of the legitimate interests of a controller or a third party, a data subject should, nevertheless, be entitled to object to the processing of any personal data relating to his or her particular situation. It should be for the controller to demonstrate that its compelling legitimate interest overrides the interests or the fundamental rights and freedoms of the data subject.

(70) Where personal data are processed for the purposes of direct marketing, the data subject should have the right to object to such processing, including profiling to the extent that it is related to such direct marketing, whether with regard to initial or further processing, at any time and free of charge. That right should be explicitly brought to the attention of the data subject and presented clearly and separately from any other information.

(71) The data subject should have the right not to be subject to a decision, which may include a measure, evaluating personal aspects relating to him or her which is based solely on automated processing and which produces legal effects concerning him or her or similarly significantly affects him or her, such as automatic refusal of an online credit application or e-recruiting practices without any human intervention. Such processing includes 'profiling' that consists of any form of automated processing of personal data evaluating the personal aspects relating to a natural person, in particular to analyse or predict aspects concerning the data subject's performance at work, economic situation, health, personal preferences or interests, reliability or behaviour, location or movements, where it produces legal effects concerning him or her or similarly significantly affects him or her. However, decision-making based on such processing, including profiling, should be allowed where expressly authorised by Union or Member State law to which the controller is subject, including for fraud and tax-evasion monitoring and prevention purposes conducted in accordance with the regulations, standards and recommendations of Union institutions or national oversight bodies and to ensure the security and reliability of a service provided by the controller, or necessary for the entering or performance of a contract between the data subject and a controller, or when the data subject has given his or her explicit consent. In any case, such processing should be subject to suitable safeguards, which should include specific information to the data subject and the right to obtain human intervention, to express his or her point of view, to obtain an explanation of the decision reached after such assessment and to challenge the decision. Such measure should not concern a child.

In order to ensure fair and transparent processing in respect of the data subject, taking into account the specific circumstances and context in which the personal data are processed, the controller should use appropriate mathematical or statistical procedures for the profiling, implement technical and organisational measures appropriate to ensure, in particular, that factors which result in inaccuracies in personal data are corrected and the risk of errors is minimised, secure personal data in a manner that takes account of the potential risks involved for the interests and rights of the data subject and that prevents, inter alia, discriminatory effects on natural persons on the basis of racial or ethnic origin, political opinion, religion or beliefs, trade union membership, genetic or health status or sexual orientation, or that result in measures having such an effect. Automated decision-making and profiling based on special categories of personal data should be allowed only under specific conditions.

(72) Profiling is subject to the rules of this Regulation governing the processing of personal data, such as the legal grounds for processing or data protection principles. The European Data Protection Board established by this Regulation (the 'Board') should be able to issue guidance in that context.

(73) Restrictions concerning specific principles and the rights of information, access to and rectification or erasure of personal data, the right to data portability, the right to object, decisions based on profiling, as well as the communication of a personal data breach to a data subject and certain related obligations of the controllers may be imposed by Union or Member State law, as far as necessary and proportionate in a democratic society to safeguard public security, including the protection of human life especially in response to natural or manmade disasters, the prevention, investigation and prosecution of criminal offences or the execution of criminal penalties, including the safeguarding against and the prevention of threats to public security, or of breaches of ethics for regulated professions, other important objectives of general public interest of the Union or of a Member State, in particular an important economic or financial interest of the Union or of a Member State, the keeping of public registers kept for reasons of general public interest, further processing of archived personal data to provide specific information related to the political behaviour under former totalitarian state regimes or the protection of the data subject or the rights and freedoms of others, including social protection, public health and humanitarian purposes. Those restrictions should be in accordance with the requirements set out in the Charter and in the European Convention for the Protection of Human Rights and Fundamental Freedoms.

(74) The responsibility and liability of the controller for any processing of personal data carried out by the controller or on the controller's behalf should be established. In particular, the controller should be obliged to implement appropriate and effective measures and be able to demonstrate the compliance of processing activities with this Regulation, including the effectiveness of the measures. Those measures should take into account the nature, scope, context and purposes of the processing and the risk to the rights and freedoms of natural persons.

(75) The risk to the rights and freedoms of natural persons, of varying likelihood and severity, may result from personal data processing which could lead to physical, material or non-material damage, in particular: where the processing may give rise to discrimination, identity theft or fraud, financial loss, damage to the reputation, loss of confidentiality of personal data protected by professional secrecy, unauthorised reversal of pseudonymisation, or any other significant economic or social disadvantage; where data subjects might be deprived of their rights and freedoms or prevented from exercising control over their personal data; where personal data are processed which reveal racial or ethnic origin, political opinions, religion or philosophical beliefs, trade union membership, and the processing of genetic data, data concerning health or data concerning sex life or criminal convictions and offences or related security measures; where personal aspects are evaluated, in particular analysing or predicting aspects concerning performance at work, economic situation, health, personal preferences or interests, reliability or behaviour, location or movements, in order to create or use personal profiles; where personal data of vulnerable natural persons, in particular of children, are processed; or where processing involves a large amount of personal data and affects a large number of data subjects.

(76) The likelihood and severity of the risk to the rights and freedoms of the data subject should be determined by reference to the nature, scope, context and purposes of the processing. Risk should be evaluated on the basis of an objective assessment, by which it is established whether data processing operations involve a risk or a high risk.

(77) Guidance on the implementation of appropriate measures and on the demonstration of compliance by the controller or the processor, especially as regards the identification of the risk related to the processing, their assessment in terms of origin, nature, likelihood and severity, and the identification of best practices to mitigate the risk, could be provided in particular by means of approved codes of conduct, approved certifications, guidelines provided by the Board or indications provided by a data protection officer. The Board may also issue guidelines on processing operations that are considered to be unlikely to result in a high risk to the rights and freedoms of natural persons and indicate what measures may be sufficient in such cases to address such risk.

(78) The protection of the rights and freedoms of natural persons with regard to the processing of personal data require that appropriate technical and organisational measures be taken to ensure that the requirements of this Regulation are met. In order to be able to demonstrate compliance with this Regulation, the controller should adopt internal policies and implement measures which meet in particular the principles of data protection by design and data protection by default. Such measures could consist, inter alia, of minimising the processing of personal data, pseudonymising personal data as soon as possible, transparency with regard to the functions and processing of personal data, enabling the data subject to monitor the data processing, enabling the controller to create and improve security features. When developing, designing, selecting and using applications, services and products that are based on the processing of personal data or process personal data to fulfil their task, producers of the products, services and applications should be encouraged to take into account the right to data protection when developing and designing such products, services and applications and, with due regard to the state of the art, to make sure that controllers and processors are able to fulfil their data protection obligations. The principles of data protection by design and by default should also be taken into consideration in the context of public tenders.

(79) The protection of the rights and freedoms of data subjects as well as the responsibility and liability of controllers and processors, also in relation to the monitoring by and measures of supervisory authorities, requires a clear allocation of the responsibilities under this Regulation, including where a controller determines the purposes and means of the processing jointly with other controllers or where a processing operation is carried out on behalf of a controller.

(80) Where a controller or a processor not established in the Union is processing personal data of data subjects who are in the Union whose processing activities are related to the offering of goods or services, irrespective of whether a payment of the data subject is required, to such data subjects in the Union, or to the monitoring of their behaviour as far as their behaviour takes place within the Union, the controller or the processor should designate a representative, unless the processing is occasional, does not include processing, on a large scale, of special categories of personal data or the processing of personal data relating to criminal convictions and offences, and is unlikely to result in a risk to the rights and freedoms of natural persons, taking into account the nature, context, scope and purposes of the processing or if the controller is a public authority or body. The representative should act on behalf of the controller or the processor and may be addressed by any supervisory authority. The representative should be explicitly designated by a written mandate of the controller or of the processor to act on its behalf with regard to its obligations under this Regulation. The designation of such a representative does not affect the responsibility or liability of the controller or of the processor under this Regulation. Such a representative should perform its tasks according to the mandate received from the controller or processor, including cooperating with the competent supervisory authorities with regard to any action taken to ensure compliance with this Regulation. The designated representative should be subject to enforcement proceedings in the event of non-compliance by the controller or processor.

(81) To ensure compliance with the requirements of this Regulation in respect of the processing to be carried out by the processor on behalf of the controller, when entrusting a processor with processing activities, the controller should use only processors providing sufficient guarantees, in particular in terms of expert knowledge, reliability and resources, to implement technical and organisational measures which will meet the requirements of this Regulation, including for the security of processing. The adherence of the processor to an approved code of conduct or an approved certification mechanism may be used as an element to demonstrate compliance with the obligations of the controller. The carrying-out of processing by a processor should be governed by a contract or other legal act under Union or Member State law, binding the processor to the controller, setting out the subject-matter and duration of the processing, the nature and purposes of the processing, the type of personal data and categories of data subjects, taking into account the specific tasks and responsibilities of the processor in the context of the processing to be carried out and the risk to the rights and freedoms of the data subject. The controller and processor may choose to use an individual contract or standard contractual clauses which are adopted either directly by the Commission or by a supervisory authority in accordance with the consistency mechanism and then adopted by the Commission. After the completion of the processing on behalf of the controller, the processor should, at the choice of the controller, return or delete the personal data, unless there is a requirement to store the personal data under Union or Member State law to which the processor is subject.

(82) In order to demonstrate compliance with this Regulation, the controller or processor should maintain records of processing activities under its responsibility. Each controller and processor should be obliged to cooperate with the supervisory authority and make those records, on request, available to it, so that it might serve for monitoring those processing operations.

(83) In order to maintain security and to prevent processing in infringement of this Regulation, the controller or processor should evaluate the risks inherent in the processing and implement measures to mitigate those risks, such as encryption. Those measures should ensure an appropriate level of security, including confidentiality, taking into account the state of the art and the costs of implementation in relation to the risks and the nature of the personal data to be protected. In assessing data security risk, consideration should be given to the risks that are presented by personal data processing, such as accidental or unlawful destruction, loss, alteration, unauthorised disclosure of, or access to, personal data transmitted, stored or otherwise processed which may in particular lead to physical, material or non-material damage.

(84) In order to enhance compliance with this Regulation where processing operations are likely to result in a high risk to the rights and freedoms of natural persons, the controller should be responsible for the carrying-out of a data protection impact assessment to evaluate, in particular, the origin, nature, particularity and severity of that risk. The outcome of the assessment should be taken into account when determining the appropriate measures to be taken in order to demonstrate that the processing of personal data complies with this Regulation. Where a data-protection impact assessment indicates that processing operations involve a high risk which the controller cannot mitigate by appropriate measures in terms of available technology and costs of implementation, a consultation of the supervisory authority should take place prior to the processing.

(85) A personal data breach may, if not addressed in an appropriate and timely manner, result in physical, material or non-material damage to natural persons such as loss of control over their personal data or limitation of their rights, discrimination, identity theft or fraud, financial loss, unauthorised reversal of pseudonymisation, damage to reputation, loss of confidentiality of personal data protected by professional secrecy or any other significant economic or social disadvantage to the natural person concerned. Therefore, as soon as the controller becomes aware that a personal data breach has occurred, the controller should notify the personal data breach to the supervisory authority without undue delay and, where feasible, not later than 72 hours after having become aware of it, unless the controller is able to demonstrate, in accordance with the accountability principle, that the personal data breach is unlikely to result in a risk to the rights and freedoms of natural persons. Where such notification cannot be achieved within 72 hours, the reasons for the delay should accompany the notification and information may be provided in phases without undue further delay.

(86) The controller should communicate to the data subject a personal data breach, without undue delay, where that personal data breach is likely to result in a high risk to the rights and freedoms of the natural person in order to allow him or her to take the necessary precautions. The communication should describe the nature of the personal data breach as well as recommendations for the natural person concerned to mitigate potential adverse effects. Such communications to data subjects should be made as soon as reasonably feasible and in close cooperation with the supervisory authority, respecting guidance provided by it or by other relevant authorities such as law-enforcement authorities. For example, the need to mitigate an immediate risk of damage would call for prompt communication with data subjects whereas the need to implement appropriate measures against continuing or similar personal data breaches may justify more time for communication.

(87) It should be ascertained whether all appropriate technological protection and organisational measures have been implemented to establish immediately whether a personal data breach has taken place and to inform promptly the supervisory authority and the data subject. The fact that the notification was made without undue delay should be established taking into account in particular the nature and gravity of the personal data breach and its consequences and adverse effects for the data subject. Such notification may result in an intervention of the supervisory authority in accordance with its tasks and powers laid down in this Regulation.

(88) In setting detailed rules concerning the format and procedures applicable to the notification of personal data breaches, due consideration should be given to the circumstances of that breach, including whether or not personal data had been protected by appropriate technical protection measures, effectively limiting the likelihood of identity fraud or other forms of misuse. Moreover, such rules and procedures should take into account the legitimate interests of law-enforcement authorities where early disclosure could unnecessarily hamper the investigation of the circumstances of a personal data breach.

(89) Directive 95/46/EC provided for a general obligation to notify the processing of personal data to the supervisory authorities. While that obligation produces administrative and financial burdens, it did not in all cases contribute to improving the protection of personal data. Such indiscriminate general notification obligations should therefore be abolished, and replaced by effective procedures and mechanisms which focus instead on those types of processing operations which are likely to result in a high risk to the rights and freedoms of natural persons by virtue of their nature, scope, context and purposes. Such types of processing operations may be those which in, particular, involve using new technologies, or are of a new kind and where no data protection impact assessment has been carried out before by the controller, or where they become necessary in the light of the time that has elapsed since the initial processing.

(90) In such cases, a data protection impact assessment should be carried out by the controller prior to the processing in order to assess the particular likelihood and severity of the high risk, taking into account the nature, scope, context and purposes of the processing and the sources of the risk. That impact assessment should include, in particular, the measures, safeguards and mechanisms envisaged for mitigating that risk, ensuring the protection of personal data and demonstrating compliance with this Regulation.

(91) This should in particular apply to large-scale processing operations which aim to process a considerable amount of personal data at regional, national or supranational level and which could affect a large number of data subjects and which are likely to result in a high risk, for example, on account of their sensitivity, where in accordance with the achieved state of technological knowledge a new technology is used on a large scale as well as to other processing operations which result in a high risk to the rights and freedoms of data subjects, in particular where those operations render it more difficult for data subjects to exercise their rights. A data protection impact assessment should also be made where personal data are processed for taking decisions regarding specific natural persons following any systematic and extensive evaluation of personal aspects relating to natural persons based on profiling those data or following the processing of special categories of personal data, biometric data, or data on criminal convictions and offences or related security measures. A data protection impact assessment is equally required for monitoring publicly accessible areas on a large scale, especially when using optic-electronic devices or for any other operations where the competent supervisory authority considers that the processing is likely to result in a high risk to the rights and freedoms of data subjects, in particular because they prevent data subjects from exercising a right or using a service or a contract, or because they are carried out systematically on a large scale. The processing of personal data should not be considered to be on a large scale if the processing concerns personal data from patients or clients by an individual physician, other health care professional or lawyer. In such cases, a data protection impact assessment should not be mandatory.

(92) There are circumstances under which it may be reasonable and economical for the subject of a data protection impact assessment to be broader than a single project, for example where public authorities or bodies intend to establish a common application or processing platform or where several controllers plan to introduce a common application or processing environment across an industry sector or segment or for a widely used horizontal activity.

(93) In the context of the adoption of the Member State law on which the performance of the tasks of the public authority or public body is based and which regulates the specific processing operation or set of operations in question, Member States may deem it necessary to carry out such assessment prior to the processing activities.

(94) Where a data protection impact assessment indicates that the processing would, in the absence of safeguards, security measures and mechanisms to mitigate the risk, result in a high risk to the rights and freedoms of natural persons and the controller is of the opinion that the risk cannot be mitigated by reasonable means in terms of available technologies and costs of implementation, the supervisory authority should be consulted prior to the start of processing activities. Such high risk is likely to result from certain types of processing and the extent and frequency of processing, which may result also in a realisation of damage or interference with the rights and freedoms of the natural person. The supervisory authority should respond to the request for consultation within a specified period. However, the absence of a reaction of the supervisory authority within that period should be without prejudice to any intervention of the supervisory authority in accordance with its tasks and powers laid down in this Regulation, including the power to prohibit processing operations. As part of that consultation process, the outcome of a data protection impact assessment carried out with regard to the processing at issue may be submitted to the supervisory authority, in particular the measures envisaged to mitigate the risk to the rights and freedoms of natural persons.

(95) The processor should assist the controller, where necessary and upon request, in ensuring compliance with the obligations deriving from the carrying out of data protection impact assessments and from prior consultation of the supervisory authority.

(96) A consultation of the supervisory authority should also take place in the course of the preparation of a legislative or regulatory measure which provides for the processing of personal data, in order to ensure compliance of the intended processing with this Regulation and in particular to mitigate the risk involved for the data subject.

(97) Where the processing is carried out by a public authority, except for courts or independent judicial authorities when acting in their judicial capacity, where, in the private sector, processing is carried out by a controller whose core activities consist of processing operations that require regular and systematic monitoring of the data subjects on a large scale, or where the core activities of the controller or the processor consist of processing on a large scale of special categories of personal data and data relating to criminal convictions and offences, a person with expert knowledge of data protection law and practices should assist the controller or processor to monitor internal compliance with this Regulation. In the private sector, the core activities of a controller relate to its primary activities and do not relate to the processing of personal data as ancillary activities. The necessary level of expert knowledge should be determined in particular according to the data processing operations carried out and the protection required for the personal data processed by the controller or the processor. Such data protection officers, whether or not they are an employee of the controller, should be in a position to perform their duties and tasks in an independent manner.

(98) Associations or other bodies representing categories of controllers or processors should be encouraged to draw up codes of conduct, within the limits of this Regulation, so as to facilitate the effective application of this Regulation, taking account of the specific characteristics of the processing carried out in certain sectors and the specific needs of micro, small and medium enterprises. In particular, such codes of conduct could calibrate the obligations of controllers and processors, taking into account the risk likely to result from the processing for the rights and freedoms of natural persons.

(99) When drawing up a code of conduct, or when amending or extending such a code, associations and other bodies representing categories of controllers or processors should consult relevant stakeholders, including data subjects where feasible, and have regard to submissions received and views expressed in response to such consultations.

(100) In order to enhance transparency and compliance with this Regulation, the establishment of certification mechanisms and data protection seals and marks should be encouraged, allowing data subjects to quickly assess the level of data protection of relevant products and services.

(101) Flows of personal data to and from countries outside the Union and international organisations are necessary for the expansion of international trade and international cooperation. The increase in such flows has raised new challenges and concerns with regard to the protection of personal data. However, when personal data are transferred from the Union to controllers, processors or other recipients in third countries or to international organisations, the level of protection of natural persons ensured in the Union by this Regulation should not be undermined, including in cases of onward transfers of personal data from the third country or international organisation to controllers, processors in the same or another third country or international organisation. In any event, transfers to third countries and international organisations may only be carried out in full compliance with this Regulation. A transfer could take place only if, subject to the other provisions of this Regulation, the conditions laid down in the provisions of this Regulation relating to the transfer of personal data to third countries or international organisations are complied with by the controller or processor.

(102) This Regulation is without prejudice to international agreements concluded between the Union and third countries regulating the transfer of personal data including appropriate safeguards for the data subjects. Member States may conclude international agreements which involve the transfer of personal data to third countries or international organisations, as far as such agreements do not affect this Regulation or any other provisions of Union law and include an appropriate level of protection for the fundamental rights of the data subjects.

(103) The Commission may decide with effect for the entire Union that a third country, a territory or specified sector within a third country, or an international organisation, offers an adequate level of data protection, thus providing legal certainty and uniformity throughout the Union as regards the third country or international organisation which is considered to provide such level of protection. In such cases, transfers of personal data to that third country or international organisation may take place without the need to obtain any further authorisation. The Commission may also decide, having given notice and a full statement setting out the reasons to the third country or international organisation, to revoke such a decision.

(104) In line with the fundamental values on which the Union is founded, in particular the protection of human rights, the Commission should, in its assessment of the third country, or of a territory or specified sector within a third country, take into account how a particular third country respects the rule of law, access to justice as well as international human rights norms and standards and its general and sectoral law, including legislation concerning public security, defence and national security as well as public order and criminal law. The adoption of an adequacy decision with regard to a territory or a specified sector in a third country should take into account clear and objective criteria, such as specific processing activities and the scope of applicable legal standards and legislation in force in the third country. The third country should offer guarantees ensuring an adequate level of protection essentially equivalent to that ensured within the Union, in particular where personal data are processed in one or several specific sectors. In particular, the third country should ensure effective independent data protection supervision and should provide for cooperation mechanisms with the Member States' data protection authorities, and the data subjects should be provided with effective and enforceable rights and effective administrative and judicial redress.

(105) Apart from the international commitments the third country or international organisation has entered into, the Commission should take account of obligations arising from the third country's or international organisation's participation in multilateral or regional systems in particular in relation to the protection of personal data, as well as the implementation of such obligations. In particular, the third country's accession to the Council of Europe Convention of 28 January 1981 for the Protection of Individuals with regard to the Automatic Processing of Personal Data and its Additional Protocol should be taken into account. The Commission should consult the Board when assessing the level of protection in third countries or international organisations.

(106) The Commission should monitor the functioning of decisions on the level of protection in a third country, a territory or specified sector within a third country, or an international organisation, and monitor the functioning of decisions adopted on the basis of Article 25(6) or Article 26(4) of Directive 95/46/EC. In its adequacy decisions, the Commission should provide for a periodic review mechanism of their functioning. That periodic review should be conducted in consultation with the third country or international organisation in question and take into account all relevant developments in the third country or international organisation. For the purposes of monitoring and of carrying out the periodic reviews, the Commission should take into consideration the views and findings of the European Parliament and of the Council as well as of other relevant bodies and sources. The Commission should evaluate, within a reasonable time, the functioning of the latter decisions and report any relevant findings to the Committee within the meaning of Regulation (EU) No 182/2011 of the European Parliament and of the Council ([1]) as established under this Regulation, to the European Parliament and to the Council.

(107) The Commission may recognise that a third country, a territory or a specified sector within a third country, or an international organisation no longer ensures an adequate level of data protection. Consequently the transfer of personal data to that third country or international organisation should be prohibited, unless the requirements in this Regulation relating to transfers subject to appropriate safeguards, including binding corporate rules, and derogations for specific situations are fulfilled. In that case, provision should be made for consultations between the Commission and such third countries or international organisations. The Commission should, in a timely manner, inform the third country or international organisation of the reasons and enter into consultations with it in order to remedy the situation.

(108) In the absence of an adequacy decision, the controller or processor should take measures to compensate for the lack of data protection in a third country by way of appropriate safeguards for the data subject. Such appropriate safeguards may consist of making use of binding corporate rules, standard data protection clauses adopted by the Commission, standard data protection clauses adopted by a supervisory authority or contractual clauses authorised by a supervisory authority. Those safeguards should ensure compliance with data protection requirements and the rights of the data subjects appropriate to processing within the Union, including the availability of enforceable data subject rights and of effective legal remedies, including to obtain effective administrative or judicial redress and to claim compensation, in the Union or in a third country. They should relate in particular to compliance with the general principles relating to personal data processing, the principles of data protection by design and by default. Transfers may also be carried out by public authorities or bodies with public authorities or bodies in third countries or with international organisations with corresponding duties or functions, including on the basis of provisions to be inserted into administrative arrangements, such as a memorandum of understanding, providing for enforceable and effective rights for data subjects. Authorisation by the competent supervisory authority should be obtained when the safeguards are provided for in administrative arrangements that are not legally binding.

(109) The possibility for the controller or processor to use standard data-protection clauses adopted by the Commission or by a supervisory authority should prevent controllers or processors neither from including the standard data-protection clauses in a wider contract, such as a contract between the processor and another processor, nor from adding other clauses or additional safeguards provided that they do not contradict, directly or indirectly, the standard contractual clauses adopted by the Commission or by a supervisory authority or prejudice the fundamental rights or freedoms of the data subjects. Controllers and processors should be encouraged to provide additional safeguards via contractual commitments that supplement standard protection clauses.

(110) A group of undertakings, or a group of enterprises engaged in a joint economic activity, should be able to make use of approved binding corporate rules for its international transfers from the Union to organisations within the same group of undertakings, or group of enterprises engaged in a joint economic activity, provided that such corporate rules include all essential principles and enforceable rights to ensure appropriate safeguards for transfers or categories of transfers of personal data.

(111) Provisions should be made for the possibility for transfers in certain circumstances where the data subject has given his or her explicit consent, where the transfer is occasional and necessary in relation to a contract or a legal claim, regardless of whether in a judicial procedure or whether in an administrative or any out-of-court procedure, including procedures before regulatory bodies. Provision should also be made for the possibility for transfers where important grounds of public interest laid down by Union or Member State law so require or where the transfer is made from a register established by law and intended for consultation by the public or persons having a legitimate interest. In the latter case, such a transfer should not involve the entirety of the personal data or entire categories of the data contained in the register and, when the register is intended for consultation by persons having a legitimate interest, the transfer should be made only at the request of those persons or, if they are to be the recipients, taking into full account the interests and fundamental rights of the data subject.

(112) Those derogations should in particular apply to data transfers required and necessary for important reasons of public interest, for example in cases of international data exchange between competition authorities, tax or customs administrations, between financial supervisory authorities, between services competent for social security matters, or for public health, for example in the case of contact tracing for contagious diseases or in order to reduce and/or eliminate doping in sport. A transfer of personal data should also be regarded as lawful where it is necessary to protect an interest which is essential for the data subject's or another person's vital interests, including physical integrity or life, if the data subject is incapable of giving consent. In the absence of an adequacy decision, Union or Member State law may, for important reasons of public interest, expressly set limits to the transfer of specific categories of data to a third country or an international organisation. Member States should notify such provisions to the Commission. Any transfer to an international humanitarian organisation of personal data of a data subject who is physically or legally incapable of giving consent, with a view to accomplishing a task incumbent under the Geneva Conventions or to complying with international humanitarian law applicable in armed conflicts, could be considered to be necessary for an important reason of public interest or because it is in the vital interest of the data subject.

(113) Transfers which can be qualified as not repetitive and that only concern a limited number of data subjects, could also be possible for the purposes of the compelling legitimate interests pursued by the controller, when those interests are not overridden by the interests or rights and freedoms of the data subject and when the controller has assessed all the circumstances surrounding the data transfer. The controller should give particular consideration to the nature of the personal data, the purpose and duration of the proposed processing operation or operations, as well as the situation in the country of origin, the third country and the country of final destination, and should provide suitable safeguards to protect fundamental rights and freedoms of natural persons with regard to the processing of their personal data. Such transfers should be possible only in residual cases where none of the other grounds for transfer are applicable. For scientific or historical research purposes or statistical purposes, the legitimate expectations of society for an increase of knowledge should be taken into consideration. The controller should inform the supervisory authority and the data subject about the transfer.

(114) In any case, where the Commission has taken no decision on the adequate level of data protection in a third country, the controller or processor should make use of solutions that provide data subjects with enforceable and effective rights as regards the processing of their data in the Union once those data have been transferred so that that they will continue to benefit from fundamental rights and safeguards.

(115) Some third countries adopt laws, regulations and other legal acts which purport to directly regulate the processing activities of natural and legal persons under the jurisdiction of the Member States. This may include judgments of courts or tribunals or decisions of administrative authorities in third countries requiring a controller or processor to transfer or disclose personal data, and which are not based on an international agreement, such as a mutual legal assistance treaty, in force between the requesting third country and the Union or a Member State. The extraterritorial application of those laws, regulations and other legal acts may be in breach of international law and may impede the attainment of the protection of natural persons ensured in the Union by this Regulation. Transfers should only be allowed where the conditions of this Regulation for a transfer to third countries are met. This may be the case, inter alia, where disclosure is necessary for an important ground of public interest recognised in Union or Member State law to which the controller is subject.

(116) When personal data moves across borders outside the Union it may put at increased risk the ability of natural persons to exercise data protection rights in particular to protect themselves from the unlawful use or disclosure of that information. At the same time, supervisory authorities may find that they are unable to pursue complaints or conduct investigations relating to the activities outside their borders. Their efforts to work together in the cross-border context may also be hampered by insufficient preventative or remedial powers, inconsistent legal regimes, and practical obstacles like resource constraints. Therefore, there is a need to promote closer cooperation among data protection supervisory authorities to help them exchange information and carry out investigations with their international counterparts. For the purposes of developing international cooperation mechanisms to facilitate and provide international mutual assistance for the enforcement of legislation for the protection of personal data, the Commission and the supervisory authorities should exchange information and cooperate in activities related to the exercise of their powers with competent authorities in third countries, based on reciprocity and in accordance with this Regulation.

(118) The independence of supervisory authorities should not mean that the supervisory authorities cannot be subject to control or monitoring mechanisms regarding their financial expenditure or to judicial review.

(119) Where a Member State establishes several supervisory authorities, it should establish by law mechanisms for ensuring the effective participation of those supervisory authorities in the consistency mechanism. That Member State should in particular designate the supervisory authority which functions as a single contact point for the effective participation of those authorities in the mechanism, to ensure swift and smooth cooperation with other supervisory authorities, the Board and the Commission.

(120) Each supervisory authority should be provided with the financial and human resources, premises and infrastructure necessary for the effective performance of their tasks, including those related to mutual assistance and cooperation with other supervisory authorities throughout the Union. Each supervisory authority should have a separate, public annual budget, which may be part of the overall state or national budget.

(121) The general conditions for the member or members of the supervisory authority should be laid down by law in each Member State and should in particular provide that those members are to be appointed, by means of a transparent procedure, either by the parliament, government or the head of State of the Member State on the basis of a proposal from the government, a member of the government, the parliament or a chamber of the parliament, or by an independent body entrusted under Member State law. In order to ensure the independence of the supervisory authority, the member or members should act with integrity, refrain from any action that is incompatible with their duties and should not, during their term of office, engage in any incompatible occupation, whether gainful or not. The supervisory authority should have its own staff, chosen by the supervisory authority or an independent body established by Member State law, which should be subject to the exclusive direction of the member or members of the supervisory authority.

(122) Each supervisory authority should be competent on the territory of its own Member State to exercise the powers and to perform the tasks conferred on it in accordance with this Regulation. This should cover in particular the processing in the context of the activities of an establishment of the controller or processor on the territory of its own Member State, the processing of personal data carried out by public authorities or private bodies acting in the public interest, processing affecting data subjects on its territory or processing carried out by a controller or processor not established in the Union when targeting data subjects residing on its territory. This should include handling complaints lodged by a data subject, conducting investigations on the application of this Regulation and promoting public awareness of the risks, rules, safeguards and rights in relation to the processing of personal data.

(123) The supervisory authorities should monitor the application of the provisions pursuant to this Regulation and contribute to its consistent application throughout the Union, in order to protect natural persons in relation to the processing of their personal data and to facilitate the free flow of personal data within the internal market. For that purpose, the supervisory authorities should cooperate with each other and with the Commission, without the need for any agreement between Member States on the provision of mutual assistance or on such cooperation.

(124) Where the processing of personal data takes place in the context of the activities of an establishment of a controller or a processor in the Union and the controller or processor is established in more than one Member State, or where processing taking place in the context of the activities of a single establishment of a controller or processor in the Union substantially affects or is likely to substantially affect data subjects in more than one Member State, the supervisory authority for the main establishment of the controller or processor or for the single establishment of the controller or processor should act as lead authority. It should cooperate with the other authorities concerned, because the controller or processor has an establishment on the territory of their Member State, because data subjects residing on their territory are substantially affected, or because a complaint has been lodged with them. Also where a data subject not residing in that Member State has lodged a complaint, the supervisory authority with which such complaint has been lodged should also be a supervisory authority concerned. Within its tasks to issue guidelines on any question covering the application of this Regulation, the Board should be able to issue guidelines in particular on the criteria to be taken into account in order to ascertain whether the processing in question substantially affects data subjects in more than one Member State and on what constitutes a relevant and reasoned objection.

(125) The lead authority should be competent to adopt binding decisions regarding measures applying the powers conferred on it in accordance with this Regulation. In its capacity as lead authority, the supervisory authority should closely involve and coordinate the supervisory authorities concerned in the decision-making process. Where the decision is to reject the complaint by the data subject in whole or in part, that decision should be adopted by the supervisory authority with which the complaint has been lodged.

(126) The decision should be agreed jointly by the lead supervisory authority and the supervisory authorities concerned and should be directed towards the main or single establishment of the controller or processor and be binding on the controller and processor. The controller or processor should take the necessary measures to ensure compliance with this Regulation and the implementation of the decision notified by the lead supervisory authority to the main establishment of the controller or processor as regards the processing activities in the Union.

(127) Each supervisory authority not acting as the lead supervisory authority should be competent to handle local cases where the controller or processor is established in more than one Member State, but the subject matter of the specific processing concerns only processing carried out in a single Member State and involves only data subjects in that single Member State, for example, where the subject matter concerns the processing of employees' personal data in the specific employment context of a Member State. In such cases, the supervisory authority should inform the lead supervisory authority without delay about the matter. After being informed, the lead supervisory authority should decide, whether it will handle the case pursuant to the provision on cooperation between the lead supervisory authority and other supervisory authorities concerned ('one-stop-shop mechanism'), or whether the supervisory authority which informed it should handle the case at local level. When deciding whether it will handle the case, the lead supervisory authority should take into account whether there is an establishment of the controller or processor in the Member State of the supervisory authority which informed it in order to ensure effective enforcement of a decision vis-à-vis the controller or processor. Where the lead supervisory authority decides to handle the case, the supervisory authority which informed it should have the possibility to submit a draft for a decision, of which the lead supervisory authority should take utmost account when preparing its draft decision in that one-stop-shop mechanism.

(128) The rules on the lead supervisory authority and the one-stop-shop mechanism should not apply where the processing is carried out by public authorities or private bodies in the public interest. In such cases the only supervisory authority competent to exercise the powers conferred to it in accordance with this Regulation should be the supervisory authority of the Member State where the public authority or private body is established.

(129) In order to ensure consistent monitoring and enforcement of this Regulation throughout the Union, the supervisory authorities should have in each Member State the same tasks and effective powers, including powers of investigation, corrective powers and sanctions, and authorisation and advisory powers, in particular in cases of complaints from natural persons, and without prejudice to the powers of prosecutorial authorities under Member State law, to bring infringements of this Regulation to the attention of the judicial authorities and engage in legal proceedings. Such powers should also include the power to impose a temporary or definitive limitation, including a ban, on processing. Member States may specify other tasks related to the protection of personal data under this Regulation. The powers of supervisory authorities should be exercised in accordance with appropriate procedural safeguards set out in Union and Member State law, impartially, fairly and within a reasonable time. In particular each measure should be appropriate, necessary and proportionate in view of ensuring compliance with this Regulation, taking into account the circumstances of each individual case, respect the right of every person to be heard before any individual measure which would affect him or her adversely is taken and avoid superfluous costs and excessive inconveniences for the persons concerned. Investigatory powers as regards access to premises should be exercised in accordance with specific requirements in Member State procedural law, such as the requirement to obtain a prior judicial authorisation. Each legally binding measure of the supervisory authority should be in writing, be clear and unambiguous, indicate the supervisory authority which has issued the measure, the date of issue of the measure, bear the signature of the head, or a member of the supervisory authority authorised by him or her, give the reasons for the measure, and refer to the right of an effective remedy. This should not preclude additional requirements pursuant to Member State procedural law. The adoption of a legally binding decision implies that it may give rise to judicial review in the Member State of the supervisory authority that adopted the decision.

(130) Where the supervisory authority with which the complaint has been lodged is not the lead supervisory authority, the lead supervisory authority should closely cooperate with the supervisory authority with which the complaint has been lodged in accordance with the provisions on cooperation and consistency laid down in this Regulation. In such cases, the lead supervisory authority should, when taking measures intended to produce legal effects, including the imposition of administrative fines, take utmost account of the view of the supervisory authority with which the complaint has been lodged and which should remain competent to carry out any investigation on the territory of its own Member State in liaison with the competent supervisory authority.

(131) Where another supervisory authority should act as a lead supervisory authority for the processing activities of the controller or processor but the concrete subject matter of a complaint or the possible infringement concerns only processing activities of the controller or processor in the Member State where the complaint has been lodged or the possible infringement detected and the matter does not substantially affect or is not likely to substantially affect data subjects in other Member States, the supervisory authority receiving a complaint or detecting or being informed otherwise of situations that entail possible infringements of this Regulation should seek an amicable settlement with the controller and, if this proves unsuccessful, exercise its full range of powers. This should include: specific processing carried out in the territory of the Member State of the supervisory authority or with regard to data subjects on the territory of that Member State; processing that is carried out in the context of an offer of goods or services specifically aimed at data subjects in the territory of the Member State of the supervisory authority; or processing that has to be assessed taking into account relevant legal obligations under Member State law.

(132) Awareness-raising activities by supervisory authorities addressed to the public should include specific measures directed at controllers and processors, including micro, small and medium-sized enterprises, as well as natural persons in particular in the educational context.

(133) The supervisory authorities should assist each other in performing their tasks and provide mutual assistance, so as to ensure the consistent application and enforcement of this Regulation in the internal market. A supervisory authority requesting mutual assistance may adopt a provisional measure if it receives no response to a request for mutual assistance within one month of the receipt of that request by the other supervisory authority.

(134) Each supervisory authority should, where appropriate, participate in joint operations with other supervisory authorities. The requested supervisory authority should be obliged to respond to the request within a specified time period.

(135) In order to ensure the consistent application of this Regulation throughout the Union, a consistency mechanism for cooperation between the supervisory authorities should be established. That mechanism should in particular apply where a supervisory authority intends to adopt a measure intended to produce legal effects as regards processing operations which substantially affect a significant number of data subjects in several Member States. It should also apply where any supervisory authority concerned or the Commission requests that such matter should be handled in the consistency mechanism. That mechanism should be without prejudice to any measures that the Commission may take in the exercise of its powers under the Treaties.

(136) In applying the consistency mechanism, the Board should, within a determined period of time, issue an opinion, if a majority of its members so decides or if so requested by any supervisory authority concerned or the Commission. The Board should also be empowered to adopt legally binding decisions where there are disputes between supervisory authorities. For that purpose, it should issue, in principle by a two-thirds majority of its members, legally binding decisions in clearly specified cases where there are conflicting views among supervisory authorities, in particular in the cooperation mechanism between the lead supervisory authority and supervisory authorities concerned on the merits of the case, in particular whether there is an infringement of this Regulation.

(137) There may be an urgent need to act in order to protect the rights and freedoms of data subjects, in particular when the danger exists that the enforcement of a right of a data subject could be considerably impeded. A supervisory authority should therefore be able to adopt duly justified provisional measures on its territory with a specified period of validity which should not exceed three months.

(138) The application of such mechanism should be a condition for the lawfulness of a measure intended to produce legal effects by a supervisory authority in those cases where its application is mandatory. In other cases of cross-border relevance, the cooperation mechanism between the lead supervisory authority and supervisory authorities concerned should be applied and mutual assistance and joint operations might be carried out between the supervisory authorities concerned on a bilateral or multilateral basis without triggering the consistency mechanism.

(139) In order to promote the consistent application of this Regulation, the Board should be set up as an independent body of the Union. To fulfil its objectives, the Board should have legal personality. The Board should be represented by its Chair. It should replace the Working Party on the Protection of Individuals with Regard to the Processing of Personal Data established by Directive 95/46/EC. It should consist of the head of a supervisory authority of each Member State and the European Data Protection Supervisor or their respective representatives. The Commission should participate in the Board's activities without voting rights and the European Data Protection Supervisor should have specific voting rights. The Board should contribute to the consistent application of this Regulation throughout the Union, including by advising the Commission, in particular on the level of protection in third countries or international organisations, and promoting cooperation of the supervisory authorities throughout the Union. The Board should act independently when performing its tasks.

(140) The Board should be assisted by a secretariat provided by the European Data Protection Supervisor. The staff of the European Data Protection Supervisor involved in carrying out the tasks conferred on the Board by this Regulation should perform its tasks exclusively under the instructions of, and report to, the Chair of the Board.

(141) Every data subject should have the right to lodge a complaint with a single supervisory authority, in particular in the Member State of his or her habitual residence, and the right to an effective judicial remedy in accordance with Article 47 of the Charter if the data subject considers that his or her rights under this Regulation are infringed or where the supervisory authority does not act on a complaint, partially or wholly rejects or dismisses a complaint or does not act where such action is necessary to protect the rights of the data subject. The investigation following a complaint should be carried out, subject to judicial review, to the extent that is appropriate in the specific case. The supervisory authority should inform the data subject of the progress and the outcome of the complaint within a reasonable period. If the case requires further investigation or coordination with another supervisory authority, intermediate information should be given to the data subject. In order to facilitate the submission of complaints, each supervisory authority should take measures such as providing a complaint submission form which can also be completed electronically, without excluding other means of communication.

(142) Where a data subject considers that his or her rights under this Regulation are infringed, he or she should have the right to mandate a not-for-profit body, organisation or association which is constituted in accordance with the law of a Member State, has statutory objectives which are in the public interest and is active in the field of the protection of personal data to lodge a complaint on his or her behalf with a supervisory authority, exercise the right to a judicial remedy on behalf of data subjects or, if provided for in Member State law, exercise the right to receive compensation on behalf of data subjects. A Member State may provide for such a body, organisation or association to have the right to lodge a complaint in that Member State, independently of a data subject's mandate, and the right to an effective judicial remedy where it has reasons to consider that the rights of a data subject have been infringed as a result of the processing of personal data which infringes this Regulation. That body, organisation or association may not be allowed to claim compensation on a data subject's behalf independently of the data subject's mandate.

(143) Any natural or legal person has the right to bring an action for annulment of decisions of the Board before the Court of Justice under the conditions provided for in Article 263 TFEU. As addressees of such decisions, the supervisory authorities concerned which wish to challenge them have to bring action within two months of being notified of them, in accordance with Article 263 TFEU. Where decisions of the Board are of direct and individual concern to a controller, processor or complainant, the latter may bring an action for annulment against those decisions within two months of their publication on the website of the Board, in accordance with Article 263 TFEU. Without prejudice to this right under Article 263 TFEU, each natural or legal person should have an effective judicial remedy before the competent national court against a decision of a supervisory authority which produces legal effects concerning that person. Such a decision concerns in particular the exercise of investigative, corrective and authorisation powers by the supervisory authority or the dismissal or rejection of complaints. However, the right to an effective judicial remedy does not encompass measures taken by supervisory authorities which are not legally binding, such as opinions issued by or advice provided by the supervisory authority. Proceedings against a supervisory authority should be brought before the courts of the Member State where the supervisory authority is established and should be conducted in accordance with that Member State's procedural law. Those courts should exercise full jurisdiction, which should include jurisdiction to examine all questions of fact and law relevant to the dispute before them.

Where a complaint has been rejected or dismissed by a supervisory authority, the complainant may bring proceedings before the courts in the same Member State. In the context of judicial remedies relating to the application of this Regulation, national courts which consider a decision on the question necessary to enable them to give judgment, may, or in the case provided for in Article 267 TFEU, must, request the Court of Justice to give a preliminary ruling on the interpretation of Union law, including this Regulation. Furthermore, where a decision of a supervisory authority implementing a decision of the Board is challenged before a national court and the validity of the decision of the Board is at issue, that national court does not have the power to declare the Board's decision invalid but must refer the question of validity to the Court of Justice in accordance with Article 267 TFEU as interpreted by the Court of Justice, where it considers the decision invalid. However, a national court may not refer a question on the validity of the decision of the Board at the request of a natural or legal person which had the opportunity to bring an action for annulment of that decision, in particular if it was directly and individually concerned by that decision, but had not done so within the period laid down in Article 263 TFEU.

(144) Where a court seized of proceedings against a decision by a supervisory authority has reason to believe that proceedings concerning the same processing, such as the same subject matter as regards processing by the same controller or processor, or the same cause of action, are brought before a competent court in another Member State, it should contact that court in order to confirm the existence of such related proceedings. If related proceedings are pending before a court in another Member State, any court other than the court first seized may stay its proceedings or may, on request of one of the parties, decline jurisdiction in favour of the court first seized if that court has jurisdiction over the proceedings in question and its law permits the consolidation of such related proceedings. Proceedings are deemed to be related where they are so closely connected that it is expedient to hear and determine them together in order to avoid the risk of irreconcilable judgments resulting from separate proceedings.

(145) For proceedings against a controller or processor, the plaintiff should have the choice to bring the action before the courts of the Member States where the controller or processor has an establishment or where the data subject resides, unless the controller is a public authority of a Member State acting in the exercise of its public powers.

(146) The controller or processor should compensate any damage which a person may suffer as a result of processing that infringes this Regulation. The controller or processor should be exempt from liability if it proves that it is not in any way responsible for the damage. The concept of damage should be broadly interpreted in the light of the case-law of the Court of Justice in a manner which fully reflects the objectives of this Regulation. This is without prejudice to any claims for damage deriving from the violation of other rules in Union or Member State law. Processing that infringes this Regulation also includes processing that infringes delegated and implementing acts adopted in accordance with this Regulation and Member State law specifying rules of this Regulation. Data subjects should receive full and effective compensation for the damage they have suffered. Where controllers or processors are involved in the same processing, each controller or processor should be held liable for the entire damage. However, where they are joined to the same judicial proceedings, in accordance with Member State law, compensation may be apportioned according to the responsibility of each controller or processor for the damage caused by the processing, provided that full and effective compensation of the data subject who suffered the damage is ensured. Any controller or processor which has paid full compensation may subsequently institute recourse proceedings against other controllers or processors involved in the same processing.

(147) Where specific rules on jurisdiction are contained in this Regulation, in particular as regards proceedings seeking a judicial remedy including compensation, against a controller or processor, general jurisdiction rules such as those of Regulation (EU) No 1215/2012 of the European Parliament and of the Council ([1]) should not prejudice the application of such specific rules.

(148) In order to strengthen the enforcement of the rules of this Regulation, penalties including administrative fines should be imposed for any infringement of this Regulation, in addition to, or instead of appropriate measures imposed by the supervisory authority pursuant to this Regulation. In a case of a minor infringement or if the fine likely to be imposed would constitute a disproportionate burden to a natural person, a reprimand may be issued instead of a fine. Due regard should however be given to the nature, gravity and duration of the infringement, the intentional character of the infringement, actions taken to mitigate the damage suffered, degree of responsibility or any relevant previous infringements, the manner in which the infringement became known to the supervisory authority, compliance with measures ordered against the controller or processor, adherence to a code of conduct and any other aggravating or mitigating factor. The imposition of penalties including administrative fines should be subject to appropriate procedural safeguards in accordance with the general principles of Union law and the Charter, including effective judicial protection and due process.

(149) Member States should be able to lay down the rules on criminal penalties for infringements of this Regulation, including for infringements of national rules adopted pursuant to and within the limits of this Regulation. Those criminal penalties may also allow for the deprivation of the profits obtained through infringements of this Regulation. However, the imposition of criminal penalties for infringements of such national rules and of administrative penalties should not lead to a breach of the principle of ne bis in idem, as interpreted by the Court of Justice.

(150) In order to strengthen and harmonise administrative penalties for infringements of this Regulation, each supervisory authority should have the power to impose administrative fines. This Regulation should indicate infringements and the upper limit and criteria for setting the related administrative fines, which should be determined by the competent supervisory authority in each individual case, taking into account all relevant circumstances of the specific situation, with due regard in particular to the nature, gravity and duration of the infringement and of its consequences and the measures taken to ensure compliance with the obligations under this Regulation and to prevent or mitigate the consequences of the infringement. Where administrative fines are imposed on an undertaking, an undertaking should be understood to be an undertaking in accordance with Articles 101 and 102 TFEU for those purposes. Where administrative fines are imposed on persons that are not an undertaking, the supervisory authority should take account of the general level of income in the Member State as well as the economic situation of the person in considering the appropriate amount of the fine. The consistency mechanism may also be used to promote a consistent application of administrative fines. It should be for the Member States to determine whether and to which extent public authorities should be subject to administrative fines. Imposing an administrative fine or giving a warning does not affect the application of other powers of the supervisory authorities or of other penalties under this Regulation.

(151) The legal systems of Denmark and Estonia do not allow for administrative fines as set out in this Regulation. The rules on administrative fines may be applied in such a manner that in Denmark the fine is imposed by competent national courts as a criminal penalty and in Estonia the fine is imposed by the supervisory authority in the framework of a misdemeanour procedure, provided that such an application of the rules in those Member States has an equivalent effect to administrative fines imposed by supervisory authorities. Therefore the competent national courts should take into account the recommendation by the supervisory authority initiating the fine. In any event, the fines imposed should be effective, proportionate and dissuasive.

(152) Where this Regulation does not harmonise administrative penalties or where necessary in other cases, for example in cases of serious infringements of this Regulation, Member States should implement a system which provides for effective, proportionate and dissuasive penalties. The nature of such penalties, criminal or administrative, should be determined by Member State law.

(153) Member States law should reconcile the rules governing freedom of expression and information, including journalistic, academic, artistic and or literary expression with the right to the protection of personal data pursuant to this Regulation. The processing of personal data solely for journalistic purposes, or for the purposes of academic, artistic or literary expression should be subject to derogations or exemptions from certain provisions of this Regulation if necessary to reconcile the right to the protection of personal data with the right to freedom of expression and information, as enshrined in Article 11 of the Charter. This should apply in particular to the processing of personal data in the audiovisual field and in news archives and press libraries. Therefore, Member States should adopt legislative measures which lay down the exemptions and derogations necessary for the purpose of balancing those fundamental rights. Member States should adopt such exemptions and derogations on general principles, the rights of the data subject, the controller and the processor, the transfer of personal data to third countries or international organisations, the independent supervisory authorities, cooperation and consistency, and specific data-processing situations. Where such exemptions or derogations differ from one Member State to another, the law of the Member State to which the controller is subject should apply. In order to take account of the importance of the right to freedom of expression in every democratic society, it is necessary to interpret notions relating to that freedom, such as journalism, broadly.

(154) This Regulation allows the principle of public access to official documents to be taken into account when applying this Regulation. Public access to official documents may be considered to be in the public interest. Personal data in documents held by a public authority or a public body should be able to be publicly disclosed by that authority or body if the disclosure is provided for by Union or Member State law to which the public authority or public body is subject. Such laws should reconcile public access to official documents and the reuse of public sector information with the right to the protection of personal data and may therefore provide for the necessary reconciliation with the right to the protection of personal data pursuant to this Regulation. The reference to public authorities and bodies should in that context include all authorities or other bodies covered by Member State law on public access to documents. Directive 2003/98/EC of the European Parliament and of the Council ([1]) leaves intact and in no way affects the level of protection of natural persons with regard to the processing of personal data under the provisions of Union and Member State law, and in particular does not alter the obligations and rights set out in this Regulation. In particular, that Directive should not apply to documents to which access is excluded or restricted by virtue of the access regimes on the grounds of protection of personal data, and parts of documents accessible by virtue of those regimes which contain personal data the re-use of which has been provided for by law as being incompatible with the law concerning the protection of natural persons with regard to the processing of personal data.

(155) Member State law or collective agreements, including 'works agreements', may provide for specific rules on the processing of employees' personal data in the employment context, in particular for the conditions under which personal data in the employment context may be processed on the basis of the consent of the employee, the purposes of the recruitment, the performance of the contract of employment, including discharge of obligations laid down by law or by collective agreements, management, planning and organisation of work, equality and diversity in the workplace, health and safety at work, and for the purposes of the exercise and enjoyment, on an individual or collective basis, of rights and benefits related to employment, and for the purpose of the termination of the employment relationship.

(156) The processing of personal data for archiving purposes in the public interest, scientific or historical research purposes or statistical purposes should be subject to appropriate safeguards for the rights and freedoms of the data subject pursuant to this Regulation. Those safeguards should ensure that technical and organisational measures are in place in order to ensure, in particular, the principle of data minimisation. The further processing of personal data for archiving purposes in the public interest, scientific or historical research purposes or statistical purposes is to be carried out when the controller has assessed the feasibility to fulfil those purposes by processing data which do not permit or no longer permit the identification of data subjects, provided that appropriate safeguards exist (such as, for instance, pseudonymisation of the data). Member States should provide for appropriate safeguards for the processing of personal data for archiving purposes in the public interest, scientific or historical research purposes or statistical purposes. Member States should be authorised to provide, under specific conditions and subject to appropriate safeguards for data subjects, specifications and derogations with regard to the information requirements and rights to rectification, to erasure, to be forgotten, to restriction of processing, to data portability, and to object when processing personal data for archiving purposes in the public interest, scientific or historical research purposes or statistical purposes. The conditions and safeguards in question may entail specific procedures for data subjects to exercise those rights if this is appropriate in the light of the purposes sought by the specific processing along with technical and organisational measures aimed at minimising the processing of personal data in pursuance of the proportionality and necessity principles. The processing of personal data for scientific purposes should also comply with other relevant legislation such as on clinical trials.

(157) By coupling information from registries, researchers can obtain new knowledge of great value with regard to widespread medical conditions such as cardiovascular disease, cancer and depression. On the basis of registries, research results can be enhanced, as they draw on a larger population. Within social science, research on the basis of registries enables researchers to obtain essential knowledge about the long-term correlation of a number of social conditions such as unemployment and education with other life conditions. Research results obtained through registries provide solid, high-quality knowledge which can provide the basis for the formulation and implementation of knowledge-based policy, improve the quality of life for a number of people and improve the efficiency of social services. In order to facilitate scientific research, personal data can be processed for scientific research purposes, subject to appropriate conditions and safeguards set out in Union or Member State law.

(158) Where personal data are processed for archiving purposes, this Regulation should also apply to that processing, bearing in mind that this Regulation should not apply to deceased persons. Public authorities or public or private bodies that hold records of public interest should be services which, pursuant to Union or Member State law, have a legal obligation to acquire, preserve, appraise, arrange, describe, communicate, promote, disseminate and provide access to records of enduring value for general public interest. Member States should also be authorised to provide for the further processing of personal data for archiving purposes, for example with a view to providing specific information related to the political behaviour under former totalitarian state regimes, genocide, crimes against humanity, in particular the Holocaust, or war crimes.

(159) Where personal data are processed for scientific research purposes, this Regulation should also apply to that processing. For the purposes of this Regulation, the processing of personal data for scientific research purposes should be interpreted in a broad manner including for example technological development and demonstration, fundamental research, applied research and privately funded research. In addition, it should take into account the Union's objective under Article 179(1) TFEU of achieving a European Research Area. Scientific research purposes should also include studies conducted in the public interest in the area of public health. To meet the specificities of processing personal data for scientific research purposes, specific conditions should apply in particular as regards the publication or otherwise disclosure of personal data in the context of scientific research purposes. If the result of scientific research in particular in the health context gives reason for further measures in the interest of the data subject, the general rules of this Regulation should apply in view of those measures.

(160) Where personal data are processed for historical research purposes, this Regulation should also apply to that processing. This should also include historical research and research for genealogical purposes, bearing in mind that this Regulation should not apply to deceased persons.

(161) For the purpose of consenting to the participation in scientific research activities in clinical trials, the relevant provisions of Regulation (EU) No 536/2014 of the European Parliament and of the Council ([1]) should apply.

(162) Where personal data are processed for statistical purposes, this Regulation should apply to that processing. Union or Member State law should, within the limits of this Regulation, determine statistical content, control of access, specifications for the processing of personal data for statistical purposes and appropriate measures to safeguard the rights and freedoms of the data subject and for ensuring statistical confidentiality. Statistical purposes mean any operation of collection and the processing of personal data necessary for statistical surveys or for the production of statistical results. Those statistical results may further be used for different purposes, including a scientific research purpose. The statistical purpose implies that the result of processing for statistical purposes is not personal data, but aggregate data, and that this result or the personal data are not used in support of measures or decisions regarding any particular natural person.

(163) The confidential information which the Union and national statistical authorities collect for the production of official European and official national statistics should be protected. European statistics should be developed, produced and disseminated in accordance with the statistical principles as set out in Article 338(2) TFEU, while national statistics should also comply with Member State law. Regulation (EC) No 223/2009 of the European Parliament and of the Council ([2]) provides further specifications on statistical confidentiality for European statistics.

(164) As regards the powers of the supervisory authorities to obtain from the controller or processor access to personal data and access to their premises, Member States may adopt by law, within the limits of this Regulation, specific rules in order to safeguard the professional or other equivalent secrecy obligations, in so far as necessary to reconcile the right to the protection of personal data with an obligation of professional secrecy. This is without prejudice to existing Member State obligations to adopt rules on professional secrecy where required by Union law.

(165) This Regulation respects and does not prejudice the status under existing constitutional law of churches and religious associations or communities in the Member States, as recognised in Article 17 TFEU.

(166) In order to fulfil the objectives of this Regulation, namely to protect the fundamental rights and freedoms of natural persons and in particular their right to the protection of personal data and to ensure the free movement of personal data within the Union, the power to adopt acts in accordance with Article 290 TFEU should be delegated to the Commission. In particular, delegated acts should be adopted in respect of criteria and requirements for certification mechanisms, information to be presented by standardised icons and procedures for providing such icons. It is of particular importance that the Commission carry out appropriate consultations during its preparatory work, including at expert level. The Commission, when preparing and drawing-up delegated acts, should ensure a simultaneous, timely and appropriate transmission of relevant documents to the European Parliament and to the Council.

([1]) Regulation (EU) No 536/2014 of the European Parliament and of the Council of 16 April 2014 on clinical trials on medicinal products for human use, and repealing Directive 2001/20/EC (OJ L 158, 27.5.2014, p. 1).

([2]) Regulation (EC) No 223/2009 of the European Parliament and of the Council of 11 March 2009 on European statistics and repealing Regulation (EC, Euratom) No 1101/2008 of the European Parliament and of the Council on the transmission of data subject to statistical confidentiality to the Statistical Office of the European Communities, Council Regulation (EC) No 322/97 on Community Statistics, and Council Decision 89/382/EEC, Euratom establishing a Committee on the Statistical Programmes of the European Communities (OJ L 87, 31.3.2009, p. 164).

(167) In order to ensure uniform conditions for the implementation of this Regulation, implementing powers should be conferred on the Commission when provided for by this Regulation. Those powers should be exercised in accordance with Regulation (EU) No 182/2011. In that context, the Commission should consider specific measures for micro, small and medium-sized enterprises.

(168) The examination procedure should be used for the adoption of implementing acts on standard contractual clauses between controllers and processors and between processors; codes of conduct; technical standards and mechanisms for certification; the adequate level of protection afforded by a third country, a territory or a specified sector within that third country, or an international organisation; standard protection clauses; formats and procedures for the exchange of information by electronic means between controllers, processors and supervisory authorities for binding corporate rules; mutual assistance; and arrangements for the exchange of information by electronic means between supervisory authorities, and between supervisory authorities and the Board.

(169) The Commission should adopt immediately applicable implementing acts where available evidence reveals that a third country, a territory or a specified sector within that third country, or an international organisation does not ensure an adequate level of protection, and imperative grounds of urgency so require.

(170) Since the objective of this Regulation, namely to ensure an equivalent level of protection of natural persons and the free flow of personal data throughout the Union, cannot be sufficiently achieved by the Member States and can rather, by reason of the scale or effects of the action, be better achieved at Union level, the Union may adopt measures, in accordance with the principle of subsidiarity as set out in Article 5 of the Treaty on European Union (TEU). In accordance with the principle of proportionality as set out in that Article, this Regulation does not go beyond what is necessary in order to achieve that objective.

(171) Directive 95/46/EC should be repealed by this Regulation. Processing already under way on the date of application of this Regulation should be brought into conformity with this Regulation within the period of two years after which this Regulation enters into force. Where processing is based on consent pursuant to Directive 95/46/EC, it is not necessary for the data subject to give his or her consent again if the manner in which the consent has been given is in line with the conditions of this Regulation, so as to allow the controller to continue such processing after the date of application of this Regulation. Commission decisions adopted and authorisations by supervisory authorities based on Directive 95/46/EC remain in force until amended, replaced or repealed.

(172) The European Data Protection Supervisor was consulted in accordance with Article 28(2) of Regulation (EC) No 45/2001 and delivered an opinion on 7 March 2012 ([1]).

(173) This Regulation should apply to all matters concerning the protection of fundamental rights and freedoms vis-à-vis the processing of personal data which are not subject to specific obligations with the same objective set out in Directive 2002/58/EC of the European Parliament and of the Council ([2]), including the obligations on the controller and the rights of natural persons. In order to clarify the relationship between this Regulation and Directive 2002/58/EC, that Directive should be amended accordingly. Once this Regulation is adopted, Directive 2002/58/EC should be reviewed in particular in order to ensure consistency with this Regulation,

([2]) Directive 2002/58/EC of the European Parliament and of the Council of 12 July 2002 concerning the processing of personal data and the protection of privacy in the electronic communications sector (Directive on privacy and electronic communications) (OJ L 201, 31.7.2002, p. 37).

HAVE ADOPTED THIS REGULATION:

(b) the monitoring of their behaviour as far as their behaviour takes place within the Union.

3. This Regulation applies to the processing of personal data by a controller not established in the Union, but in a place where Member State law applies by virtue of public international law.

Article 4

Definitions

For the purposes of this Regulation:

(1) 'personal data' means any information relating to an identified or identifiable natural person ('data subject'); an identifiable natural person is one who can be identified, directly or indirectly, in particular by reference to an identifier such as a name, an identification number, location data, an online identifier or to one or more factors specific to the physical, physiological, genetic, mental, economic, cultural or social identity of that natural person;

(2) 'processing' means any operation or set of operations which is performed on personal data or on sets of personal data, whether or not by automated means, such as collection, recording, organisation, structuring, storage, adaptation or alteration, retrieval, consultation, use, disclosure by transmission, dissemination or otherwise making available, alignment or combination, restriction, erasure or destruction;

(3) 'restriction of processing' means the marking of stored personal data with the aim of limiting their processing in the future;

(a) as regards a controller with establishments in more than one Member State, the place of its central administration in the Union, unless the decisions on the purposes and means of the processing of personal data are taken in another establishment of the controller in the Union and the latter establishment has the power to have such decisions implemented, in which case the establishment having taken such decisions is to be considered to be the main establishment;

(b) as regards a processor with establishments in more than one Member State, the place of its central administration in the Union, or, if the processor has no central administration in the Union, the establishment of the processor in the Union where the main processing activities in the context of the activities of an establishment of the processor take place to the extent that the processor is subject to specific obligations under this Regulation;

CHAPTER II

Principles

Article 5

Principles relating to processing of personal data

1. Personal data shall be:

(a) processed lawfully, fairly and in a transparent manner in relation to the data subject ('lawfulness, fairness and transparency');

(b) collected for specified, explicit and legitimate purposes and not further processed in a manner that is incompatible with those purposes; further processing for archiving purposes in the public interest, scientific or historical research purposes or statistical purposes shall, in accordance with Article 89(1), not be considered to be incompatible with the initial purposes ('purpose limitation');

(c) adequate, relevant and limited to what is necessary in relation to the purposes for which they are processed ('data minimisation');

(d) accurate and, where necessary, kept up to date; every reasonable step must be taken to ensure that personal data that are inaccurate, having regard to the purposes for which they are processed, are erased or rectified without delay ('accuracy');

([1]) Directive (EU) 2015/1535 of the European Parliament and of the Council of 9 September 2015 laying down a procedure for the provision of information in the field of technical regulations and of rules on Information Society services (OJ L 241, 17.9.2015, p. 1).

(e) kept in a form which permits identification of data subjects for no longer than is necessary for the purposes for which the personal data are processed; personal data may be stored for longer periods insofar as the personal data will be processed solely for archiving purposes in the public interest, scientific or historical research purposes or statistical purposes in accordance with Article 89(1) subject to implementation of the appropriate technical and organisational measures required by this Regulation in order to safeguard the rights and freedoms of the data subject ('storage limitation');

(f) processed in a manner that ensures appropriate security of the personal data, including protection against unauthorised or unlawful processing and against accidental loss, destruction or damage, using appropriate technical or organisational measures ('integrity and confidentiality').

2. The controller shall be responsible for, and be able to demonstrate compliance with, paragraph 1 ('accountability').

Article 6

Lawfulness of processing

1. Processing shall be lawful only if and to the extent that at least one of the following applies:

(a) the data subject has given consent to the processing of his or her personal data for one or more specific purposes;

(b) processing is necessary for the performance of a contract to which the data subject is party or in order to take steps at the request of the data subject prior to entering into a contract;

(c) processing is necessary for compliance with a legal obligation to which the controller is subject;

(d) processing is necessary in order to protect the vital interests of the data subject or of another natural person;

(e) processing is necessary for the performance of a task carried out in the public interest or in the exercise of official authority vested in the controller;

(f) processing is necessary for the purposes of the legitimate interests pursued by the controller or by a third party, except where such interests are overridden by the interests or fundamental rights and freedoms of the data subject which require protection of personal data, in particular where the data subject is a child.

Point (f) of the first subparagraph shall not apply to processing carried out by public authorities in the performance of their tasks.

2. Member States may maintain or introduce more specific provisions to adapt the application of the rules of this Regulation with regard to processing for compliance with points (c) and (e) of paragraph 1 by determining more precisely specific requirements for the processing and other measures to ensure lawful and fair processing including for other specific processing situations as provided for in Chapter IX.

3. The basis for the processing referred to in point (c) and (e) of paragraph 1 shall be laid down by:

(a) Union law; or

(b) Member State law to which the controller is subject.

The purpose of the processing shall be determined in that legal basis or, as regards the processing referred to in point (e) of paragraph 1, shall be necessary for the performance of a task carried out in the public interest or in the exercise of official authority vested in the controller. That legal basis may contain specific provisions to adapt the application of rules of this Regulation, inter alia: the general conditions governing the lawfulness of processing by the controller; the types of data which are subject to the processing; the data subjects concerned; the entities to, and the purposes for which, the personal data may be disclosed; the purpose limitation; storage periods; and processing operations and processing procedures, including measures to ensure lawful and fair processing such as those for other specific processing situations as provided for in Chapter IX. The Union or the Member State law shall meet an objective of public interest and be proportionate to the legitimate aim pursued.

4. Where the processing for a purpose other than that for which the personal data have been collected is not based on the data subject's consent or on a Union or Member State law which constitutes a necessary and proportionate measure in a democratic society to safeguard the objectives referred to in Article 23(1), the controller shall, in order to ascertain whether processing for another purpose is compatible with the purpose for which the personal data are initially collected, take into account, inter alia:

(a) any link between the purposes for which the personal data have been collected and the purposes of the intended further processing;

(b) the context in which the personal data have been collected, in particular regarding the relationship between data subjects and the controller;

(c) the nature of the personal data, in particular whether special categories of personal data are processed, pursuant to Article 9, or whether personal data related to criminal convictions and offences are processed, pursuant to Article 10;

(d) the possible consequences of the intended further processing for data subjects;

1. Where processing is based on consent, the controller shall be able to demonstrate that the data subject has consented to processing of his or her personal data.

2. If the data subject's consent is given in the context of a written declaration which also concerns other matters, the request for consent shall be presented in a manner which is clearly distinguishable from the other matters, in an intelligible and easily accessible form, using clear and plain language. Any part of such a declaration which constitutes an infringement of this Regulation shall not be binding.

3. The data subject shall have the right to withdraw his or her consent at any time. The withdrawal of consent shall not affect the lawfulness of processing based on consent before its withdrawal. Prior to giving consent, the data subject shall be informed thereof. It shall be as easy to withdraw as to give consent.

4. When assessing whether consent is freely given, utmost account shall be taken of whether, inter alia, the performance of a contract, including the provision of a service, is conditional on consent to the processing of personal data that is not necessary for the performance of that contract.

Article 8

Conditions applicable to child's consent in relation to information society services

1. Where point (a) of Article 6(1) applies, in relation to the offer of information society services directly to a child, the processing of the personal data of a child shall be lawful where the child is at least 16 years old. Where the child is below the age of 16 years, such processing shall be lawful only if and to the extent that consent is given or authorised by the holder of parental responsibility over the child.

Member States may provide by law for a lower age for those purposes provided that such lower age is not below 13 years.

2. The controller shall make reasonable efforts to verify in such cases that consent is given or authorised by the holder of parental responsibility over the child, taking into consideration available technology.

3. Paragraph 1 shall not affect the general contract law of Member States such as the rules on the validity, formation or effect of a contract in relation to a child.

Article 9

Processing of special categories of personal data

1. Processing of personal data revealing racial or ethnic origin, political opinions, religious or philosophical beliefs, or trade union membership, and the processing of genetic data, biometric data for the purpose of uniquely identifying a natural person, data concerning health or data concerning a natural person's sex life or sexual orientation shall be prohibited.

2. Paragraph 1 shall not apply if one of the following applies:

(a) the data subject has given explicit consent to the processing of those personal data for one or more specified purposes, except where Union or Member State law provide that the prohibition referred to in paragraph 1 may not be lifted by the data subject;

(b) processing is necessary for the purposes of carrying out the obligations and exercising specific rights of the controller or of the data subject in the field of employment and social security and social protection law in so far as it is authorised by Union or Member State law or a collective agreement pursuant to Member State law providing for appropriate safeguards for the fundamental rights and the interests of the data subject;

(c) processing is necessary to protect the vital interests of the data subject or of another natural person where the data subject is physically or legally incapable of giving consent;

(d) processing is carried out in the course of its legitimate activities with appropriate safeguards by a foundation, association or any other not-for-profit body with a political, philosophical, religious or trade union aim and on condition that the processing relates solely to the members or to former members of the body or to persons who have regular contact with it in connection with its purposes and that the personal data are not disclosed outside that body without the consent of the data subjects;

(e) processing relates to personal data which are manifestly made public by the data subject;

(f) processing is necessary for the establishment, exercise or defence of legal claims or whenever courts are acting in their judicial capacity;

(g) processing is necessary for reasons of substantial public interest, on the basis of Union or Member State law which shall be proportionate to the aim pursued, respect the essence of the right to data protection and provide for suitable and specific measures to safeguard the fundamental rights and the interests of the data subject;

(h) processing is necessary for the purposes of preventive or occupational medicine, for the assessment of the working capacity of the employee, medical diagnosis, the provision of health or social care or treatment or the management of health or social care systems and services on the basis of Union or Member State law or pursuant to contract with a health professional and subject to the conditions and safeguards referred to in paragraph 3;

(i) processing is necessary for reasons of public interest in the area of public health, such as protecting against serious cross-border threats to health or ensuring high standards of quality and safety of health care and of medicinal products or medical devices, on the basis of Union or Member State law which provides for suitable and specific measures to safeguard the rights and freedoms of the data subject, in particular professional secrecy;

(j) processing is necessary for archiving purposes in the public interest, scientific or historical research purposes or statistical purposes in accordance with Article 89(1) based on Union or Member State law which shall be proportionate to the aim pursued, respect the essence of the right to data protection and provide for suitable and specific measures to safeguard the fundamental rights and the interests of the data subject.

3. Personal data referred to in paragraph 1 may be processed for the purposes referred to in point (h) of paragraph 2 when those data are processed by or under the responsibility of a professional subject to the obligation of professional secrecy under Union or Member State law or rules established by national competent bodies or by another person also subject to an obligation of secrecy under Union or Member State law or rules established by national competent bodies.

4. Member States may maintain or introduce further conditions, including limitations, with regard to the processing of genetic data, biometric data or data concerning health.

Article 10

Processing of personal data relating to criminal convictions and offences

Processing of personal data relating to criminal convictions and offences or related security measures based on Article 6(1) shall be carried out only under the control of official authority or when the processing is authorised by Union or Member State law providing for appropriate safeguards for the rights and freedoms of data subjects. Any comprehensive register of criminal convictions shall be kept only under the control of official authority.

Article 11

Processing which does not require identification

1. If the purposes for which a controller processes personal data do not or do no longer require the identification of a data subject by the controller, the controller shall not be obliged to maintain, acquire or process additional information in order to identify the data subject for the sole purpose of complying with this Regulation.

2. Where, in cases referred to in paragraph 1 of this Article, the controller is able to demonstrate that it is not in a position to identify the data subject, the controller shall inform the data subject accordingly, if possible. In such cases, Articles 15 to 20 shall not apply except where the data subject, for the purpose of exercising his or her rights under those articles, provides additional information enabling his or her identification.

CHAPTER III

Section 1

Transparency and modalities

Article 12

Transparent information, communication and modalities for the exercise of the rights of the data subject

1. The controller shall take appropriate measures to provide any information referred to in Articles 13 and 14 and any communication under Articles 15 to 22 and 34 relating to processing to the data subject in a concise, transparent, intelligible and easily accessible form, using clear and plain language, in particular for any information addressed specifically to a child. The information shall be provided in writing, or by other means, including, where appropriate, by electronic means. When requested by the data subject, the information may be provided orally, provided that the identity of the data subject is proven by other means.

2. The controller shall facilitate the exercise of data subject rights under Articles 15 to 22. In the cases referred to in Article 11(2), the controller shall not refuse to act on the request of the data subject for exercising his or her rights under Articles 15 to 22, unless the controller demonstrates that it is not in a position to identify the data subject.

3. The controller shall provide information on action taken on a request under Articles 15 to 22 to the data subject without undue delay and in any event within one month of receipt of the request. That period may be extended by two further months where necessary, taking into account the complexity and number of the requests. The controller shall inform the data subject of any such extension within one month of receipt of the request, together with the reasons for the delay. Where the data subject makes the request by electronic form means, the information shall be provided by electronic means where possible, unless otherwise requested by the data subject.

4. If the controller does not take action on the request of the data subject, the controller shall inform the data subject without delay and at the latest within one month of receipt of the request of the reasons for not taking action and on the possibility of lodging a complaint with a supervisory authority and seeking a judicial remedy.

5. Information provided under Articles 13 and 14 and any communication and any actions taken under Articles 15 to 22 and 34 shall be provided free of charge. Where requests from a data subject are manifestly unfounded or excessive, in particular because of their repetitive character, the controller may either:

(a) charge a reasonable fee taking into account the administrative costs of providing the information or communication or taking the action requested; or

(b) refuse to act on the request.

The controller shall bear the burden of demonstrating the manifestly unfounded or excessive character of the request.

6. Without prejudice to Article 11, where the controller has reasonable doubts concerning the identity of the natural person making the request referred to in Articles 15 to 21, the controller may request the provision of additional information necessary to confirm the identity of the data subject.

7. The information to be provided to data subjects pursuant to Articles 13 and 14 may be provided in combination with standardised icons in order to give in an easily visible, intelligible and clearly legible manner a meaningful overview of the intended processing. Where the icons are presented electronically they shall be machine-readable.

8. The Commission shall be empowered to adopt delegated acts in accordance with Article 92 for the purpose of determining the information to be presented by the icons and the procedures for providing standardised icons.

General obligations

Article 24

Responsibility of the controller

1. Taking into account the nature, scope, context and purposes of processing as well as the risks of varying likelihood and severity for the rights and freedoms of natural persons, the controller shall implement appropriate technical and organisational measures to ensure and to be able to demonstrate that processing is performed in accordance with this Regulation. Those measures shall be reviewed and updated where necessary.

2. Where proportionate in relation to processing activities, the measures referred to in paragraph 1 shall include the implementation of appropriate data protection policies by the controller.

3. Adherence to approved codes of conduct as referred to in Article 40 or approved certification mechanisms as referred to in Article 42 may be used as an element by which to demonstrate compliance with the obligations of the controller.

Article 25

Data protection by design and by default

1. Taking into account the state of the art, the cost of implementation and the nature, scope, context and purposes of processing as well as the risks of varying likelihood and severity for rights and freedoms of natural persons posed by the processing, the controller shall, both at the time of the determination of the means for processing and at the time of the processing itself, implement appropriate technical and organisational measures, such as pseudonymisation, which are designed to implement data-protection principles, such as data minimisation, in an effective manner and to integrate the necessary safeguards into the processing in order to meet the requirements of this Regulation and protect the rights of data subjects.

2. The controller shall implement appropriate technical and organisational measures for ensuring that, by default, only personal data which are necessary for each specific purpose of the processing are processed. That obligation applies to the amount of personal data collected, the extent of their processing, the period of their storage and their accessibility. In particular, such measures shall ensure that by default personal data are not made accessible without the individual's intervention to an indefinite number of natural persons.

3. An approved certification mechanism pursuant to Article 42 may be used as an element to demonstrate compliance with the requirements set out in paragraphs 1 and 2 of this Article.

Article 26

Joint controllers

1. Where two or more controllers jointly determine the purposes and means of processing, they shall be joint controllers. They shall in a transparent manner determine their respective responsibilities for compliance with the obligations under this Regulation, in particular as regards the exercising of the rights of the data subject and their respective duties to provide the information referred to in Articles 13 and 14, by means of an arrangement between them unless, and in so far as, the respective responsibilities of the controllers are determined by Union or Member State law to which the controllers are subject. The arrangement may designate a contact point for data subjects.

2. The arrangement referred to in paragraph 1 shall duly reflect the respective roles and relationships of the joint controllers vis-à-vis the data subjects. The essence of the arrangement shall be made available to the data subject.

3. Irrespective of the terms of the arrangement referred to in paragraph 1, the data subject may exercise his or her rights under this Regulation in respect of and against each of the controllers.

Article 27

Representatives of controllers or processors not established in the Union

1. Where Article 3(2) applies, the controller or the processor shall designate in writing a representative in the Union.

2. The obligation laid down in paragraph 1 of this Article shall not apply to:

(a) processing which is occasional, does not include, on a large scale, processing of special categories of data as referred to in Article 9(1) or processing of personal data relating to criminal convictions and offences referred to in Article 10, and is unlikely to result in a risk to the rights and freedoms of natural persons, taking into account the nature, context, scope and purposes of the processing; or

(b) a public authority or body.

3. The representative shall be established in one of the Member States where the data subjects, whose personal data are processed in relation to the offering of goods or services to them, or whose behaviour is monitored, are.

4. The representative shall be mandated by the controller or processor to be addressed in addition to or instead of the controller or the processor by, in particular, supervisory authorities and data subjects, on all issues related to processing, for the purposes of ensuring compliance with this Regulation.

5. The designation of a representative by the controller or processor shall be without prejudice to legal actions which could be initiated against the controller or the processor themselves.

Processor

1. Where processing is to be carried out on behalf of a controller, the controller shall use only processors providing sufficient guarantees to implement appropriate technical and organisational measures in such a manner that processing will meet the requirements of this Regulation and ensure the protection of the rights of the data subject.

2. The processor shall not engage another processor without prior specific or general written authorisation of the controller. In the case of general written authorisation, the processor shall inform the controller of any intended changes concerning the addition or replacement of other processors, thereby giving the controller the opportunity to object to such changes.

3. Processing by a processor shall be governed by a contract or other legal act under Union or Member State law, that is binding on the processor with regard to the controller and that sets out the subject-matter and duration of the processing, the nature and purpose of the processing, the type of personal data and categories of data subjects and the obligations and rights of the controller. That contract or other legal act shall stipulate, in particular, that the processor:

(a) processes the personal data only on documented instructions from the controller, including with regard to transfers of personal data to a third country or an international organisation, unless required to do so by Union or Member State law to which the processor is subject; in such a case, the processor shall inform the controller of that legal requirement before processing, unless that law prohibits such information on important grounds of public interest;

(b) ensures that persons authorised to process the personal data have committed themselves to confidentiality or are under an appropriate statutory obligation of confidentiality;

(c) takes all measures required pursuant to Article 32;

(d) respects the conditions referred to in paragraphs 2 and 4 for engaging another processor;

(e) taking into account the nature of the processing, assists the controller by appropriate technical and organisational measures, insofar as this is possible, for the fulfilment of the controller's obligation to respond to requests for exercising the data subject's rights laid down in Chapter III;

(f) assists the controller in ensuring compliance with the obligations pursuant to Articles 32 to 36 taking into account the nature of processing and the information available to the processor;

(g) at the choice of the controller, deletes or returns all the personal data to the controller after the end of the provision of services relating to processing, and deletes existing copies unless Union or Member State law requires storage of the personal data;

(h) makes available to the controller all information necessary to demonstrate compliance with the obligations laid down in this Article and allow for and contribute to audits, including inspections, conducted by the controller or another auditor mandated by the controller.

With regard to point (h) of the first subparagraph, the processor shall immediately inform the controller if, in its opinion, an instruction infringes this Regulation or other Union or Member State data protection provisions.

4. Where a processor engages another processor for carrying out specific processing activities on behalf of the controller, the same data protection obligations as set out in the contract or other legal act between the controller and the processor as referred to in paragraph 3 shall be imposed on that other processor by way of a contract or other legal act under Union or Member State law, in particular providing sufficient guarantees to implement appropriate technical and organisational measures in such a manner that the processing will meet the requirements of this Regulation. Where that other processor fails to fulfil its data protection obligations, the initial processor shall remain fully liable to the controller for the performance of that other processor's obligations.

5. Adherence of a processor to an approved code of conduct as referred to in Article 40 or an approved certification mechanism as referred to in Article 42 may be used as an element by which to demonstrate sufficient guarantees as referred to in paragraphs 1 and 4 of this Article.

6. Without prejudice to an individual contract between the controller and the processor, the contract or the other legal act referred to in paragraphs 3 and 4 of this Article may be based, in whole or in part, on standard contractual clauses referred to in paragraphs 7 and 8 of this Article, including when they are part of a certification granted to the controller or processor pursuant to Articles 42 and 43.

7. The Commission may lay down standard contractual clauses for the matters referred to in paragraph 3 and 4 of this Article and in accordance with the examination procedure referred to in Article 93(2).

8. A supervisory authority may adopt standard contractual clauses for the matters referred to in paragraph 3 and 4 of this Article and in accordance with the consistency mechanism referred to in Article 63.

9. The contract or the other legal act referred to in paragraphs 3 and 4 shall be in writing, including in electronic form.

10. Without prejudice to Articles 82, 83 and 84, if a processor infringes this Regulation by determining the purposes and means of processing, the processor shall be considered to be a controller in respect of that processing.

Article 29

Processing under the authority of the controller or processor

The processor and any person acting under the authority of the controller or of the processor, who has access to personal data, shall not process those data except on instructions from the controller, unless required to do so by Union or Member State law.

Article 30

Records of processing activities

1. Each controller and, where applicable, the controller's representative, shall maintain a record of processing activities under its responsibility. That record shall contain all of the following information:

(a) the name and contact details of the controller and, where applicable, the joint controller, the controller's representative and the data protection officer;

(b) the purposes of the processing;

(c) a description of the categories of data subjects and of the categories of personal data;

(d) the categories of recipients to whom the personal data have been or will be disclosed including recipients in third countries or international organisations;

(e) where applicable, transfers of personal data to a third country or an international organisation, including the identification of that third country or international organisation and, in the case of transfers referred to in the second subparagraph of Article 49(1), the documentation of suitable safeguards;

(f) where possible, the envisaged time limits for erasure of the different categories of data;

(g) where possible, a general description of the technical and organisational security measures referred to in Article 32(1).

2. Each processor and, where applicable, the processor's representative shall maintain a record of all categories of processing activities carried out on behalf of a controller, containing:

(a) the name and contact details of the processor or processors and of each controller on behalf of which the processor is acting, and, where applicable, of the controller's or the processor's representative, and the data protection officer;

(b) the categories of processing carried out on behalf of each controller;

(c) where applicable, transfers of personal data to a third country or an international organisation, including the identification of that third country or international organisation and, in the case of transfers referred to in the second subparagraph of Article 49(1), the documentation of suitable safeguards;

(d) where possible, a general description of the technical and organisational security measures referred to in Article 32(1).

3. The records referred to in paragraphs 1 and 2 shall be in writing, including in electronic form.

4. The controller or the processor and, where applicable, the controller's or the processor's representative, shall make the record available to the supervisory authority on request.

5. The obligations referred to in paragraphs 1 and 2 shall not apply to an enterprise or an organisation employing fewer than 250 persons unless the processing it carries out is likely to result in a risk to the rights and freedoms of data subjects, the processing is not occasional, or the processing includes special categories of data as referred to in Article 9(1) or personal data relating to criminal convictions and offences referred to in Article 10.

Article 31

Cooperation with the supervisory authority

The controller and the processor and, where applicable, their representatives, shall cooperate, on request, with the supervisory authority in the performance of its tasks.

Section 2

Security of personal data

Article 32

Security of processing

1. Taking into account the state of the art, the costs of implementation and the nature, scope, context and purposes of processing as well as the risk of varying likelihood and severity for the rights and freedoms of natural persons, the controller and the processor shall implement appropriate technical and organisational measures to ensure a level of security appropriate to the risk, including inter alia as appropriate:

(a) the pseudonymisation and encryption of personal data;

(b) the ability to ensure the ongoing confidentiality, integrity, availability and resilience of processing systems and services;

(c) the ability to restore the availability and access to personal data in a timely manner in the event of a physical or technical incident;

(d) a process for regularly testing, assessing and evaluating the effectiveness of technical and organisational measures for ensuring the security of the processing.

2. In assessing the appropriate level of security account shall be taken in particular of the risks that are presented by processing, in particular from accidental or unlawful destruction, loss, alteration, unauthorised disclosure of, or access to personal data transmitted, stored or otherwise processed.

3. Adherence to an approved code of conduct as referred to in Article 40 or an approved certification mechanism as referred to in Article 42 may be used as an element by which to demonstrate compliance with the requirements set out in paragraph 1 of this Article.

4. The controller and processor shall take steps to ensure that any natural person acting under the authority of the controller or the processor who has access to personal data does not process them except on instructions from the controller, unless he or she is required to do so by Union or Member State law.

Notification of a personal data breach to the supervisory authority

1. In the case of a personal data breach, the controller shall without undue delay and, where feasible, not later than 72 hours after having become aware of it, notify the personal data breach to the supervisory authority competent in accordance with Article 55, unless the personal data breach is unlikely to result in a risk to the rights and freedoms of natural persons. Where the notification to the supervisory authority is not made within 72 hours, it shall be accompanied by reasons for the delay.

2. The processor shall notify the controller without undue delay after becoming aware of a personal data breach.

3. The notification referred to in paragraph 1 shall at least:

(a) describe the nature of the personal data breach including where possible, the categories and approximate number of data subjects concerned and the categories and approximate number of personal data records concerned;

(b) communicate the name and contact details of the data protection officer or other contact point where more information can be obtained;

(c) describe the likely consequences of the personal data breach;

(d) describe the measures taken or proposed to be taken by the controller to address the personal data breach, including, where appropriate, measures to mitigate its possible adverse effects.

4. Where, and in so far as, it is not possible to provide the information at the same time, the information may be provided in phases without undue further delay.

5. The controller shall document any personal data breaches, comprising the facts relating to the personal data breach, its effects and the remedial action taken. That documentation shall enable the supervisory authority to verify compliance with this Article.

Article 34

Communication of a personal data breach to the data subject

1. When the personal data breach is likely to result in a high risk to the rights and freedoms of natural persons, the controller shall communicate the personal data breach to the data subject without undue delay.

2. The communication to the data subject referred to in paragraph 1 of this Article shall describe in clear and plain language the nature of the personal data breach and contain at least the information and measures referred to in points (b), (c) and (d) of Article 33(3).

3. The communication to the data subject referred to in paragraph 1 shall not be required if any of the following conditions are met:

(a) the controller has implemented appropriate technical and organisational protection measures, and those measures were applied to the personal data affected by the personal data breach, in particular those that render the personal data unintelligible to any person who is not authorised to access it, such as encryption;

(b) the controller has taken subsequent measures which ensure that the high risk to the rights and freedoms of data subjects referred to in paragraph 1 is no longer likely to materialise;

(c) it would involve disproportionate effort. In such a case, there shall instead be a public communication or similar measure whereby the data subjects are informed in an equally effective manner.

4. If the controller has not already communicated the personal data breach to the data subject, the supervisory authority, having considered the likelihood of the personal data breach resulting in a high risk, may require it to do so or may decide that any of the conditions referred to in paragraph 3 are met.

Section 3

Data protection impact assessment and prior consultation

Article 35

Data protection impact assessment

1. Where a type of processing in particular using new technologies, and taking into account the nature, scope, context and purposes of the processing, is likely to result in a high risk to the rights and freedoms of natural persons, the controller shall, prior to the processing, carry out an assessment of the impact of the envisaged processing operations on the protection of personal data. A single assessment may address a set of similar processing operations that present similar high risks.

2. The controller shall seek the advice of the data protection officer, where designated, when carrying out a data protection impact assessment.

3. A data protection impact assessment referred to in paragraph 1 shall in particular be required in the case of:

(a) a systematic and extensive evaluation of personal aspects relating to natural persons which is based on automated processing, including profiling, and on which decisions are based that produce legal effects concerning the natural person or similarly significantly affect the natural person;

(b) processing on a large scale of special categories of data referred to in Article 9(1), or of personal data relating to criminal convictions and offences referred to in Article 10; or

(c) a systematic monitoring of a publicly accessible area on a large scale.

4. The supervisory authority shall establish and make public a list of the kind of processing operations which are subject to the requirement for a data protection impact assessment pursuant to paragraph 1. The supervisory authority shall communicate those lists to the Board referred to in Article 68.

5. The supervisory authority may also establish and make public a list of the kind of processing operations for which no data protection impact assessment is required. The supervisory authority shall communicate those lists to the Board.

6. Prior to the adoption of the lists referred to in paragraphs 4 and 5, the competent supervisory authority shall apply the consistency mechanism referred to in Article 63 where such lists involve processing activities which are related to the offering of goods or services to data subjects or to the monitoring of their behaviour in several Member States, or may substantially affect the free movement of personal data within the Union.

7. The assessment shall contain at least:

(a) a systematic description of the envisaged processing operations and the purposes of the processing, including, where applicable, the legitimate interest pursued by the controller;

(b) an assessment of the necessity and proportionality of the processing operations in relation to the purposes;

(c) an assessment of the risks to the rights and freedoms of data subjects referred to in paragraph 1; and

(d) the measures envisaged to address the risks, including safeguards, security measures and mechanisms to ensure the protection of personal data and to demonstrate compliance with this Regulation taking into account the rights and legitimate interests of data subjects and other persons concerned.

8. Compliance with approved codes of conduct referred to in Article 40 by the relevant controllers or processors shall be taken into due account in assessing the impact of the processing operations performed by such controllers or processors, in particular for the purposes of a data protection impact assessment.

9. Where appropriate, the controller shall seek the views of data subjects or their representatives on the intended processing, without prejudice to the protection of commercial or public interests or the security of processing operations.

10. Where processing pursuant to point (c) or (e) of Article 6(1) has a legal basis in Union law or in the law of the Member State to which the controller is subject, that law regulates the specific processing operation or set of operations in question, and a data protection impact assessment has already been carried out as part of a general impact assessment in the context of the adoption of that legal basis, paragraphs 1 to 7 shall not apply unless Member States deem it to be necessary to carry out such an assessment prior to processing activities.

11. Where necessary, the controller shall carry out a review to assess if processing is performed in accordance with the data protection impact assessment at least when there is a change of the risk represented by processing operations.

Prior consultation

1. The controller shall consult the supervisory authority prior to processing where a data protection impact assessment under Article 35 indicates that the processing would result in a high risk in the absence of measures taken by the controller to mitigate the risk.

2. Where the supervisory authority is of the opinion that the intended processing referred to in paragraph 1 would infringe this Regulation, in particular where the controller has insufficiently identified or mitigated the risk, the supervisory authority shall, within period of up to eight weeks of receipt of the request for consultation, provide written advice to the controller and, where applicable to the processor, and may use any of its powers referred to in Article 58. That period may be extended by six weeks, taking into account the complexity of the intended processing. The supervisory authority shall inform the controller and, where applicable, the processor, of any such extension within one month of receipt of the request for consultation together with the reasons for the delay. Those periods may be suspended until the supervisory authority has obtained information it has requested for the purposes of the consultation.

3. When consulting the supervisory authority pursuant to paragraph 1, the controller shall provide the supervisory authority with:

(a) where applicable, the respective responsibilities of the controller, joint controllers and processors involved in the processing, in particular for processing within a group of undertakings;

(b) the purposes and means of the intended processing;

(c) the measures and safeguards provided to protect the rights and freedoms of data subjects pursuant to this Regulation;

(d) where applicable, the contact details of the data protection officer;

(e) the data protection impact assessment provided for in Article 35; and

(f) any other information requested by the supervisory authority.

4. Member States shall consult the supervisory authority during the preparation of a proposal for a legislative measure to be adopted by a national parliament, or of a regulatory measure based on such a legislative measure, which relates to processing.

5. Notwithstanding paragraph 1, Member State law may require controllers to consult with, and obtain prior authorisation from, the supervisory authority in relation to processing by a controller for the performance of a task carried out by the controller in the public interest, including processing in relation to social protection and public health.

Section 4

Data protection officer

Article 37

Designation of the data protection officer

1. The controller and the processor shall designate a data protection officer in any case where:

(a) the processing is carried out by a public authority or body, except for courts acting in their judicial capacity;

(b) the core activities of the controller or the processor consist of processing operations which, by virtue of their nature, their scope and/or their purposes, require regular and systematic monitoring of data subjects on a large scale; or

(c) the core activities of the controller or the processor consist of processing on a large scale of special categories of data pursuant to Article 9 and personal data relating to criminal convictions and offences referred to in Article 10.

2. A group of undertakings may appoint a single data protection officer provided that a data protection officer is easily accessible from each establishment.

3. Where the controller or the processor is a public authority or body, a single data protection officer may be designated for several such authorities or bodies, taking account of their organisational structure and size.

4. In cases other than those referred to in paragraph 1, the controller or processor or associations and other bodies representing categories of controllers or processors may or, where required by Union or Member State law shall, designate a data protection officer. The data protection officer may act for such associations and other bodies representing controllers or processors.

5. The data protection officer shall be designated on the basis of professional qualities and, in particular, expert knowledge of data protection law and practices and the ability to fulfil the tasks referred to in Article 39.

6. The data protection officer may be a staff member of the controller or processor, or fulfil the tasks on the basis of a service contract.

7. The controller or the processor shall publish the contact details of the data protection officer and communicate them to the supervisory authority.

Article 38

Position of the data protection officer

1. The controller and the processor shall ensure that the data protection officer is involved, properly and in a timely manner, in all issues which relate to the protection of personal data.

2. The controller and processor shall support the data protection officer in performing the tasks referred to in Article 39 by providing resources necessary to carry out those tasks and access to personal data and processing operations, and to maintain his or her expert knowledge.

3. The controller and processor shall ensure that the data protection officer does not receive any instructions regarding the exercise of those tasks. He or she shall not be dismissed or penalised by the controller or the processor for performing his tasks. The data protection officer shall directly report to the highest management level of the controller or the processor.

4. Data subjects may contact the data protection officer with regard to all issues related to processing of their personal data and to the exercise of their rights under this Regulation.

5. The data protection officer shall be bound by secrecy or confidentiality concerning the performance of his or her tasks, in accordance with Union or Member State law.

6. The data protection officer may fulfil other tasks and duties. The controller or processor shall ensure that any such tasks and duties do not result in a conflict of interests.

Article 39

Tasks of the data protection officer

1. The data protection officer shall have at least the following tasks:

(a) to inform and advise the controller or the processor and the employees who carry out processing of their obligations pursuant to this Regulation and to other Union or Member State data protection provisions;

(b) to monitor compliance with this Regulation, with other Union or Member State data protection provisions and with the policies of the controller or processor in relation to the protection of personal data, including the assignment of responsibilities, awareness-raising and training of staff involved in processing operations, and the related audits;

(c) to provide advice where requested as regards the data protection impact assessment and monitor its performance pursuant to Article 35;

(d) to cooperate with the supervisory authority;

(e) to act as the contact point for the supervisory authority on issues relating to processing, including the prior consultation referred to in Article 36, and to consult, where appropriate, with regard to any other matter.

2. The data protection officer shall in the performance of his or her tasks have due regard to the risk associated with processing operations, taking into account the nature, scope, context and purposes of processing.

Section 5

Codes of conduct and certification

Article 40

Codes of conduct

1. The Member States, the supervisory authorities, the Board and the Commission shall encourage the drawing up of codes of conduct intended to contribute to the proper application of this Regulation, taking account of the specific features of the various processing sectors and the specific needs of micro, small and medium-sized enterprises.

2. Associations and other bodies representing categories of controllers or processors may prepare codes of conduct, or amend or extend such codes, for the purpose of specifying the application of this Regulation, such as with regard to:

(a) fair and transparent processing;

(b) the legitimate interests pursued by controllers in specific contexts;

(c) the collection of personal data;

(d) the pseudonymisation of personal data;

(e) the information provided to the public and to data subjects;

(f) the exercise of the rights of data subjects;

(g) the information provided to, and the protection of, children, and the manner in which the consent of the holders of parental responsibility over children is to be obtained;

(h) the measures and procedures referred to in Articles 24 and 25 and the measures to ensure security of processing referred to in Article 32;

(i) the notification of personal data breaches to supervisory authorities and the communication of such personal data breaches to data subjects;

(j) the transfer of personal data to third countries or international organisations; or

(k) out-of-court proceedings and other dispute resolution procedures for resolving disputes between controllers and data subjects with regard to processing, without prejudice to the rights of data subjects pursuant to Articles 77 and 79.

3. In addition to adherence by controllers or processors subject to this Regulation, codes of conduct approved pursuant to paragraph 5 of this Article and having general validity pursuant to paragraph 9 of this Article may also be adhered to by controllers or processors that are not subject to this Regulation pursuant to Article 3 in order to provide appropriate safeguards within the framework of personal data transfers to third countries or international organisations under the terms referred to in point (e) of Article 46(2). Such controllers or processors shall make binding and enforceable commitments, via contractual or other legally binding instruments, to apply those appropriate safeguards including with regard to the rights of data subjects.

4. A code of conduct referred to in paragraph 2 of this Article shall contain mechanisms which enable the body referred to in Article 41(1) to carry out the mandatory monitoring of compliance with its provisions by the controllers or processors which undertake to apply it, without prejudice to the tasks and powers of supervisory authorities competent pursuant to Article 55 or 56.

5. Associations and other bodies referred to in paragraph 2 of this Article which intend to prepare a code of conduct or to amend or extend an existing code shall submit the draft code, amendment or extension to the supervisory authority which is competent pursuant to Article 55. The supervisory authority shall provide an opinion on whether the draft code, amendment or extension complies with this Regulation and shall approve that draft code, amendment or extension if it finds that it provides sufficient appropriate safeguards.

6. Where the draft code, or amendment or extension is approved in accordance with paragraph 5, and where the code of conduct concerned does not relate to processing activities in several Member States, the supervisory authority shall register and publish the code.

7. Where a draft code of conduct relates to processing activities in several Member States, the supervisory authority which is competent pursuant to Article 55 shall, before approving the draft code, amendment or extension, submit it in the procedure referred to in Article 63 to the Board which shall provide an opinion on whether the draft code, amendment or extension complies with this Regulation or, in the situation referred to in paragraph 3 of this Article, provides appropriate safeguards.

8. Where the opinion referred to in paragraph 7 confirms that the draft code, amendment or extension complies with this Regulation, or, in the situation referred to in paragraph 3, provides appropriate safeguards, the Board shall submit its opinion to the Commission.

9. The Commission may, by way of implementing acts, decide that the approved code of conduct, amendment or extension submitted to it pursuant to paragraph 8 of this Article have general validity within the Union. Those implementing acts shall be adopted in accordance with the examination procedure set out in Article 93(2).

10. The Commission shall ensure appropriate publicity for the approved codes which have been decided as having general validity in accordance with paragraph 9.

11. The Board shall collate all approved codes of conduct, amendments and extensions in a register and shall make them publicly available by way of appropriate means.

Article 41

Monitoring of approved codes of conduct

1. Without prejudice to the tasks and powers of the competent supervisory authority under Articles 57 and 58, the monitoring of compliance with a code of conduct pursuant to Article 40 may be carried out by a body which has an appropriate level of expertise in relation to the subject-matter of the code and is accredited for that purpose by the competent supervisory authority.

2. A body as referred to in paragraph 1 may be accredited to monitor compliance with a code of conduct where that body has:

(a) demonstrated its independence and expertise in relation to the subject-matter of the code to the satisfaction of the competent supervisory authority;

(b) established procedures which allow it to assess the eligibility of controllers and processors concerned to apply the code, to monitor their compliance with its provisions and to periodically review its operation;

(c) established procedures and structures to handle complaints about infringements of the code or the manner in which the code has been, or is being, implemented by a controller or processor, and to make those procedures and structures transparent to data subjects and the public; and

(d) demonstrated to the satisfaction of the competent supervisory authority that its tasks and duties do not result in a conflict of interests.

3. The competent supervisory authority shall submit the draft criteria for accreditation of a body as referred to in paragraph 1 of this Article to the Board pursuant to the consistency mechanism referred to in Article 63.

4. Without prejudice to the tasks and powers of the competent supervisory authority and the provisions of Chapter VIII, a body as referred to in paragraph 1 of this Article shall, subject to appropriate safeguards, take appropriate action in cases of infringement of the code by a controller or processor, including suspension or exclusion of the controller or processor concerned from the code. It shall inform the competent supervisory authority of such actions and the reasons for taking them.

5. The competent supervisory authority shall revoke the accreditation of a body as referred to in paragraph 1 if the conditions for accreditation are not, or are no longer, met or where actions taken by the body infringe this Regulation.

6. This Article shall not apply to processing carried out by public authorities and bodies.

Certification

1. The Member States, the supervisory authorities, the Board and the Commission shall encourage, in particular at Union level, the establishment of data protection certification mechanisms and of data protection seals and marks, for the purpose of demonstrating compliance with this Regulation of processing operations by controllers and processors. The specific needs of micro, small and medium-sized enterprises shall be taken into account.

2. In addition to adherence by controllers or processors subject to this Regulation, data protection certification mechanisms, seals or marks approved pursuant to paragraph 5 of this Article may be established for the purpose of demonstrating the existence of appropriate safeguards provided by controllers or processors that are not subject to this Regulation pursuant to Article 3 within the framework of personal data transfers to third countries or international organisations under the terms referred to in point (f) of Article 46(2). Such controllers or processors shall make binding and enforceable commitments, via contractual or other legally binding instruments, to apply those appropriate safeguards, including with regard to the rights of data subjects.

3. The certification shall be voluntary and available via a process that is transparent.

4. A certification pursuant to this Article does not reduce the responsibility of the controller or the processor for compliance with this Regulation and is without prejudice to the tasks and powers of the supervisory authorities which are competent pursuant to Article 55 or 56.

5. A certification pursuant to this Article shall be issued by the certification bodies referred to in Article 43 or by the competent supervisory authority, on the basis of criteria approved by that competent supervisory authority pursuant to Article 58(3) or by the Board pursuant to Article 63. Where the criteria are approved by the Board, this may result in a common certification, the European Data Protection Seal.

6. The controller or processor which submits its processing to the certification mechanism shall provide the certification body referred to in Article 43, or where applicable, the competent supervisory authority, with all information and access to its processing activities which are necessary to conduct the certification procedure.

7. Certification shall be issued to a controller or processor for a maximum period of three years and may be renewed, under the same conditions, provided that the relevant requirements continue to be met. Certification shall be withdrawn, as applicable, by the certification bodies referred to in Article 43 or by the competent supervisory authority where the requirements for the certification are not or are no longer met.

8. The Board shall collate all certification mechanisms and data protection seals and marks in a register and shall make them publicly available by any appropriate means.

Certification bodies

1. Without prejudice to the tasks and powers of the competent supervisory authority under Articles 57 and 58, certification bodies which have an appropriate level of expertise in relation to data protection shall, after informing the supervisory authority in order to allow it to exercise its powers pursuant to point (h) of Article 58(2) where necessary, issue and renew certification. Member States shall ensure that those certification bodies are accredited by one or both of the following:

(a) the supervisory authority which is competent pursuant to Article 55 or 56;

(b) the national accreditation body named in accordance with Regulation (EC) No 765/2008 of the European Parliament and of the Council ([1]) in accordance with EN-ISO/IEC 17065/2012 and with the additional requirements established by the supervisory authority which is competent pursuant to Article 55 or 56.

2. Certification bodies referred to in paragraph 1 shall be accredited in accordance with that paragraph only where they have:

(a) demonstrated their independence and expertise in relation to the subject-matter of the certification to the satisfaction of the competent supervisory authority;

([1]) Regulation (EC) No 765/2008 of the European Parliament and of the Council of 9 July 2008 setting out the requirements for accreditation and market surveillance relating to the marketing of products and repealing Regulation (EEC) No 339/93 (OJ L 218, 13.8.2008, p. 30).

(b) undertaken to respect the criteria referred to in Article 42(5) and approved by the supervisory authority which is competent pursuant to Article 55 or 56 or by the Board pursuant to Article 63;

(c) established procedures for the issuing, periodic review and withdrawal of data protection certification, seals and marks;

(d) established procedures and structures to handle complaints about infringements of the certification or the manner in which the certification has been, or is being, implemented by the controller or processor, and to make those procedures and structures transparent to data subjects and the public; and

(e) demonstrated, to the satisfaction of the competent supervisory authority, that their tasks and duties do not result in a conflict of interests.

3. The accreditation of certification bodies as referred to in paragraphs 1 and 2 of this Article shall take place on the basis of criteria approved by the supervisory authority which is competent pursuant to Article 55 or 56 or by the Board pursuant to Article 63. In the case of accreditation pursuant to point (b) of paragraph 1 of this Article, those requirements shall complement those envisaged in Regulation (EC) No 765/2008 and the technical rules that describe the methods and procedures of the certification bodies.

4. The certification bodies referred to in paragraph 1 shall be responsible for the proper assessment leading to the certification or the withdrawal of such certification without prejudice to the responsibility of the controller or processor for compliance with this Regulation. The accreditation shall be issued for a maximum period of five years and may be renewed on the same conditions provided that the certification body meets the requirements set out in this Article.

5. The certification bodies referred to in paragraph 1 shall provide the competent supervisory authorities with the reasons for granting or withdrawing the requested certification.

6. The requirements referred to in paragraph 3 of this Article and the criteria referred to in Article 42(5) shall be made public by the supervisory authority in an easily accessible form. The supervisory authorities shall also transmit those requirements and criteria to the Board. The Board shall collate all certification mechanisms and data protection seals in a register and shall make them publicly available by any appropriate means.

7. Without prejudice to Chapter VIII, the competent supervisory authority or the national accreditation body shall revoke an accreditation of a certification body pursuant to paragraph 1 of this Article where the conditions for the accreditation are not, or are no longer, met or where actions taken by a certification body infringe this Regulation.

8. The Commission shall be empowered to adopt delegated acts in accordance with Article 92 for the purpose of specifying the requirements to be taken into account for the data protection certification mechanisms referred to in Article 42(1).

9. The Commission may adopt implementing acts laying down technical standards for certification mechanisms and data protection seals and marks, and mechanisms to promote and recognise those certification mechanisms, seals and marks. Those implementing acts shall be adopted in accordance with the examination procedure referred to in Article 93(2).

CHAPTER V

Transfers of personal data to third countries or international organisations

Article 44

General principle for transfers

Any transfer of personal data which are undergoing processing or are intended for processing after transfer to a third country or to an international organisation shall take place only if, subject to the other provisions of this Regulation, the conditions laid down in this Chapter are complied with by the controller and processor, including for onward transfers of personal data from the third country or an international organisation to another third country or to another international organisation. All provisions in this Chapter shall be applied in order to ensure that the level of protection of natural persons guaranteed by this Regulation is not undermined.

Article 45

Transfers on the basis of an adequacy decision

1. A transfer of personal data to a third country or an international organisation may take place where the Commission has decided that the third country, a territory or one or more specified sectors within that third country, or the international organisation in question ensures an adequate level of protection. Such a transfer shall not require any specific authorisation.

2. When assessing the adequacy of the level of protection, the Commission shall, in particular, take account of the following elements:

(a) the rule of law, respect for human rights and fundamental freedoms, relevant legislation, both general and sectoral, including concerning public security, defence, national security and criminal law and the access of public authorities to personal data, as well as the implementation of such legislation, data protection rules, professional rules and security measures, including rules for the onward transfer of personal data to another third country or international organisation which are complied with in that country or international organisation, case-law, as well as effective and enforceable data subject rights and effective administrative and judicial redress for the data subjects whose personal data are being transferred;

(b) the existence and effective functioning of one or more independent supervisory authorities in the third country or to which an international organisation is subject, with responsibility for ensuring and enforcing compliance with the data protection rules, including adequate enforcement powers, for assisting and advising the data subjects in exercising their rights and for cooperation with the supervisory authorities of the Member States; and

(c) the international commitments the third country or international organisation concerned has entered into, or other obligations arising from legally binding conventions or instruments as well as from its participation in multilateral or regional systems, in particular in relation to the protection of personal data.

3. The Commission, after assessing the adequacy of the level of protection, may decide, by means of implementing act, that a third country, a territory or one or more specified sectors within a third country, or an international organisation ensures an adequate level of protection within the meaning of paragraph 2 of this Article. The implementing act shall provide for a mechanism for a periodic review, at least every four years, which shall take into account all relevant developments in the third country or international organisation. The implementing act shall specify its territorial and sectoral application and, where applicable, identify the supervisory authority or authorities referred to in point (b) of paragraph 2 of this Article. The implementing act shall be adopted in accordance with the examination procedure referred to in Article 93(2).

4. The Commission shall, on an ongoing basis, monitor developments in third countries and international organisations that could affect the functioning of decisions adopted pursuant to paragraph 3 of this Article and decisions adopted on the basis of Article 25(6) of Directive 95/46/EC.

5. The Commission shall, where available information reveals, in particular following the review referred to in paragraph 3 of this Article, that a third country, a territory or one or more specified sectors within a third country, or an international organisation no longer ensures an adequate level of protection within the meaning of paragraph 2 of this Article, to the extent necessary, repeal, amend or suspend the decision referred to in paragraph 3 of this Article by means of implementing acts without retro-active effect. Those implementing acts shall be adopted in accordance with the examination procedure referred to in Article 93(2).

On duly justified imperative grounds of urgency, the Commission shall adopt immediately applicable implementing acts in accordance with the procedure referred to in Article 93(3).

6. The Commission shall enter into consultations with the third country or international organisation with a view to remedying the situation giving rise to the decision made pursuant to paragraph 5.

7. A decision pursuant to paragraph 5 of this Article is without prejudice to transfers of personal data to the third country, a territory or one or more specified sectors within that third country, or the international organisation in question pursuant to Articles 46 to 49.

8. The Commission shall publish in the Official Journal of the European Union and on its website a list of the third countries, territories and specified sectors within a third country and international organisations for which it has decided that an adequate level of protection is or is no longer ensured.

9. Decisions adopted by the Commission on the basis of Article 25(6) of Directive 95/46/EC shall remain in force until amended, replaced or repealed by a Commission Decision adopted in accordance with paragraph 3 or 5 of this Article.

Transfers subject to appropriate safeguards

1. In the absence of a decision pursuant to Article 45(3), a controller or processor may transfer personal data to a third country or an international organisation only if the controller or processor has provided appropriate safeguards, and on condition that enforceable data subject rights and effective legal remedies for data subjects are available.

2. The appropriate safeguards referred to in paragraph 1 may be provided for, without requiring any specific authorisation from a supervisory authority, by:

(a) a legally binding and enforceable instrument between public authorities or bodies;

(b) binding corporate rules in accordance with Article 47;

(c) standard data protection clauses adopted by the Commission in accordance with the examination procedure referred to in Article 93(2);

(d) standard data protection clauses adopted by a supervisory authority and approved by the Commission pursuant to the examination procedure referred to in Article 93(2);

(e) an approved code of conduct pursuant to Article 40 together with binding and enforceable commitments of the controller or processor in the third country to apply the appropriate safeguards, including as regards data subjects' rights; or

(f) an approved certification mechanism pursuant to Article 42 together with binding and enforceable commitments of the controller or processor in the third country to apply the appropriate safeguards, including as regards data subjects' rights.

3. Subject to the authorisation from the competent supervisory authority, the appropriate safeguards referred to in paragraph 1 may also be provided for, in particular, by:

(a) contractual clauses between the controller or processor and the controller, processor or the recipient of the personal data in the third country or international organisation; or

(b) provisions to be inserted into administrative arrangements between public authorities or bodies which include enforceable and effective data subject rights.

4. The supervisory authority shall apply the consistency mechanism referred to in Article 63 in the cases referred to in paragraph 3 of this Article.

5. Authorisations by a Member State or supervisory authority on the basis of Article 26(2) of Directive 95/46/EC shall remain valid until amended, replaced or repealed, if necessary, by that supervisory authority. Decisions adopted by the Commission on the basis of Article 26(4) of Directive 95/46/EC shall remain in force until amended, replaced or repealed, if necessary, by a Commission Decision adopted in accordance with paragraph 2 of this Article.

Article 47

Binding corporate rules

1. The competent supervisory authority shall approve binding corporate rules in accordance with the consistency mechanism set out in Article 63, provided that they:

(a) are legally binding and apply to and are enforced by every member concerned of the group of undertakings, or group of enterprises engaged in a joint economic activity, including their employees;

(b) expressly confer enforceable rights on data subjects with regard to the processing of their personal data; and

(c) fulfil the requirements laid down in paragraph 2.

2. The binding corporate rules referred to in paragraph 1 shall specify at least:

(e) the rights of data subjects in regard to processing and the means to exercise those rights, including the right not to be subject to decisions based solely on automated processing, including profiling in accordance with Article 22, the right to lodge a complaint with the competent supervisory authority and before the competent courts of the Member States in accordance with Article 79, and to obtain redress and, where appropriate, compensation for a breach of the binding corporate rules;

(f) the acceptance by the controller or processor established on the territory of a Member State of liability for any breaches of the binding corporate rules by any member concerned not established in the Union; the controller or the processor shall be exempt from that liability, in whole or in part, only if it proves that that member is not responsible for the event giving rise to the damage;

(g) how the information on the binding corporate rules, in particular on the provisions referred to in points (d), (e) and (f) of this paragraph is provided to the data subjects in addition to Articles 13 and 14;

(h) the tasks of any data protection officer designated in accordance with Article 37 or any other person or entity in charge of the monitoring compliance with the binding corporate rules within the group of undertakings, or group of enterprises engaged in a joint economic activity, as well as monitoring training and complaint-handling;

(i) the complaint procedures;

(j) the mechanisms within the group of undertakings, or group of enterprises engaged in a joint economic activity for ensuring the verification of compliance with the binding corporate rules. Such mechanisms shall include data protection audits and methods for ensuring corrective actions to protect the rights of the data subject. Results of such verification should be communicated to the person or entity referred to in point (h) and to the board of the controlling undertaking of a group of undertakings, or of the group of enterprises engaged in a joint economic activity, and should be available upon request to the competent supervisory authority;

(k) the mechanisms for reporting and recording changes to the rules and reporting those changes to the supervisory authority;

(m) the mechanisms for reporting to the competent supervisory authority any legal requirements to which a member of the group of undertakings, or group of enterprises engaged in a joint economic activity is subject in a third country which are likely to have a substantial adverse effect on the guarantees provided by the binding corporate rules; and

(n) the appropriate data protection training to personnel having permanent or regular access to personal data.

3. The Commission may specify the format and procedures for the exchange of information between controllers, processors and supervisory authorities for binding corporate rules within the meaning of this Article. Those implementing acts shall be adopted in accordance with the examination procedure set out in Article 93(2).

Article 48

Transfers or disclosures not authorised by Union law

Any judgment of a court or tribunal and any decision of an administrative authority of a third country requiring a controller or processor to transfer or disclose personal data may only be recognised or enforceable in any manner if based on an international agreement, such as a mutual legal assistance treaty, in force between the requesting third country and the Union or a Member State, without prejudice to other grounds for transfer pursuant to this Chapter.

Article 49

Derogations for specific situations

1. In the absence of an adequacy decision pursuant to Article 45(3), or of appropriate safeguards pursuant to Article 46, including binding corporate rules, a transfer or a set of transfers of personal data to a third country or an international organisation shall take place only on one of the following conditions:

(a) the data subject has explicitly consented to the proposed transfer, after having been informed of the possible risks of such transfers for the data subject due to the absence of an adequacy decision and appropriate safeguards;

(b) the transfer is necessary for the performance of a contract between the data subject and the controller or the implementation of pre-contractual measures taken at the data subject's request;

(c) the transfer is necessary for the conclusion or performance of a contract concluded in the interest of the data subject between the controller and another natural or legal person;

(d) the transfer is necessary for important reasons of public interest;

(e) the transfer is necessary for the establishment, exercise or defence of legal claims;

(f) the transfer is necessary in order to protect the vital interests of the data subject or of other persons, where the data subject is physically or legally incapable of giving consent;

(g) the transfer is made from a register which according to Union or Member State law is intended to provide information to the public and which is open to consultation either by the public in general or by any person who can demonstrate a legitimate interest, but only to the extent that the conditions laid down by Union or Member State law for consultation are fulfilled in the particular case.

Where a transfer could not be based on a provision in Article 45 or 46, including the provisions on binding corporate rules, and none of the derogations for a specific situation referred to in the first subparagraph of this paragraph is applicable, a transfer to a third country or an international organisation may take place only if the transfer is not repetitive, concerns only a limited number of data subjects, is necessary for the purposes of compelling legitimate interests pursued by the controller which are not overridden by the interests or rights and freedoms of the data subject, and the controller has assessed all the circumstances surrounding the data transfer and has on the basis of that assessment provided suitable safeguards with regard to the protection of personal data. The controller shall inform the supervisory authority of the transfer. The controller shall, in addition to providing the information referred to in Articles 13 and 14, inform the data subject of the transfer and on the compelling legitimate interests pursued.

2. A transfer pursuant to point (g) of the first subparagraph of paragraph 1 shall not involve the entirety of the personal data or entire categories of the personal data contained in the register. Where the register is intended for consultation by persons having a legitimate interest, the transfer shall be made only at the request of those persons or if they are to be the recipients.

3. Points (a), (b) and (c) of the first subparagraph of paragraph 1 and the second subparagraph thereof shall not apply to activities carried out by public authorities in the exercise of their public powers.

4. The public interest referred to in point (d) of the first subparagraph of paragraph 1 shall be recognised in Union law or in the law of the Member State to which the controller is subject.

5. In the absence of an adequacy decision, Union or Member State law may, for important reasons of public interest, expressly set limits to the transfer of specific categories of personal data to a third country or an international organisation. Member States shall notify such provisions to the Commission.

6. The controller or processor shall document the assessment as well as the suitable safeguards referred to in the second subparagraph of paragraph 1 of this Article in the records referred to in Article 30.

Article 51

4. Each Member State shall ensure that each supervisory authority is provided with the human, technical and financial resources, premises and infrastructure necessary for the effective performance of its tasks and exercise of its powers, including those to be carried out in the context of mutual assistance, cooperation and participation in the Board.

5. Each Member State shall ensure that each supervisory authority chooses and has its own staff which shall be subject to the exclusive direction of the member or members of the supervisory authority concerned.

6. Each Member State shall ensure that each supervisory authority is subject to financial control which does not affect its independence and that it has separate, public annual budgets, which may be part of the overall state or national budget.

Article 53

1. Member States shall provide for each member of their supervisory authorities to be appointed by means of a transparent procedure by:

(e) whether and, if so, for how many terms the member or members of each supervisory authority is eligible for reappointment;

(f) the conditions governing the obligations of the member or members and staff of each supervisory authority, prohibitions on actions, occupations and benefits incompatible therewith during and after the term of office and rules governing the cessation of employment.

2. The member or members and the staff of each supervisory authority shall, in accordance with Union or Member State law, be subject to a duty of professional secrecy both during and after their term of office, with regard to any confidential information which has come to their knowledge in the course of the performance of their tasks or exercise of their powers. 4. Where any of the other supervisory authorities concerned within a period of four weeks after having been consulted in accordance with paragraph 3 of this Article, expresses a relevant and reasoned objection to the draft decision, the lead supervisory authority shall, if it does not follow the relevant and reasoned objection or is of the opinion that the objection is not relevant or reasoned, submit the matter to the consistency mechanism referred to in Article 63.

5. Where the lead supervisory authority intends to follow the relevant and reasoned objection made, it shall submit to the other supervisory authorities concerned a revised draft decision for their opinion. That revised draft decision shall be subject to the procedure referred to in paragraph 4 within a period of two weeks.

6. 3. If a controller or processor intentionally or negligently, for the same or linked processing operations, infringes several provisions of this Regulation, the total amount of the administrative fine shall not exceed the amount specified for the gravest infringement.

4. Infringements of the following provisions shall, in accordance with paragraph 2, be subject to administrative fines up to 10 000 000 EUR, or in the case of an undertaking, up to 2 % of the total worldwide annual turnover of the preceding financial year, whichever is higher:

(b) the obligations of the certification body pursuant to Articles 42 and 43;

(c) the obligations of the monitoring body pursuant to Article 41(4).

5. Infringements of the following provisions shall, in accordance with paragraph 2, be subject to administrative fines up to 20 000 000 EUR, or in the case of an undertaking, up to 4 % of the total worldwide annual turnover of the preceding financial year, whichever is higher:

(a) the basic principles for processing, including conditions for consent, pursuant to Articles 5, 6, 7 and 9;

(b) the data subjects' rights pursuant to Articles 12 to 22;

(c) the transfers of personal data to a recipient in a third country or an international organisation pursuant to Articles 44 to 49;

(d) any obligations pursuant to Member State law adopted under Chapter IX;

(e) non-compliance with an order or a temporary or definitive limitation on processing or the suspension of data flows by the supervisory authority pursuant to Article 58(2) or failure to provide access in violation of Article 58(1).

6. Non-compliance with an order by the supervisory authority as referred to in Article 58(2) shall, in accordance with paragraph 2 of this Article, be subject to administrative fines up to 20 000 000 EUR, or in the case of an undertaking, up to 4 % of the total worldwide annual turnover of the preceding financial year, whichever is higher.

7. Without prejudice to the corrective powers of supervisory authorities pursuant to Article 58(2), each Member State may lay down the rules on whether and to what extent administrative fines may be imposed on public authorities and bodies established in that Member State.

8. The exercise by the supervisory authority of its powers under this Article shall be subject to appropriate procedural safeguards in accordance with Union and Member State law, including effective judicial remedy and due process.

9. Where the legal system of the Member State does not provide for administrative fines, this Article may be applied in such a manner that the fine is initiated by the competent supervisory authority and imposed by competent national courts, while ensuring that those legal remedies are effective and have an equivalent effect to the administrative fines imposed by supervisory authorities. In any event, the fines imposed shall be effective, proportionate and dissuasive. Those Member States shall notify to the Commission the provisions of their laws which they adopt pursuant to this paragraph by 25 May 2018 and, without delay, any subsequent amendment law or amendment affecting them.

Penalties

1. Member States shall lay down the rules on other penalties applicable to infringements of this Regulation in particular for infringements which are not subject to administrative fines pursuant to Article 83, and shall take all measures necessary to ensure that they are implemented. Such penalties shall be effective, proportionate and dissuasive.

2. Each Member State shall notify to the Commission the provisions of its law which it adopts pursuant to paragraph 1, by 25 May 2018 and, without delay, any subsequent amendment affecting them.

CHAPTER IX

Provisions relating to specific processing situations

Article 85

Processing and freedom of expression and information

1. Member States shall by law reconcile the right to the protection of personal data pursuant to this Regulation with the right to freedom of expression and information, including processing for journalistic purposes and the purposes of academic, artistic or literary expression.

2. For processing carried out for journalistic purposes or the purpose of academic artistic or literary expression, Member States shall provide for exemptions or derogations from Chapter II (principles), Chapter III (rights of the data subject), Chapter IV (controller and processor), Chapter V (transfer of personal data to third countries or international organisations), Chapter VI (independent supervisory authorities), Chapter VII (cooperation and consistency) and Chapter IX (specific data processing situations) if they are necessary to reconcile the right to the protection of personal data with the freedom of expression and information.

3. Each Member State shall notify to the Commission the provisions of its law which it has adopted pursuant to paragraph 2 and, without delay, any subsequent amendment law or amendment affecting them.

Article 86

Processing and public access to official documents

Personal data in official documents held by a public authority or a public body or a private body for the performance of a task carried out in the public interest may be disclosed by the authority or body in accordance with Union or Member State law to which the public authority or body is subject in order to reconcile public access to official documents with the right to the protection of personal data pursuant to this Regulation.

Article 87

Processing of the national identification number

Member States may further determine the specific conditions for the processing of a national identification number or any other identifier of general application. In that case the national identification number or any other identifier of general application shall be used only under appropriate safeguards for the rights and freedoms of the data subject pursuant to this Regulation.

Article 88

Processing in the context of employment

1. Member States may, by law or by collective agreements, provide for more specific rules to ensure the protection of the rights and freedoms in respect of the processing of employees' personal data in the employment context, in particular for the purposes of the recruitment, the performance of the contract of employment, including discharge of obligations laid down by law or by collective agreements, management, planning and organisation of work, equality and diversity in the workplace, health and safety at work, protection of employer's or customer's property and for the purposes of the exercise and enjoyment, on an individual or collective basis, of rights and benefits related to employment, and for the purpose of the termination of the employment relationship.

2. Those rules shall include suitable and specific measures to safeguard the data subject's human dignity, legitimate interests and fundamental rights, with particular regard to the transparency of processing, the transfer of personal data within a group of undertakings, or a group of enterprises engaged in a joint economic activity and monitoring systems at the work place.

3. Each Member State shall notify to the Commission those provisions of its law which it adopts pursuant to paragraph 1, by 25 May 2018 and, without delay, any subsequent amendment affecting them.

Article 89

Safeguards and derogations relating to processing for archiving purposes in the public interest, scientific or historical research purposes or statistical purposes

1. Processing for archiving purposes in the public interest, scientific or historical research purposes or statistical purposes, shall be subject to appropriate safeguards, in accordance with this Regulation, for the rights and freedoms of the data subject. Those safeguards shall ensure that technical and organisational measures are in place in particular in order to ensure respect for the principle of data minimisation. Those measures may include pseudonymisation provided that those purposes can be fulfilled in that manner. Where those purposes can be fulfilled by further processing which does not permit or no longer permits the identification of data subjects, those purposes shall be fulfilled in that manner.

2. Where personal data are processed for scientific or historical research purposes or statistical purposes, Union or Member State law may provide for derogations from the rights referred to in Articles 15, 16, 18 and 21 subject to the conditions and safeguards referred to in paragraph 1 of this Article in so far as such rights are likely to render impossible or seriously impair the achievement of the specific purposes, and such derogations are necessary for the fulfilment of those purposes.

3. Where personal data are processed for archiving purposes in the public interest, Union or Member State law may provide for derogations from the rights referred to in Articles 15, 16, 18, 19, 20 and 21 subject to the conditions and safeguards referred to in paragraph 1 of this Article in so far as such rights are likely to render impossible or seriously impair the achievement of the specific purposes, and such derogations are necessary for the fulfilment of those purposes.

4. Where processing referred to in paragraphs 2 and 3 serves at the same time another purpose, the derogations shall apply only to processing for the purposes referred to in those paragraphs.

Article 90

Obligations of secrecy

1. Member States may adopt specific rules to set out the powers of the supervisory authorities laid down in points (e) and (f) of Article 58(1) in relation to controllers or processors that are subject, under Union or Member State law or rules established by national competent bodies, to an obligation of professional secrecy or other equivalent obligations of secrecy where this is necessary and proportionate to reconcile the right of the protection of personal data with the obligation of secrecy. Those rules shall apply only with regard to personal data which the controller or processor has received as a result of or has obtained in an activity covered by that obligation of secrecy.

2. Each Member State shall notify to the Commission the rules adopted pursuant to paragraph 1, by 25 May 2018 and, without delay, any subsequent amendment affecting them.

Article 91

Existing data protection rules of churches and religious associations

1. Where in a Member State, churches and religious associations or communities apply, at the time of entry into force of this Regulation, comprehensive rules relating to the protection of natural persons with regard to processing, such rules may continue to apply, provided that they are brought into line with this Regulation.

2. Churches and religious associations which apply comprehensive rules in accordance with paragraph 1 of this Article shall be subject to the supervision of an independent supervisory authority, which may be specific, provided that it fulfils the conditions laid down in Chapter VI of this Regulation.

3. The delegation of power referred to in Article 12(8) and Article 43(8) may be revoked at any time by the European Parliament or by the Council. A decision of revocation shall put an end to the delegation of power specified in that decision. It shall take effect the day following that of its publication in the Official Journal of the European Union or at a later date specified therein. It shall not affect the validity of any delegated acts already in force.

4. As soon as it adopts a delegated act, the Commission shall notify it simultaneously to the European Parliament and to the Council.

5. A delegated act adopted pursuant to Article 12(8) and Article 43(8) shall enter into force only if no objection has been expressed by either the European Parliament or the Council within a period of three months of notification of that act to the European Parliament and the Council or if, before the expiry of that period, the European Parliament and the Council have both informed the Commission that they will not object. That period shall be extended by three months at the initiative of the European Parliament or of the Council.

Article 93

Committee procedure

1. The Commission shall be assisted by a committee. That committee shall be a committee within the meaning of Regulation (EU) No 182/2011.

2. Where reference is made to this paragraph, Article 5 of Regulation (EU) No 182/2011 shall apply.

3. Where reference is made to this paragraph, Article 8 of Regulation (EU) No 182/2011, in conjunction with Article 5 thereof, shall apply.

Article 98

Review of other Union legal acts on data protection

The Commission shall, if appropriate, submit legislative proposals with a view to amending other Union legal acts on the protection of personal data, in order to ensure uniform and consistent protection of natural persons with regard to processing. Ziele

§ 1. Die Universitäten sind berufen, der wissenschaftlichen Forschung und Lehre, der Entwicklung und der Erschließung der Künste sowie der Lehre der Kunst zu dienen und hiedurch auch verantwortlich zur Lösung der Probleme des Menschen sowie zur gedeihlichen Entwicklung der Gesellschaft und der natürlichen Umwelt beizutragen. Universitäten sind Bildungseinrichtungen des öffentlichen Rechts, die in Forschung und in forschungsgeleiteter akademischer Lehre auf die Hervorbringung neuer wissenschaftlicher Erkenntnisse sowie auf die Erschließung neuer Zugänge zu den Künsten ausgerichtet sind. Um den sich ständig wandelnden Erfordernissen organisatorisch, studien- und personalrechtlich Rechnung zu tragen, konstituieren sich die Universitäten und ihre Organe in größtmöglicher Autonomie und Selbstverwaltung.

Leitende Grundsätze

(4) The senate shall be entitled, on the basis of the student-teacher ratio, to determine the point at which study conditions in a programme of study would become unacceptable if additional foreign nationals or stateless persons in the meaning of para 3 subpara 3 were admitted. In such cases, the senate shall determine how many such persons may be admitted per semester without giving rise to unacceptable study conditions, and establish criteria for any limits to admission numbers. It is permissible to accord preferential treatment to applicants from developing countries. Such enactments shall be published in the university gazette.

(5) Bei Nachweis der allgemeinen und der besonderen Universitätsreife sind ohne Berücksichtigung allfälliger Beschlüsse gemäß Abs. 4 befristet zuzulassen:

Eine Verlängerung der jeweiligen Befristung ist unzulässig.

(7) Nach dem Erlöschen der Zulassung wegen der negativen Beurteilung bei der letzten zulässigen Wiederholung einer Prüfung ist die neuerliche Zulassung an der Universität oder bei gemeinsam eingerichteten Studien an den beteiligten Bildungseinrichtungen für jene Studien, bei denen die Absolvierung derselben Prüfung verpflichtend vorgesehen ist, nicht zulässig. Beim Lehramtsstudium Sekundarstufe (Allgemeinbildung) ist davon abweichend eine neuerliche Zulassung zum Studium ausschließlich für jene Unterrichtsfächer oder Spezialisierungen zulässig, bei denen die Absolvierung derselben Prüfung nicht verpflichtend vorgesehen ist. Erlischt bei einem Lehramtsstudium die Zulassung aufgrund des § 68 Abs. 1 Z 7, ist eine neuerliche Zulassung zu einem Lehramtsstudium nicht zulässig. Erlischt bei einem Studium die Zulassung aufgrund des § 68 Abs. 1 Z 8, ist eine neuerliche Zulassung zu einem Studium nur möglich, wenn eine Gefährdung nicht mehr festgestellt werden kann. Erlischt bei einem Studium die Zulassung aufgrund des § 68 Abs. 1 Z 2a, ist eine neuerliche Zulassung zu diesem Studium an derselben Universität oder bei gemeinsam eingerichteten Studien an denselben beteiligten Bildungseinrichtungen erst nach Ablauf von zwei Studienjahren zulässig.

(5) The following shall be granted temporary admission upon furnishing proof of possession of a general and a special university entrance qualification, regardless of any enactments under para 4:

1. persons participating in university mobility programmes, including joint programmes, for the duration of authorised participation therein,
2. persons wishing only to make use of distance learning course offerings based on co-operation agreements, for a maximum of two semesters;
3. foreign nationals and stateless persons in the meaning of para 3 subpara 3 seeking admission to study programmes in Austria on successful completion of studies abroad equivalent to the first diploma examination of the diploma programme selected or a bachelor's degree, for a maximum of two semesters.

Extension of these limited terms is impermissible.

(6) Temporary admission under para 5 subparas 1 and 2 shall be conditional on the existence of a co-operation agreement between the universities concerned governing the detailed arrangements for co-operation, student exchange and programme implementation. Nomination by the partner educational institution shall be deemed equivalent to proof of possession of a general and a special university entrance qualification.

(7) Upon expiry of an admission due to failure of the last permissible repetition of an examination, renewed admission to the university or, in the case of jointly offered study programmes, to the universities involved shall be excluded for those study programmes which require the completion of the same examination. In derogation thereof, a renewed admission to the teacher training programme for secondary schools (general education) is permitted only for those subjects or specialisations which do not require the successful completion of the same examination. If the admission to a teacher training programme expires on the basis of § 68 para 1 subpara 7, renewed admission to a teacher training programme shall be excluded. If the admission to a study programme expires on the basis of § 68 para 1 subpara 8, renewed admission to a study programme is only possible if the threat can no longer be detected. If the admission to a study programme expires on the basis of § 68 para 1 subpara 2a, renewed admission to this study programme at the same university or in the case of a jointly offered study programme at the same educational institutions involved is possible only after two academic years have passed.

(8) Die gleichzeitige Zulassung für dasselbe Studium an mehr als einer Universität oder Pädagogischen Hochschule in Österreich ist unzulässig. Weitere Zulassungen für dasselbe Studium an anderen Universitäten oder Pädagogischen Hochschulen leiden im Sinne des § 68 Abs. 4 Z 4 AVG an einem mit Nichtigkeit bedrohten Fehler und sind vom Rektorat von Amts wegen für nichtig zu erklären. Beim Lehramtsstudium Sekundarstufe (Allgemeinbildung) liegt dasselbe Studium vor, wenn ein Unterrichtsfach oder eine Spezialisierung ident ist.

1. das Curriculum oder das Curriculum eines gemeinsam mit einer anderen Universität oder Pädagogischen Hochschule eingerichteten Studiums dies vorsieht oder

(10b) Die Ergänzungsprüfung für den Nachweis der Kenntnis der deutschen Sprache ist im Rahmen des Besuches eines dafür eingerichteten Universitätslehrganges abzulegen. Die Vorschreibung dieser Ergänzungsprüfung setzt Kenntnisse der deutschen Sprache im Zeitpunkt der Antragstellung für das Studium zumindest im Ausmaß des Niveaus A2 des Gemeinsamen Europäischen Referenzrahmens für Sprachen (GeR) des Europarats voraus. Als Nachweis über

(8) Simultaneous admission to the same studies at more than one university or university college of teacher education in Austria is impermissible. Additional admissions to the same studies at other universities or university colleges of teacher education risk nullity due to a defect in the meaning of § 68 para 4 subpara 4 General Administrative Procedure Act and shall be declared null and void by the rectorate, acting ex officio. In teacher training programmes for secondary schools (general education) the same study shall be assumed if a subject or a specialization is identical.

(9) Taking examinations for a programme of study at a university or university college of teacher education other than that to which a student has been admitted is only permissible if:

1. the home curriculum, or the curriculum of a programme of study offered jointly with another university or university college of teacher education makes provisions therefore; or
2. the officer responsible for study matters approves sitting of the examination at the other university or university college of teacher education because it cannot be taken at the university or, in the case of jointly offered degree programmes, the universities university colleges of teacher education in question.

(10) Persons whose first language is not the language in which the study programme is held shall provide proof of their knowledge of the language as required for the successful continuation of studies, in particular by submitting a secondary school leaving certificate obtained as a result of tuition received in the required language. The rectorate may, by decree, determine further documentary evidence for the required language proficiency.

(10a) In case that proof of knowledge of the German language cannot be furnished, the rectorate shall prescribe a supplementary examination to be taken prior to admission. In artistic study programmes the supplementary examination does not have to be taken prior to admission if other arrangements according to para 11 have been laid down in the curriculum.

(10b) The supplementary examination providing proof of the knowledge of the German language shall be part of a certificate university programme set up for this purpose. This supplementary examination prescribed by the curriculum requires an A2 level in the German language according to the Common European Framework of Reference for Languages (CEFRL) of the Council of Europe at the time of submission of the application for the study programme. Generally recognised diese Kenntnisse der deutschen Sprache gelten allgemein anerkannte Sprachdiplome, die durch Verordnung des Rektorates festzulegen sind. Aus dem Sprachdiplom muss hervorgehen, dass die Inhaberin oder der Inhaber über Kenntnisse der deutschen Sprache zumindest auf Niveau A2 des Gemeinsamen Europäischen Referenzrahmens für Sprachen verfügt. Das Sprachdiplom darf zum Zeitpunkt der Vorlage nicht älter als zwei Jahre sein. Diese Regelung gilt nicht für künstlerische Studien, wenn durch Verordnung des Rektorats die Durchführung der Ergänzungsprüfung für den Nachweis der Kenntnis der deutschen Sprache in abweichender Form festgelegt worden ist.

(2) Es ist sicherzustellen, dass die Absolvierung eines Bachelorstudiums an der jeweiligen Universität jedenfalls ohne weitere Voraussetzungen zur Zulassung zu mindestens einem fachlich in Frage kommenden Masterstudium an der Universität oder bei gemeinsam eingerichteten Studien an einer der beteiligten Bildungseinrichtungen berechtigt. Dies gilt auch für Masterstudien gemäß Abs. 8, nicht jedoch für Masterstudien an den Universitäten gemäß § 6 Abs. 1 Z 16 bis 21, für die jedenfalls auch die künstlerische Eignung gemäß § 63 Abs. 1 Z 4 nachzuweisen ist.

(3) Die Zulassung zu einem Masterstudium für das Lehramt Sekundarstufe (Allgemeinbildung) setzt zusätzlich zu § 63 Abs. 1a den Abschluss eines Bachelorstudiums für das Lehramt Sekundarstufe (Allgemeinbildung) gemäß Punkt 2.1 der Anlage zum HS-QSG oder eines facheinschlägigen ausländischen Studiums voraus. Bei einer Zulassung zu einem Masterstudium für das Lehramt Sekundarstufe (Allgemeinbildung) können auch Unterrichtsfächer oder Spezialisierungen gewählt werden, die in Form von Erweiterungsstudien ergänzend zum Bachelorstudium Lehramt absolviert worden sind. Zum Ausgleich wesentlicher fachlicher Unterschiede können Ergänzungsprüfungen vorgeschrieben werden, die während des Masterstudiums abzulegen sind. Das Rektorat kann festlegen, welche language diplomas, to be specified by decree by the rectorate, shall be regarded as proof of the knowledge of the German language. The language diploma must clearly certify the holder's knowledge of the German language at least at an A2 language level according to the Common European Framework of Reference for Languages. The language diploma must not be older than two years at the time of submission. This regulation shall not apply to artistic study programmes if the rectorate has, by decree, specified another form for the supplementary examination as a proof for the knowledge of the German language.

(11) The curricula of artistic study programmes may require proof that supplementary examinations have been taken prior to registration for the continuation of studies in the third semester, at the latest.

Special Provision relating to the Admission to Master's and Doctoral Programmes

§ 63a. (1) The curricula for master's programmes may prescribe qualitative admission requirements which must be related to the required knowledge of those subjects on which the respective master's programme is based.

(2) In any case, it must be ensured that the completion of a bachelor's programme at the respective university entitles the student, without further requirements, to be admitted to at least one related master's programme at the university or, in jointly offered programmes, at one of the educational institutions involved. This shall also apply to master's programmes according to para 8, not however to master’s programmes at universities according to § 6 para 1 subparas 16 to 21 for which proof of artistic aptitude according to § 63 para 1 subpara 4 must be submitted.

(3) In addition to § 63 para 1a, admission to a master's programme for teaching at secondary schools (general education) requires the completion of a bachelor's programme for teaching at secondary schools (general education) according to item 2.1 of the Appendix to the Act on Quality Assurance in Higher Education or of a relevant foreign study programme. Upon admission to a master's programme for teaching at secondary schools (general education), it is possible to choose subjects or specialisations which have been completed in addition to the bachelor's programme for teacher training in the form of extension programmes. To compensate for substantial differences, it may be specified that supplementary examinations have to be taken during the master's programme. The rectorate shall be entitled to lay down dieser Ergänzungsprüfungen Voraussetzung für die Ablegung von im Curriculum des Masterstudiums vorgesehenen Prüfungen sind. Dies gilt auch für den Abschluss eines facheinschlägigen sechssemestrigen Lehramtsstudiums an Pädagogischen Hochschulen, das gemäß den Regelungen dieses Bundesgesetzes in der Fassung vor der Novelle BGBl. I Nr. 124/2013 absolviert wurde.

(7) Für die Zulassung zu einem Doktoratsstudium können im Curriculum qualitative Zulassungsbedingungen vorgeschrieben werden.

(7a) In den Curricula für kombinierte Master- und Doktoratsstudien sind qualitative Zulassungsbedingungen vorzuschreiben, die den spezifischen Forschungscharakter dieses Studiums berücksichtigen.

(9) § 71b Abs. 7 ist mit Ausnahme der Z 4 anzuwenden.

Allgemeine Universitätsreife (Universitätszugang)

§ 64. (1) Die allgemeine Universitätsreife ist durch eine der folgenden Urkunden nachzuweisen:

which of these supplementary examinations are prerequisites for sitting examinations which are prescribed in the curriculum of the master's programme.

(4) Notwithstanding § 63 para 1a, admission to a master's programme for teaching at secondary schools (general education) for graduates of six-semester programmes for teacher training requires the completion of an extension programme according to § 54c.

(5) Notwithstanding § 63 para 1a, admission to a master's programme for teaching at secondary schools (general education) for graduates of a programme for teaching at primary schools requires the completion of the bachelor's and master's programme for teaching at primary schools according to item 1 of the Appendix to the Act on Quality Assurance in Higher Education.

(7) The curriculum may stipulate qualitative admission requirements for the admission to a doctoral programme.

(7a) The curricula for combined master's and doctoral programmes shall include qualitative admission requirements, taking into account the specific research character of this study programme.

(8) For master's and doctoral programmes which are offered exclusively in a foreign language, the rectorate shall be entitled to determine a number of first-year students and to limit admission either by means of an admission procedure prior to admission or by a selecting procedure after admission. Before the rectorate determines the admission or selection procedure, the senate shall have the opportunity to give its opinion within six weeks. The rectorate's decision shall be taken by 30 April at the latest in order to become effective in the following academic year.

1. die Qualifikation im Ausstellungsstaat Zugang zu allen Sektoren von Hochschulen vermittelt,
2. die Dauer der Schulzeit mindestens zwölf Jahre beträgt und
3. allgemeinbildende Ausbildungsinhalte überwiegen, was durch die Absolvierung von sechs allgemeinbildenden Unterrichtsfächern (zwei Sprachen, Mathematik, ein naturwissenschaftliches, ein geisteswissenschaftliches sowie ein weiteres allgemeinbildendes Unterrichtsfach) in der Sekundarstufe II nachgewiesen wird.

Beträgt die Schulzeit gemäß Z 2 nur elf Jahre oder fehlen Ausbildungsinhalte gemäß Z 3, kann das Rektorat insgesamt bis zu vier Ergänzungsprüfungen vorschreiben, die vor der Zulassung abzulegen sind.

Fundamental right to data protection

§ 1. (1) Every person shall have the right to secrecy of the personal data concerning that person, especially with regard to the respect for his or her private and family life, insofar as that person has an interest which deserves such protection. Such an interest is precluded if data cannot be subject to the right to secrecy due to the data's general availability or because they cannot be traced back to the data subject.

(2) Insofar as personal data are not used in the vital interest of the data subject or with the data subject's consent, restrictions of the right to secrecy are permitted sind Beschränkungen des Anspruchs auf Geheimhaltung nur zur Wahrung überwiegender berechtigter Interessen eines anderen zulässig, und zwar bei Eingriffen einer staatlichen Behörde nur auf Grund von Gesetzen, die aus den in Art. 8 Abs. 2 der Europäischen Konvention zum Schutze der Menschenrechte und Grundfreiheiten (EMRK), BGBl. Nr. 210/1958, genannten Gründen notwendig sind. Derartige Gesetze dürfen die Verwendung von Daten, die ihrer Art nach besonders schutzwürdig sind, nur zur Wahrung wichtiger öffentlicher Interessen vorsehen und müssen gleichzeitig angemessene Garantien für den Schutz der Geheimhaltungsinteressen der Betroffenen festlegen. Auch im Falle zulässiger Beschränkungen darf der Eingriff in das Grundrecht jeweils nur in der gelindesten, zum Ziel führenden Art vorgenommen werden.

2. das Recht auf Richtigstellung unrichtiger Daten und das Recht auf Löschung unzulässigerweise verarbeiteter Daten.

(4) Beschränkungen der Rechte nach Abs. 3 sind nur unter den in Abs. 2 genannten Voraussetzungen zulässig.

Datenschutzbeauftragter

(2) Erhält ein Datenschutzbeauftragter bei seiner Tätigkeit Kenntnis von Daten, für die einer der Kontrolle des Datenschutzbeauftragten unterliegenden Stelle beschäftigten Person ein gesetzliches Aussageverweigerungsrecht zusteht, steht dieses Recht auch dem Datenschutzbeauftragten und den für ihn tätigen Personen insoweit zu, als die Person, der das gesetzliche Aussageverweigerungsrecht zusteht, davon Gebrauch gemacht hat. Im Umfang des Aussageverweigerungsrechts des Datenschutzbeauftragten unterliegen seine Akten und andere Schriftstücke einem Sicherstellungs- und Beschlagnahmeverbot.

(3) Der Datenschutzbeauftragte im öffentlichen Bereich (in Formen des öffentlichen Rechts eingerichtet, insbesondere auch als Organ einer Gebietskörperschaft) ist bezüglich der Ausübung seiner Aufgaben weisungsfrei. Data protection officer

§ 5. (1) Without prejudice to other obligations of confidentiality, the data protection officer and the persons working for the data protection officer shall be bound by confidentiality when fulfilling their duties. This shall apply in particular in relation to the identity of data subjects who applied to the data protection officer, and to circumstances that allow identification of these persons, unless the data subject has expressly granted a release from confidentiality. The data protection officer and the persons working for the data protection officer may exclusively use information made available to fulfil their duties and shall be bound by confidentiality even after the end of their activities.

(2) If, during his or her activities, a data protection officer obtains knowledge of data in respect of which a person employed with a body subject to the supervision of the data protection officer has a statutory right to refuse to give evidence, the data protection officer and the persons working for the data protection officers shall also have such a right to the extent to which the person who has the right to refuse to give evidence exercised that right. The files and other documents of the data protection officer are subject to a prohibition of seizure and confiscation to the extent of the right of the data protection officer to refuse to give evidence.

(3) Public-sector data protection officers (established in a form provided by public law, in particular also as an officer of a territorial authority) are not bound by any instructions when exercising their duties. The highest governing bodies or officers have the right to obtain information on matters to be dealt with from a public-sector data protection officer. The data protection officer shall provide information only insofar as the independence of the data protection officer as described in Article 38 para. 3 of the General Data Protection Regulation is not impaired by doing so.

(5) Die Datenschutzbeauftragten im öffentlichen Bereich gemäß Abs. 4 pflegen einen regelmäßigen Erfahrungsaustausch, insbesondere im Hinblick auf die Gewährleistung eines einheitlichen Datenschutzstandards.

(2) Mitarbeiter dürfen personenbezogene Daten nur auf Grund einer ausdrücklichen Anordnung ihres Arbeitgebers (Dienstgebers) übermitteln. Der Verantwortliche und der Auftragsverarbeiter haben, sofern eine solche Verpflichtung ihrer Mitarbeiter nicht schon kraft Gesetzes besteht, diese vertraglich zu verpflichten, personenbezogene Daten aus Datenverarbeitungen nur aufgrund von Anordnungen zu übermitteln und das Datengeheimnis auch nach Beendigung des Arbeitsverhältnisses (Dienstverhältnisses) zum Verantwortlichen oder Auftragsverarbeiter einzuhalten.

(3) Der Verantwortliche und der Auftragsverarbeiter haben die von der Anordnung betroffenen Mitarbeiter über die für sie geltenden Übermittlungsanordnungen und über die Folgen einer Verletzung des Datengeheimnisses zu belehren.

(4) Unbeschadet des verfassungsrechtlichen Weisungsrechts darf einem Mitarbeiter aus der Verweigerung der Befolgung einer Anordnung zur unzulässigen Datenübermittlung kein Nachteil erwachsen.

(4) Considering the type and scope of data processing activities and depending on the facilities of a federal ministry, one or several data protection officers shall be appointed in the sphere of responsibilities of each federal ministry. These data protection officers shall be employed by the relevant federal ministry or the relevant subordinate office or other entity.

(5) Public-sector data protection officers pursuant to para. 4 shall regularly exchange information, in particular with regard to ensuring uniform data protection standards.

Confidentiality of data

§ 6. (1) The controller, the processor and their employees, i.e. employees and persons in a quasi-employee relationship, shall ensure the confidentiality of personal data from data processing activities that have been entrusted or have become accessible to them solely due to their employment, without prejudice to other statutory obligations of confidentiality, unless a legitimate reason for the transmission of the data that have been entrusted or have become accessible to them exists (confidentiality of data).

(2) Employees may transmit personal data only if expressly ordered to do so by their employer. Unless such an obligation of their employees already exists by law, the controller and the processor shall contractually bind their employees to transmit personal data from data processing activities only on the basis of orders and to maintain the confidentiality of data even after the end of their employment with the controller or processor.

(3) The controller and the processor shall inform the employees affected by these orders about the transmission orders applicable to them and about the consequences of a violation of data confidentiality.

(4) Without prejudice to the right to give instructions under constitutional law, an employee must not incur any disadvantage from refusing to comply with an order for a prohibited transmission of data.

2. Abschnitt
Datenverarbeitungen zu spezifischen Zwecken

Verarbeitung für im öffentlichen Interesse liegende Archivzwecke, wissenschaftliche oder historische Forschungszwecke oder statistische Zwecke

§ 7. (1) Für im öffentlichen Interesse liegende Archivzwecke, wissenschaftliche oder historische Forschungszwecke oder statistische Zwecke, die keine personenbezogenen Ergebnisse zum Ziel haben, darf der Verantwortliche alle personenbezogenen Daten verarbeiten, die

1. öffentlich zugänglich sind,
2. er für andere Untersuchungen oder auch andere Zwecke zulässigerweise ermittelt hat oder
3. für ihn pseudonymisierte personenbezogene Daten sind und der Verantwortliche die Identität der betroffenen Person mit rechtlich zulässigen Mitteln nicht bestimmen kann.

(2) Bei Datenverarbeitungen für im öffentlichen Interesse liegende Archivzwecke, wissenschaftliche oder historische Forschungszwecke oder statistische Zwecke, die nicht unter Abs. 1 fallen, dürfen personenbezogene Daten nur

1. gemäß besonderen gesetzlichen Vorschriften,
2. mit Einwilligung der betroffenen Person oder
3. mit Genehmigung der Datenschutzbehörde gemäß Abs. 3

verarbeitet werden.

(3) Eine Genehmigung der Datenschutzbehörde für die Verarbeitung von personenbezogenen Daten für im öffentlichen Interesse liegende Archivzwecke, wissenschaftliche oder historische Forschungszwecke oder statistische Zwecke ist auf Antrag des Verantwortlichen der Untersuchung zu erteilen, wenn

(5) The statutory right of a controller to refuse to give evidence shall not be avoided by questioning a processor working for the controller, and in particular not by seizing or confiscating documents processed by automated means.

Part 2
Data processing for specific purposes

Processing for archiving purposes in the public interest, scientific or historical research purposes or statistical purposes

§ 7. (1) For archiving purposes in the public interest, scientific or historical research purposes or statistical purposes whose goal is not to obtain results in a form relating to specific data subjects, the controller may process all personal data that

1. are publicly accessible,
2. the controller has lawfully collected for other research projects or other purposes, or
3. are pseudonymised personal data for the controller, and the controller cannot establish the identity of the data subject by legal means.

(2) In the case of processing for archiving purposes in the public interest, scientific or historical research purposes or statistical purposes that do not fall under para. 1, personal data may be processed only

1. pursuant to specific legal provisions,
2. with the consent of the data subject, or
3. with a permit of the Data Protection Authority pursuant to para. 3.

(3) A permit of the Data Protection Authority for the processing of personal data for archiving purposes in the public interest, scientific or historical research purposes or statistical purposes shall be granted at the request of the controller ordering the research project, if

1. die Einholung der Einwilligung der betroffenen Person mangels ihrer Erreichbarkeit unmöglich ist oder sonst einen unverhältnismäßigen Aufwand bedeutet,
2. ein öffentliches Interesse an der beantragten Verarbeitung besteht und
3. die fachliche Eignung des Verantwortlichen glaubhaft gemacht wird.

Sollen besondere Kategorien personenbezogener Daten (Art. 9 DSGVO) ermittelt werden, muss ein wichtiges öffentliches Interesse an der Untersuchung vorliegen; weiters muss gewährleistet sein, dass die personenbezogenen Daten beim Verantwortlichen der Untersuchung nur von Personen verarbeitet werden, die hinsichtlich des Gegenstandes der Untersuchung einer gesetzlichen Verschwiegenheitspflicht unterliegen oder deren diesbezügliche Verlässlichkeit sonst glaubhaft ist. Die Datenschutzbehörde hat die Genehmigung an die Erfüllung von Bedingungen und Auflagen zu knüpfen, soweit dies zur Wahrung der schutzwürdigen Interessen der betroffenen Person notwendig ist.

(4) Einem Antrag nach Abs. 3 ist jedenfalls eine vom Verfügungsbefugten über die Datenbestände, aus denen die personenbezogenen Daten ermittelt werden sollen, unterfertigte Erklärung anzuschließen, dass er dem Verantwortlichen die Datenbestände für die Untersuchung zur Verfügung stellt. Anstelle dieser Erklärung kann auch ein diese Erklärung ersetzender Exekutionstitel (§ 367 Abs. 1 der Exekutionsordnung – EO, RGBl. Nr. 79/1896) vorgelegt werden.

(6) Rechtliche Beschränkungen der Zulässigkeit der Benützung von personenbezogenen Daten aus anderen, insbesondere urheberrechtlichen Gründen, bleiben unberührt.

1. the consent of the data subject is impossible to obtain because the data subject cannot be reached or the effort would otherwise be unreasonable,
2. there is a public interest in the processing for which a permit is sought, and
3. the professional aptitude of the controller has been satisfactorily demonstrated.

If special categories of personal data (Article 9 of the General Data Protection Regulation) are to be collected, an important public interest in the research project must exist; furthermore, it must be ensured that the personal data are processed at the premises of the controller ordering the research project only by persons who are subject to a statutory obligation of confidentiality regarding the subject matter of the research project or whose reliability in this respect is credible. The Data Protection Authority shall issue the permit subject to terms and conditions, insofar as this is necessary to safeguard the data subjects' interests which deserve protection.

(4) A request according to para. 3 must, however, be accompanied by a statement signed by the person authorised to exercise rights in respect of the data files from which the personal data are to be collected, stating that this person is making the data files available for the research project. Instead of this statement, a writ of enforcement (§ 367 para. 1 of the Enforcement Code, Imperial Law Gazette No 79/1896) replacing this statement may be submitted.

(5) Even in cases where the processing of personal data for scientific research purposes or statistical purposes is permitted in a form which allows the identification of data subjects, the data shall be coded without delay so that the data subjects are no longer identifiable if specific phases of scientific or statistical work can be performed with personal data pursuant to para. 1 subpara. 3. Unless otherwise expressly provided for by law, data in a form which allows the identification of data subjects shall be rendered unidentifiable as soon as it is no longer necessary for scientific or statistical work to keep them identifiable.

(6) Legal restrictions on the right to use personal data for other reasons, in particular for copyright reasons, shall not be affected.

(2) Wenn allerdings eine Beeinträchtigung der Geheimhaltungsinteressen der betroffenen Personen angesichts der Auswahlkriterien für den Betroffenenkreis und des Gegenstands der Benachrichtigung oder Befragung unwahrscheinlich ist, bedarf es keiner Einwilligung, wenn

1. Daten desselben Verantwortlichen verarbeitet werden oder
2. bei einer beabsichtigten Übermittlung der Adressdaten an Dritte
   a) an der Benachrichtigung oder Befragung auch ein öffentliches Interesse besteht oder
   b) keine der betroffenen Personen nach entsprechender Information über Anlass und Inhalt der Übermittlung innerhalb angemessener Frist Widerspruch gegen die Übermittlung erhoben hat.

(3) Liegen die Voraussetzungen des Abs. 2 nicht vor und würde die Einholung der Einwilligung der betroffenen Personen gemäß Abs. 1 einen unverhältnismäßigen Aufwand erfordern, ist die Übermittlung der Adressdaten mit Genehmigung der Datenschutzbehörde gemäß Abs. 4 zulässig, falls die Übermittlung an Dritte

1. zum Zweck der Benachrichtigung oder Befragung aus einem wichtigen Interesse der betroffenen Personen selbst,
2. aus einem wichtigen öffentlichen Benachrichtigungs- oder Befragungsinteresse oder
3. zur Befragung der betroffenen Personen für wissenschaftliche oder statistische Zwecke erfolgen soll.

(4) Die Datenschutzbehörde hat auf Antrag eines Verantwortlichen, der Adressdaten verarbeitet, die Genehmigung zur Übermittlung zu erteilen, wenn der Antragsteller das Vorliegen der in Abs. 3 genannten Voraussetzungen glaubhaft macht und überwiegende schutzwürdige Geheimhaltungsinteressen der betroffenen Personen der Übermittlung nicht entgegenstehen. Die Datenschutzbehörde hat die Genehmigung an die Erfüllung von Bedingungen und

Providing addresses to inform and interview data subjects

§ 8. (1) Unless otherwise expressly provided for by law, providing address data of a certain group of data subjects in order to inform or interview them shall require the consent of the data subjects.

(2) If, however, an infringement of the data subject's interests in confidentiality is unlikely, considering the selection criteria for the group of data subjects and the subject of the information or interview, no consent shall be required

1. if data from the same controller are processed, or
2. in the case of an intended transfer of address data to third parties,
   a) if there is also a public interest in the information or interview, or
   b) if none of the data subjects, after having received appropriate information on the reason and content of the transfer, has objected to the transfer within a reasonable period.

(3) If the requirements of para. 2 are not met and if obtaining the consent of the data subjects pursuant to para. 1 would require a disproportionate effort, the transfer of the address data shall be permissible with a permit of the Data Protection Authority pursuant to para. 4 if the data are to be transferred to third parties

1. for the purpose of information or an interview due to an important interest of the data subject,
2. due to an important public interest in the information or interview, or
3. for an interview of the data subjects for scientific or statistical purposes.

(4) At the request of a controller processing address data, the Data Protection Authority shall grant the permit for their transfer if the controller has satisfactorily demonstrated that the requirements stipulated in para. 3 have been met and no overriding interests in confidentiality which deserve protection on the part of the data subjects represent an obstacle to the transfer. The Data Protection Authority shall Auflagen zu knüpfen, soweit dies zur Wahrung der schutzwürdigen Interessen der betroffenen Personen notwendig ist.

2. Freedom of expression and information

§ 9. (1) The provisions of the General Data Protection Regulation and of this federal law shall apply to the processing of personal data by media owners, editors, copy editors and employees of a media undertaking or a media service as defined in the Media Act, Federal Law Gazette No 314/1981, as well as by other persons who, on the basis of a contract, are engaged as journalists in contributing to editing the contents of a medium or editing the contents of the publications of a media service in a media undertaking or media service for journalistic purposes of the media undertaking or media service with the following reservations:

1. The controller is not required to disclose to the data subject information subject to the protection of editorial confidentiality (editorial confidentiality under data protection law, § 31 of the Media Act); § 31 para. 2 of the Media Act shall be applied. In proceedings before courts and authorities having matters of data protection as their subject matter, § 31 of the Media Act shall apply with the reservation that the controller may refuse to answer questions as referred to in § 31 para. 1 of the Media Act not only as a witnesses but also as any other person involved in the proceedings. § 321 para. 1 of the Code of Civil Procedure, Imperial Law Gazette No 113/1895, shall be applied accordingly. In exercising its powers, the Data Protection Authority shall take into consideration the protection of editorial confidentiality.
2. The controller is entitled to process personal data, including the special categories of personal data referred to in Article 9 para. 1 of the General Data Protection Regulation as well as personal data relating to criminal convictions and offences or related security measures (Article 10 of the General Data Protection Regulation), provided that the processing is carried verarbeiten, soweit dies für journalistische Zwecke erfolgt. Art. 10 letzter Satz DSGVO bleibt unberührt. Die §§ 12 und 13 dieses Bundesgesetzes sind nicht anwendbar.

3. Art. 5 Abs. 1 lit. a DSGVO gilt in Bezug auf den Grundsatz der Transparenz mit der Maßgabe, dass die Verarbeitung personenbezogener Daten für die betroffene Person nur insoweit nachvollziehbar sein muss, als dadurch die Meinungsäußerungs- und Informationsfreiheit nicht unverhältnismäßig beeinträchtigt wird, und nur insoweit, als die Bestimmungen dieses Absatzes nicht anderes vorsehen.
4. Die Art. 13 und 14 (Informationspflicht) sowie Art. 21 Abs. 1 (Widerspruchsrecht) DSGVO sind nicht anwendbar.
5. Das Auskunftsrecht (Art. 15 DSGVO) ist in Bezug auf personenbezogene Daten, auf deren Grundlage noch keine Veröffentlichung erfolgt ist, nicht anwendbar. Im Übrigen gilt das Auskunftsrecht (Art. 15 DSGVO) mit der Maßgabe, dass die betroffene Person Auskünfte nur in Bezug auf bestimmte, im Antrag auf Auskunft konkret zu bezeichnende Veröffentlichungen verlangen darf und ihre Betroffenheit individuell zu begründen hat und der Verantwortliche abweichend von Art. 12 Abs. 5 erster Satz DSGVO berechtigt ist, für die Bearbeitung von Auskunftsersuchen ein Entgelt von 9 Euro zu verlangen; unterlässt die betroffene Person die konkrete Bezeichnung einer Veröffentlichung, die individuelle Begründung ihrer Betroffenheit oder legt sie keinen Nachweis für die Bezahlung des Entgelts vor, so kann der Verantwortliche sich weigern, aufgrund des Antrags tätig zu werden. Der Verantwortliche ist berechtigt, die Auskunft zu verweigern, soweit dies im Einzelfall zum Schutz der Meinungsäußerungs- und Informationsfreiheit erforderlich und verhältnismäßig ist; in solchen Fällen muss der Verantwortliche bei der Beantwortung des Auskunftsersuchens gegenüber der betroffenen Person nicht offenlegen, ob ihre personenbezogenen Daten verarbeitet werden, soweit dadurch der Zweck der Auskunftsverweigerung unterlaufen würde. Das Recht auf Kopie (Art. 15 Abs. 3 DSGVO) ist ausgeschlossen.
6. Art. 16 (Recht auf Berichtigung), Art. 17 (Recht auf Löschung) und Art. 18 (Recht auf Einschränkung der Verarbeitung) DSGVO sind nicht anzuwenden out for journalistic purposes. Article 10 last sentence of the General Data Protection Regulation shall remain unaffected. § 12 and § 13 of this federal law shall not be applicable.

3. With regard to the principle of transparency, Article 5 para. 1 (a) of the General Data Protection Regulation shall apply with the reservation that the processing of personal data must be transparent for the data subject only insofar as the freedom of expression and information is not unreasonably impaired thereby and only insofar as the provisions of this paragraph do not provide otherwise.
4. Articles 13 and 14 (Information to be provided) and Article 21 para. 1 (Right to object) of the General Data Protection Regulation shall not be applicable.
5. The right of access (Article 15 of the General Data Protection Regulation) shall not be applicable in relation to personal data on the basis of which no publication has yet been made. In all other cases, the right of access (Article 15 of the General Data Protection Regulation) shall apply with the reservation that the data subject may request access only in relation to certain publications that must be specifically named in the request for access, and the data subject must give reasons as to why and how the data subject is affected in each case, and the controller is entitled, by way of derogation from Article 12 para. 5 first sentence of the General Data Protection Regulation, to charge a fee of €9 for processing the request for access; if the data subject does not specifically name a publication, does not give reasons as to why and how the data subject is affected in each case or does not provide evidence of payment of the fee, the controller may refuse to act on the request. The controller is entitled to refuse access insofar as this is required and proportionate in individual cases to protect the freedom of expression and information; in such cases, the controller is not required to disclose to the data subject when answering the request for access whether or not the data subject's personal data have been processed, insofar as this would undermine the purpose of the refusal to provide access. The right to a copy (Article 15 para. 3 of the General Data Protection Regulation) is excluded.
6. Article 16 (Right to rectification), Article 17 (Right to erasure) and Article 18 (Right to restriction of processing) of the General Data Protection Regulation shall not be applied
   a) in relation to personal data on the basis of which no publication has yet been made;

b) in Bezug auf personenbezogene Daten, die in einem Medium im Sinne des § 1 Abs. 1 Z 1 MedienG veröffentlicht wurden;

c) soweit eine konkurrierende Anspruchsgrundlage wegen Verletzung der Persönlichkeitsrechte der betroffenen Person nach bürgerlichem Recht, insbesondere nach § 20 oder § 1330 des Allgemeinen bürgerlichen Gesetzbuches, JGS Nr. 946/1811, oder nach § 78 des Urheberrechtsgesetzes, BGBl. I Nr. 111/1936, besteht.

In allen anderen Fällen ist der Verantwortliche im Falle einer Geltendmachung der in Art. 16 und 18 DSGVO genannten Rechte durch die betroffene Person berechtigt, die Berichtigung oder die Einschränkung der Verarbeitung zu verweigern, soweit dies im Einzelfall zum Schutz der Meinungsäußerungs- und Informationsfreiheit erforderlich und verhältnismäßig ist.

7. In den Fällen der Z 5 zweiter und dritter Satz, Z 6 zweiter Satz und Art. 17 Abs. 3 DSGVO ist die betroffene Person berechtigt, eine Überprüfung der Rechtmäßigkeit der Verweigerung der Auskunft, Berichtigung, Einschränkung der Verarbeitung oder Löschung durch die Datenschutzbehörde zu verlangen. Der Verantwortliche hat die betroffene Person über dieses Recht zu unterrichten. Wird dieses Recht ausgeübt, hat der Verantwortliche das Vorliegen der Voraussetzungen der bezüglichen Einschränkung glaubhaft zu machen. § 25 Abs. 3 ist mit der Maßgabe anzuwenden, dass die Datenschutzbehörde die betroffene Person nur darüber zu unterrichten hat, dass alle erforderlichen Prüfungen oder eine Überprüfung durch die Datenschutzbehörde erfolgt sind, es sei denn, dass die Datenschutzbehörde zum Ergebnis gelangt, dass die betreffende Einschränkung unzulässig war. Die Datenschutzbehörde hat zudem die betroffene Person über ihr Recht zu unterrichten, Beschwerde an das Bundesverwaltungsgericht zu erheben.

8. Zum Schutz des datenschutzrechtlichen Redaktionsgeheimnisses, sowie soweit dies sonst zum Schutz der Meinungsäußerungs- und Informationsfreiheit, insbesondere im Hinblick auf Z 4 sowie Einschränkungen nach Z 5, erforderlich und verhältnismäßig ist, sind Verantwortliche im Sinne des Abs. 1 erster Satz sowie weitere Verantwortliche, die gemeinsam mit diesen personenbezogene Daten zu den in Abs. 1 erster Satz genannten Zwecken verarbeiten, nicht zur Offenlegung gemäß Art. 26 Abs. 2 zweiter Satz DSGVO verpflichtet.

b) in relation to personal data published in a medium as defined in § 1 para. 1 subpara. 1 of the Media Act;

c) to the extent that there is a conflicting basis of a claim on the ground of the infringement of personality rights of the data subject under civil law, in particular pursuant to § 20 or § 1330 of the General Civil Code, Collection of Laws No 946/1811, or pursuant to § 78 of the Copyright Act, Federal Law Gazette I No 111/1936.

In all other cases, the controller is entitled, in case the data subject asserts the rights provided for in Articles 16 and 18 of the General Data Protection Regulation, to refuse rectification or restriction of processing insofar as this is required and proportionate in individual cases to protect the freedom of expression and information.

7. In the cases referred to in subpara. 5 second and third sentences, subpara. 6 second sentence and Article 17 para. 3 of the General Data Protection Regulation, the data subject is entitled to request a review by the Data Protection Authority of the lawfulness of the refusal of access, rectification, restriction of processing or erasure. The controller shall inform the data subject about this right. If this right is exercised, the controller shall satisfactorily demonstrate that the requirements for such restriction have been met. § 25 para. 3 shall be applied with the reservation that the Data Protection Authority shall inform the data subject only about the fact that all necessary verifications or a review by the Data Protection Authority have taken place, unless the Data Protection Authority reaches the conclusion that the relevant restriction was not permitted. In addition, the Data Protection Authority shall inform the data subject about the data subject's right to lodge a complaint with the Federal Administrative Court.

8. To protect editorial confidentiality under data protection law, and insofar as this is required and proportionate to protect the freedom of expression and information, in particular with regard to subpara. 4 as well as to restrictions pursuant to subpara. 5, controllers as referred to in para. 1 first sentence as well as other controllers who, jointly with these controllers, process data for the purposes referred to in para. 1 first sentence, do not have an obligation of disclosure pursuant to Article 26 para. 2 second sentence of the General Data Protection Regulation.

9. Art. 33 DSGVO (Meldung einer Datenschutzverletzung an die Aufsichtsbehörde) ist mit der Maßgabe anzuwenden, dass eine Verletzung des Schutzes personenbezogener Daten nur dann an die Datenschutzbehörde zu melden ist, wenn sie voraussichtlich ein hohes Risiko für die persönlichen Rechte und Freiheiten natürlicher Personen zur Folge hat. Eine Benachrichtigung der von einer Verletzung des Schutzes personenbezogener Daten betroffenen Person gemäß Art. 34 DSGVO ist nur nach Maßgabe einer Anweisung der Datenschutzbehörde gemäß Art. 58 Abs. 2 lit. e DSGVO und, soweit das datenschutzrechtliche Redaktionsgeheimnis dadurch nicht beeinträchtigt wird, erforderlich.
10. Art. 38 DSGVO (Stellung des Datenschutzbeauftragten) gilt mit der Maßgabe, dass der Verantwortliche oder der Auftragsverarbeiter den Zugang des Datenschutzbeauftragten zu personenbezogenen Daten, die zu journalistischen Zwecken verarbeitet werden, einschränken kann, soweit dies zum Schutz der Meinungsäußerungs- und Informationsfreiheit erforderlich und verhältnismäßig ist.
11. Der Verantwortliche und der Auftragsverarbeiter sind nicht zur Einhaltung der Vorschriften des Kapitel V der DSGVO (Übermittlung personenbezogener Daten an Drittländer oder an internationale Organisationen) verpflichtet. Unbeschadet des Art. 24 DSGVO (Verantwortung des für die Verarbeitung Verantwortlichen) haben der Verantwortliche und der Auftragsverarbeiter geeignete Maßnahmen zu treffen, um sicherzustellen, dass die Rechte und Freiheiten der betroffenen Person im Falle einer Übermittlung personenbezogener Daten an Drittländer oder internationale Organisationen nicht unverhältnismäßig beeinträchtigt werden.
12. In Verhaltensregeln gemäß Art. 40 Abs. 2 DSGVO können Einschränkungen gemäß Z 5 dritter Satz und Z 6 zweiter Satz sowie geeignete Maßnahmen im Sinne der Z 11 zweiter Satz dieses Absatzes näher präzisiert werden. Die Datenschutzbehörde hat in Verfahren gemäß Art. 40 Abs. 5 DSGVO eine Stellungnahme der Kommunikationsbehörde Austria („KommAustria“) (§ 1 Abs. 1 KommAustriaG – KOG, BGBl. I Nr. 32/2001) zum Entwurf der Verhaltensregeln bzw. zum Entwurf zu deren Änderung oder Erweiterung einzuholen.

9. Article 33 of the General Data Protection Regulation (Notification of a personal data breach to the supervisory authority) shall be applied with the reservation that the Data Protection Authority must be notified of a personal data breach only if the personal data breach is likely to result in a high risk to the rights and freedoms of natural persons. Communication of a personal data breach to the data subject pursuant to Article 34 of the General Data Protection Regulation is required only in accordance with an order by the Data Protection Authority pursuant to Article 58 para. 1 (e) of the General Data Protection Regulation and provided that editorial confidentiality under data protection law is not adversely affected thereby.
10. Article 38 of the General Data Protection Regulation (Position of the data protection officer) shall apply with the reservation that the controller or the processor may restrict access by the data protection officer to personal data processed for journalistic purposes insofar as this is required and proportionate to protect the freedom of expression and information.
11. The controller and the processor are not required to comply with the provisions of Chapter V of the General Data Protection Regulation (Transfers of personal data to third countries or international organisations). Without prejudice to Article 24 of the General Data Protection Regulation (Responsibility of the controller), the controller and the processor shall take appropriate measures to ensure that the data subject’s rights and freedoms are not unreasonably impaired if personal data are transferred to third countries or international organisations.
12. Codes of conduct pursuant to Article 40 para. 2 of the General Data Protection Regulation may specify more details of restrictions pursuant to subpara. 5 third sentence and subpara. 6 second sentence as well as appropriate measures as referred to in subpara. 11 second sentence of this paragraph. In procedures pursuant to Article 40 para. 5 of the General Data Protection Regulation, the Data Protection Authority shall obtain an opinion by the Austrian Communications Authority (“KommAustria”) (§ 1 para. 1 of the KommAustria Act, Federal Law Gazette I No 32/2001) on a draft code of conduct or on a draft amendment or extension.

(1a) Für die nicht von Abs. 1 erfasste Verarbeitung personenbezogener Daten zu journalistischen Zwecken gilt Abs. 1 Z 1, 4 und 13; Abs. 1 Z 3 gilt mit der Maßgabe, dass sich der Verweis auf die Bestimmungen in Abs. 1 Z 1, 4 und 13 und Abs. 1a bezieht. Der Verantwortliche ist berechtigt, personenbezogene Daten, aus denen politische Meinungen oder religiöse oder weltanschauliche Überzeugungen hervorgehen (Art. 9 Abs. 1 DSGVO), sowie personenbezogene Daten über strafrechtliche Verurteilungen und Straftaten oder damit zusammenhängende Sicherungsmaßregeln (Art. 10 DSGVO) zur Wahrung berechtigter Interessen (Art. 6 Abs. 1 lit. f DSGVO) zu verarbeiten, soweit dies zur Ausübung der Meinungsäußerungs- und Informationsfreiheit erforderlich und verhältnismäßig ist. Art. 10 letzter Satz DSGVO bleibt unberührt. In Bezug auf personenbezogene Daten, die in einem Medium im Sinne des § 1 Abs. 1 Z 1 MedienG veröffentlicht wurden, sind die Art. 16 (Recht auf Berichtigung), 17 (Recht auf Löschung) und 18 (Recht auf Einschränkung der Verarbeitung) DSGVO nicht anzuwenden. Im Übrigen ist der Verantwortliche berechtigt, in Bezug auf zu journalistischen Zwecken verarbeitete personenbezogene Daten, auf deren Grundlage noch keine Veröffentlichung erfolgt ist, im Falle einer Geltendmachung der in den Art. 15 bis 18 DSGVO genannten Rechte durch die betroffene Person die Auskunft, Berichtigung, Löschung oder Einschränkung der Verarbeitung zu verweigern, soweit dies im Einzelfall zum Schutz der Meinungsäußerungs- und Informationsfreiheit erforderlich und verhältnismäßig ist; § 25 Abs. 3 ist anzuwenden. Derartige Einschränkungen können in Verhaltensregeln gemäß Art. 40 Abs. 2 DSGVO näher präzisiert werden. Die Datenschutzbehörde hat in Verfahren gemäß Art. 40 Abs. 5 DSGVO eine Stellungnahme der KommAustria zum Entwurf der Verhaltensregeln bzw. zum Entwurf zu deren Änderung oder Erweiterung einzuholen.

(4) Auf Grund einer konkreten Anfrage eines nahen Angehörigen einer tatsächlich oder vermutlich von der Katastrophe unmittelbar betroffenen Person sind Verantwortliche ermächtigt, dem Anfragenden personenbezogene Daten zum Aufenthalt der betroffenen Person und dem Stand der Ausforschung zu übermitteln, wenn der Angehörige seine Identität und das Naheverhältnis glaubhaft darlegt.

§ 10. (1) In case of emergency, public-sector controllers and relief organisations shall be authorised to jointly process data to the extent that this is necessary to assist persons directly affected by a disaster, to locate and identify missing or deceased persons and to provide information to their relatives.

(2) Anybody who lawfully possesses personal data shall be permitted to transfer these data to public-sector controllers and relief organisations if these controllers and organisations need this personal data to manage a disaster for the purposes specified in para. 1.

(3) The transfer abroad of personal data is permitted insofar as this is absolutely necessary to fulfil the purposes mentioned in para. 1. Data that by themselves would make the data subject liable to criminal prosecution shall not be transferred unless they are absolutely necessary for identification in a particular case. The Data Protection Authority shall be informed immediately about the data transfers performed and about the circumstances of the motivating incident. The Data Protection Authority shall prohibit further data transfers if the interference with the fundamental right to data protection resulting from the data transfer is not justified by the special circumstances caused by a disaster.

(4) Based on a specific inquiry of a close relative of a person who has actually or presumably been directly affected by a disaster, controllers are authorised to transfer to the inquiring person personal data regarding the whereabouts of the data subject and on the progress of the search, if the relative satisfactorily demonstrates his or her identity and close relationship to the data subject.

Special categories of personal data (Article 9 of the General Data Protection Regulation) may be transferred to close relatives only if they prove their identity and their capacity as a relative and if the transfer is necessary to safeguard their rights or the rights of the data subject. (6) Die zu Zwecken der Bewältigung des Katastrophenfalles verarbeiteten personenbezogenen Daten sind unverzüglich zu löschen, wenn sie für die Erfüllung des konkreten Zwecks nicht mehr benötigt werden.

§ 11. Die Datenschutzbehörde wird den Katalog des Art. 83 Abs. 2 bis 6 DSGVO so zur Anwendung bringen, dass die Verhältnismäßigkeit gewahrt wird. Insbesondere bei erstmaligen Verstößen wird die Datenschutzbehörde im Einklang mit Art. 58 DSGVO von ihren Abhilfebefugnissen insbesondere durch Verwarnen Gebrauch machen.

(3) Recording images pursuant to para. 2 subpara. 4 is permitted, in particular, if

1. it serves the precautionary protection of persons and items on private land exclusively used by the controller and does not reach beyond the boundaries of the piece of land, except when it includes public traffic areas, which may be unavoidable to fulfil the purpose of the image recording.
2. it is required for the precautionary protection of persons or items in publicly accessible places that are subject to the controller's right to undisturbed possession because that right has already been infringed or because the place, by its nature, has a special risk potential, or
3. it serves a private documentary interest and does not aim to record uninvolved persons to identify them or to record, in a targeted manner, items that are appropriate for indirectly identifying such persons.

(4) It is not permitted to:

1. record images in a data subject's most private sphere without the express consent of the data subject,
